

Intramural Cake Race To Be Held Next Friday

Regulations Governing Annual Contest Issued By Department

Prizes Will Be Awarded Runners; First Race Held In 1923 Won By Harry Thach.

CONTESTANTS MUST TRAIN

Letters of invitation containing the rules governing the sixth annual intramural cake race to be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, November 22, have been sent out by the intramural department to the dormitory managers and fraternities.

Any one is eligible to compete who has not engaged in intercollegiate competition in varsity or freshman cross-country or varsity or freshman track at the University, and who has practiced at least five afternoons under the supervision of the varsity cross-country coach. Any one desiring to compete should check in to the manager just inside the main gate at Emerson field on the afternoons he practices, in order to get official credit for his work. Groups leave the field for runs every half hour between 3 and 5:30 o'clock.

Entries may be made either unattached or by teams. Cakes will be awarded to the three teams entering the largest number. The ten teams having the lowest team score will also receive cakes. The first five men on each team to finish in the first seventy-five will count in the team's score. A team whose first five men finish in first, seventh, 15th, 18th and 50th places would have a score of 91.

Gold medals will be awarded to the first five men to finish. Bronze medals will go to the second five. Prizes for those finishing between tenth and 76th will include neckties, socks, theatre pass, and track shirts. Both individual and team credit toward the intramural trophies awarded at the end of the year will be allowed. The course will be about two miles.

The first cake race, held in 1923, was won by Harry Thach. The course was three miles. Old West, finishing 14 men in the first hundred, won the team prize cake presented by the University laundry department. One hundred and twenty-five participated in the race that year.

Luther Byrd won the 1924 race and the cake presented by the University laundry department. He also won a two-weeks vacation from Swain hall, a prize offered to the winner if he were a member of the force there. The team cake offered by the Chapel Hill Bakery was again won by Old West.

Galen Elliott won the 1925 event. Old West again won the team prize.

Minor Barkley won the 1926 race, setting a record for the 1.9 mile course. He won the pick of one hundred cakes, and the loving cup awarded by the Book Exchange. Old West for the fourth time won the team prize—a large cake offered by the Smoke Shop. One hundred and seventy-nine took part in that race.

June Fisher led the 274 entries home in the 1927 race, covering the course in ten minutes flat. The "town team" won the big cake given by Dean Paulsen of the Smoke Shop. Placing 14 men in the first hundred they nosed out the New Dorms team which placed 13.

FOOTBALL TEAM HAS LIGHT WORK

Rain And Soggy Field Prevents Heavy Work For Carolina Team.

Rain and a soggy field combined yesterday to give the Tar Heels another day of rest—to the detriment of training plans for Saturday's invasion of the lair of the Davidson Wildcats.

Formal practice was declared out, but the mentors had all the men take light workouts before going to the showers.

Coach Collins said tonight that Pete Wyrick, veteran quarterback, out for two weeks with another back injury, may be able to play at least part of the Davidson game.

Jim Wagner, halfback, and Red Gilbreath, center, the only casualties of the South Carolina game, are coming around nicely, Trainer Quinlan reported.

A victory over Davidson would leave only Duke to pass for the state title. All Carolina strength may be needed, for Davidson's 13-0 upset of the N. C. State Wolfpack indicates that the Wildcats must be taken very seriously.

"Yank" Going Great

Yank Spaulding, who is leading all scorers on the 33-point Tar Heels, played two seasons without receiving a monogram. Injuries always hit the hefty ball-carrier just as he was making the grade. He has really come into his own in this his senior year. He has 6 touchdowns and 10 extra points to his credit for a scoring total of 46 points, and has played a jam-up defensive game all season as well.

Davidson, Duke And Tar Heels Still In Carolina Title Race

With both N. C. State and Wake Forest having lost two games apiece in Big Five competition, it looks as if the 1929 state title race has turned into a three-cornered affair between Davidson, Carolina and Duke. Somebody goes down Saturday, for the Tar Heels are to clash with Davidson in the native Wildcat lair in what promises to be another of those epic Carolina-Davidson fights. Duke and Davidson clash at Durham on Thanksgiving Day, and then on December 7 comes the monumental Duke-Carolina battle, already predicted by many as being the game that will settle the title race.

SPAULDING LEADS CAROLINA SCORERS

Jimmy Ward, one of South Carolina's two big contributions to the University's "33-point a game" backfield, took advantage of Saturday's game with the South Carolina "homestaters" to fatten his season batting average and step out front of the Tar Heel touchdown makers.

The fleet left halfback circled the ends and rammed the tackles for two more touchdowns, to run his season total to seven.

"Eight-Yard" Magner, who was tied with Ward at five markers before that South Carolina game, didn't get to play much due to a sprained ankle, and fell behind in the scoring chase.

But Yank Spaulding, the hefty fullback, was far from idle, and Spaulding, by virtue of two more touchdowns and two more placekicks, ran his touchdown total up to six and his extra point total up to 10. So, by virtue of a nimble toe, Spaulding still has a slight edge on the Tar Heel scorers.

Spaulding leads the race with 46 points, to Ward's 42. Magner comes third with 31, followed by Johnny Branch, the sensational sophomore, with 27, and a trio of right halfbacks tied for fifth place with 18 points apiece—Strud Nash, Rip Slusser, and Chuck Erickson.

The Tar Heel team, to date, is averaging 33 points a game, and if it maintains the pace, will set a new record for Tar Heel scoring machines of all times.

Head Coach Chuck Collins began the week's work for Davidson with an official decree of three days' rest for the 29 men who worked against South Carolina. It looks as if the Tar Heel express will be in fine shape again Saturday.

Fysal Makes Good

Ellis Fysal, stocky, hard charging 188-pound son of Wilson, N. C., is beginning to look like a fixture at right guard for the Tar Heels. Fysal, a converted fullback, playing his first year on the varsity, crashed into the lineup, over two lettermen, in the V. P. I. game, and has been starting every game since. He makes a great running mate for the crashing, driving Captain Ray Farris at left guard.

Place-Kickers Wanted

Chuck Collins, head Tar Heel mentor, is giving especial attention to his place-kickers this week. Captain Brock at Davidson is an artist at the game of making "Point No. 7," and the Tar Heels to meet Davidson there on Saturday, with all their 33-point scoring average a game, have converted only 15 of 36 attempts into extra points.

THE NEXT GAME on the slate is with Davidson. Davidson has defeated N. C. State but has lost to Wake Forest. Either game can be taken by the prophet for his prediction in the approaching week-end affair. Some say that Davidson upset the dope in both cases. Losing to Wake Forest was a freak, while State's defeat came as a natural course of events (according to a Davidsonian).

CAROLINA is still maintaining her 33 points per game and scores of rival institutions to date show that this average won't drop much if any as a result of the games left on the schedule. In the past game with South Carolina this average picked up a little.

WRITE UPS OF THE GAME last Saturday at Columbia say that the group of feminine rooters for South Carolina remained enthusiastic throughout the entire game. The same sports writers introduce the thought that they probably thought it was merely a game of tag and that S. C. was chasing N. C. all over the field. Live and learn!

DUKE upset another dope bucket by taking the L. S. U. Tigers in tow by such overwhelming odds. After spending three very unsuccessful week-ends in foreign territory they celebrated their return home by routing the Tigers. The Duke Blue Devil certainly did its work last Saturday and confirms the opinion held by many that Duke is a far from broken team by the numerous defeats.

THE BLUE DEVILS came to life just in time to get their finger in the Southern Conference pie. At present they are ranking with the leaders of the Conference and pass Carolina in the standing. Duke hasn't lost any games in the Conference and though they have won only one they still have a good chance for a clean slate. IF they could dope out plans for the Tar Heels' downfall things would be rosy in Durham. (IF.)

CAPTAIN BARKLEY and his colleagues turned the tables on the Duke harriers last Friday and avenged completely the defeat in '28. The whole team showed up well. Besides his stellar work in cross-country, Barkley is a prominent miler during track season. Cliff Baucom, number two man in varsity cross country, replaces last year's track captain, Henderson, in the two-mile run this spring. Last season Baucom showed up exceedingly well in all the meets. He pushed Captain Henderson hard in most of the races and is expected to be one of the best in the south this spring.

THE CAKE RACE this year is being resumed after a year's lay-off. There was a rebellion last year against the large number of cakes, that Chapel Hill housewives had been so generously preparing previously. Because of this imposition on so many of the Chapel Hill women it is understood that nearly all of the 100 prizes to be given away will be in merchandise, with the exception of 10 or 15 cakes.

We hope that the noise commission will make itself heard.—New York Evening Post.

FRESHMAN TEAM MEETS MARYLAND FROSH SATURDAY

Tar Babies Have Won Past Two Years; Maryland Holds Victory Over Virginia Yearlings.

Forced to hold practice in the Tin Can yesterday afternoon on account of the rain, the Tar Babies are taking advantage of every opportunity to become a well organized football machine in the few remaining days before they leave for the Maryland game on Saturday.

A long signal practice was held Monday afternoon which kept the freshmen until after dark. Four teams were organized and paired off to learn new plays and run the regular formations which will be used in College Park.

Little is known about the strength of the Maryland frosh offense, but in a recent game with Virginia they won by a close margin of one touchdown. The Maryland freshmen always put up a tough fight and coaches Enright and Sapp are preparing to meet any unexpected difficulties which may arise in the coming game.

For the past two seasons the freshmen have won from Maryland, having lost but one game to them in three years. This year's game is expected to be an exceptionally tough one in that the Old Liners will be on the war path to make the wins even in the last four years.

Close Scores Mark Virginia Contests

The North Carolina-Virginia grid rivalry, to be renewed here Thanksgiving Day, is one of the hottest as well as the oldest in all the South. Figures for ten games since the war prove the point. The Cavaliers have scored 70 points, the Tar Heels 64. The Tar Heels have won five games, Virginia three, and two have been ties. Only once has a game been won by a two-touchdown margin and the average difference between the scores has been 4.2 points. The Tar Heels have won the last two games 14-13 and 24-20.

Toe Work Important In Cavalier Games

Toe work has always proven a big factor in the Carolina-Virginia rivalry, to be renewed here Thanksgiving Day. A field goal apiece made a 3-3 tie in 1925. Virginia got the field goal in 1926, but Carolina failed. The next year the Tar Heels won on an extra point, 14-13. Last year, by getting the extra points Virginia led until the last few seconds by 20-18, Chuck Erickson's great run giving the Tar Heels a narrow 24-20 victory margin.

Carolina High In Nation's Scoring

The Tar Heels with 231 points to 47 are standing well to the fore in the national pigskin chase for points. Southern California leads the list with 289 points. Only Tennessee, with 257, and Tulane with 240, are leading the Tar Heels in the South. In the State, the Tar Heels' nearest competitor is Elon with 98 points, and Duke with 95.

Carolina Has Edge

The Tar Heels and the Davidson Wildcats have played four scoreless ties in a series that dates back to 1898, and these scoreless games were only fair samples of the remaining 20 games on the records. The Tar Heels have won 17 while losing three, but they have had a tough time winning a lot of the annual battles. Only five times have they run up as many as four touchdowns over the fighting Presbyterians.
