

North Carolina Beats Gamecocks 40 to 0

Ward, Nash and Spaulding Share In Carolina's Victory

Tar Heels Increase 32 Point Per Game Average.

 Tar Heels. Slusser, substitute North Carolina halfback, carried the ball over for the marker. The third South Carolina fumble at a critical point of the game broke the home team's morale. Branch's kickoff was recovered by Carolina after a South Carolina fumble. Here the defense stiffened and Ward was forced to throw a pass over the South Carolina goal line. The Gamecock offense was breaking down. Another costly fumble and the large score which followed was almost inevitable. With little or no chance of victory, again and again the South Carolinians fumbled.

It was another case of a hidden ball offensive going to pieces when the gridmen lost their ability to hold on to the leather.

The basis of this attack does not allow for a possibility of a fumble. An error at almost any point is suicide. Almost certainly a touchdown.

The third touchdown followed from a pass behind the line of scrimmage, Rhame to Zobel. Zobel missed the elusive gridskin and Nelson fell on it as it scooted over the Gamecock goal line. North Carolina failed to make the extra point. Score 20-0.

At this point Coach Collins began to substitute his second and third string players. Even this boon was too little to stir up the defeated Gamecocks. The half ended with the ball in mid-field.

The remainder of the contest was played wholly in South Carolina territory. After each of the last three touchdowns, South Carolina received the ball only to stop dead against the now wary Tar Heel defense. A punt and the long march to the Gamecock goal line inevitably followed. North Carolina displayed her best football. Regulars and substitutes alike responded to the charge with fight. The Gamecocks were swept off their feet. Once ahead, the Tar Heels are hard to beat as their season's record shows. They play better on the long end of the score.

Branch returned Boineau's punt to the South Carolina 37-yard line. Nash made 10 yards and the first down. Spaulding made four yards through the line. Spaulding got three more yards in the same spot. Ward made it a first down through center. Ward pushed two more yards through center. Changing to an off tackle play, South Carolina was found napping, and Ward side-stepped through right tackle for 13 yards and a touchdown. Spaulding kicked the extra point.

Lipscomb kicked off 45 yards to Boineau who returned to his 34-yard line. Boineau failed to gain through the line. On the first play Brigham stepped back and hurled a long pass which was intercepted by Fenner and returned to the Birds' 38-yard line. Nash, in two off tackle plays, made seven yards. On the next play, Spaulding fumbled. Ward recovered. The Tar Heels were penalized five yards for off-sides. Spaulding jumped high in the air to pull down Ward's pass and race for a touchdown. On the try for extra point South Carolina was off-sides.

Intercepting another pass by Zobel, Spaulding returned the ball to the 44-yard line. Branch took the ball in a right tackle spurt for a 16-yard gain. The third period ended. House made five yards and Branch made six more for a first down.

Ball on the South Carolina 30-yard line. Branch clipped off six yards through left tackle. Spaulding accounted for four yards in two tries and House made four yards for a first down. Branch made one yard through the line. House lost a yard on the next play. Ward raced around right tackle for a touchdown. Branch failed to kick the extra point and the score was 40-0. The game ended a few minutes later with N. C. threatening again.

DAVIDSON NEXT TEAM ON SLATE

Wildcats, Cavaliers, and Blue Devils Only Games Left To Be Played.

With the Tar Heel invasion of South Carolina in the history column, Tar Heel supporters were thinking tonight principally in terms of Davidson, Virginia and Duke—the last three games on the North Carolina card.

All three teams are ancient rivals. Victories against Davidson and Duke are necessary for another state championship. And any good Carolina alumnus can tell you why Carolina must beat Virginia.

Season records don't mean much when it comes to playing those three teams. The Tar Heels can blaze away like flashing comets, and Davidson, Virginia and Duke slump away all season, but when the Tar Heels meet one of these three teams it's a different thing—a hard, close battle that may turn either way.

The Tar Heels have been fighting the Davidson Wildcats almost annually since 1898, yet there have been but five games won by as much as four touchdowns. The Tar Heels' 14-13 and 24-20 Virginia victories of the last two years illustrate plenty of heat in that sector of competition. The intense rivalry with Duke needs no comment.

It seems these three outfits play the "inspired" game against the Tar Heels—like Davidson played against Army and Citadel.

Davidson will without doubt flash to brilliance against Carolina, and fans will probably agree there's to be a fight that season records would never intimate. Virginia has the great Johnny Sloan back in uniform and is getting better every game. And the Duke Blue Devils have already passed out word that they expect to lick the Tar Heels.

The Virginia game, annual Southern Thanksgiving Day classic, will be the only home game. Tickets have already gone on sale, through the Athletic association office here, at $2.50,

DeHart Says Report Of 1930 Game With S. C. Is Premature

Coach James DeHart of Duke University last night declared that reports from Columbia, S. C., to the effect that the University of South Carolina would meet Duke on the gridiron next fall were premature, since arrangements for the game had not been completed.

"I have been dickering with South Carolina, offering a two-year contract with the understanding that the Gamecocks play here in 1930 and Duke at Columbia in 1931," Coach DeHart declared.

The Duke mentor stated that South Carolina may have agreed to his terms, thereby authorizing the announcement from Columbia, but said that he could not make an official statement until he had heard from the South Carolina authorities.

In discussing the Duke schedule for 1930, Coach DeHart announced that Washington and Lee had been signed for a two year contract and that the Generals would play in the Duke stadium next Thanksgiving with the Blue Devils going to Lexington for the Turkey day clash in 1931.

DUKE BEATS L. S. U. IN FIRST SOUTHERN CONFERENCE CLASH

Duke Stadium, Durham, Nov. 9.—(Special)—Making her debut in southern conference football here today, Duke University defeated Louisiana State University by the score of 32-6.

It was the first home game that the Devils had played since the Pittsburgh clash, and judging from the way in which they went into the affray today they were glad to get back from their "rambles." The score at the half was Duke 20, L. S. U. 0.

plus 20 cents for registration and postage. And from the way they're going it looks like another stadium-jammer, like the 28,000 sell-out when Carolina and Virginia dedicated Kenan stadium in 1927. Davidson is to be met on Richardson field next Saturday, and Duke will be met in the Blue Devils' stadium.

Coach Ranson's proteges will have no more meets before the conference meet and the remaining two weeks will be spent in intensive training. Victories over N. C. State and Duke have spurred the harriers on, and their eyes are now set on retaining the Southern Conference title which they won at Atlanta last year.

An Explanation

Because a statement appearing in Friday's Tar Heel to the effect that chemical engineering students are urged to go elsewhere for specialized work has been interpreted to mean that chemical engineering students should not come to Carolina, the following explanation is offered: the University of North Carolina urges all chemical engineering students to take four years of general work here, and then McCall Runs 60 Yards For a Touchdown; Wolfpack Unable To Gain In Pinches.

Riddick Field, Raleigh, Nov. 9.—(Special)—Fighting on even terms throughout the entire first half here today, the Davidson Wildcats, aided by intercepted passes, stepped into the lead and defeated the State College Wolfpack by the score of 13-0.

Late in the third period Black of Davidson intercepted a State pass on the Pack's 40 yard line and ran to the one yard line where he was finally downed. After two attempts Parrish got the necessary yard and a touchdown. Captain Brock failed to get the extra point.

During the first few minutes of the fourth period Joe McCall, Davidson's junior broken field ace, took a State college pass on his 40 yard line and stepped down the sidelines for 60 yards and a touchdown. Captain Brock succeeded in getting the extra point and the score was 13-0.

State threatened during the second and third periods, getting well within the 20 yard line, but they did not have the punch to take the ball over.

Dellinger was the most consistent man in the Wolfpack backfield today, and Jackie Jordan and Captain Lepo looked good in the line. The entire Wildcat team was working together and aside from the spectacular runs, no favorites could be picked.
