The six Carolina delegates, John Mebane, Cy Edson, Glenn Holder, Garland McPherson, Mary Price and Mary Marshall Dunlap returned to Chapel Hill Sunday night after attending the eighteenth semi-annual meeting of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association held at Lenoir Rhyne college.

Pete Roberts of State College was elected vice-president of the association, the only change made in the officers of the organization. Garland McPherson of the University is treasurer.

More than a hundred student journalists were present at the meeting which lasted three days, terminating at noon Saturday.

The delegates registered Thursday afternoon and were a tea by the student body of Lenoir Rhyne, followed by a banquet at the Country Club given by the Hickory chamber of commerce.

Dr. Schaeffer of Lenoir Rhyne college made the welcoming address Friday morning, followed by a report of the publications, the appointment of committees, and a business session. Friday afternoon the delegates were the guests of the college at a football game between Lenoir Rhyne and Erskine. A banquet and theatre party was given the guests Friday night.

A business session was held Saturday morning at which time High Point college was selected as place for the spring meeting.

Only Two More Issues

There will be only two more issues of the Tar Heel this week, Wednesday and Thursday. Regular publication of the paper will begin again Tuesday, December 3. All announcements for Thursday's issue should be turned in to the Tar Heel office before 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The office will be closed at that time for the Thanksgiving holidays.

LENOIR CHAMBERS TO BE EDITOR OF VIRGINIAN - PILOT

Lenoir Chambers, alumnus of the University in the class of '14, at present associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News, leaves Greensboro this week to become associate editor of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

Mr. Chambers, who is recognized as one of the foremost journalists in the south, was an all-round student while he was on the campus, being editor of the Tar Heel, football halfback, varsity tennis and basketball player, and member of Phi Beta Kappa.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, which is edited by Louis Jaffe, is the newspaper which won the Pulitzer prize last year.

After leaving the University, Mr. Chambers studied at the Columbia school of journalism, and then taught at Woodberry Forest. After the war he came back to Chapel Hill as director of the University news bureau. From here he went to Greensboro, where he succeeded Gerald Johnson as city editor of the Daily News when the latter came to Chapel Hill.

Up until last year he was a member of the athletic council of the University.

JOINT SESSION TO DISCUSS TAR HEEL

The regular quarterly joint session of the Di and Phi will begin at 7:15 tonight in the Di hall, New West building. The purpose of the session is to discuss the merits and demerits of the issuance of the Daily Tar Heel in its present form. Faculty members, undergraduates, and graduates who are not members of either society are invited by the societies to attend the meeting.

This discussion was arranged at the suggestion of a member of the Tar Heel staff, who felt that several defects in the publication would be brought out which have thus far escaped the notice of the members of the staff. The discussion is designed to bring suggestions to the editor and his staff for the improvement of the paper.

Since the Di will be host to the Phi tonight, J. C. Williams, president of the Di, will preside. Although every person who attends will be granted the privilege of discussing the issue, only members of the Di and Phi will be allowed to vote.

Hamilton To Attend Historical Meeting

Dr. J. G. deRoulhac Hamilton, head of the history department, will go to New York Thursday to attend the meeting of the executive council of the American Historical Association, which convenes there November 29 and 30.

Recent Release of University Press Tells Many Interesting Historical Incidents.

The intimate story of Woodrow Wilson's break with George Harvey is related by Dr. Philip Alexander Bruce, well known historian, in one of the chapters of the two new volumes just released by the University Press.

Colonel Harvey, it is recalled, was the first to bring Wilson's name forward publicly as that of a man eminently fitted for the office of president. In relating the events connected with the abrupt termination of their friendship, Dr. Bruce sheds a new light on this famous episode.

Presented in biographical form and entitled The Virginia Plutarch, the two books were written to present "not a series of detached characters," but a continuous narrative of deeds from the Colonial era to the present time and to give "the full amazing sweep of American history as it was shaped by 33 eminent Virginians."

"Dr. Bruce presents this impressive array of Virginia patriots with a full sense of their national and individual importance," the University Press announcement states. "They represent every stage of the winning and keeping of America. They are all Virginians, but not Virginians alone, for they belong to America, and in many instances to the world. They have often and in many places been given their separate stories, but no one has before brought all these great figures together as Mr. Bruce does here—with a full sense of their individual and national importance, and written out of a profound knowledge of American history."

"Biography and history have lately devoted themselves so much to idol-shattering, it is both a relief and a pleasure to find at least one good historian who can still see men in Plutarchian proportions. Nor is it anything but natural that, confronted with such an array of fine figures, he should believe that history may often, if not always be the essence of innumerable biographies. Certainly no recent book so ably demonstrates both these attitudes."

Dances Will Be Feature Of Annual Thanksgiving Recess

German Club Cards

German Club membership cards and tickets for the Thanksgiving dances may be obtained from Will Yarborough at the S. A. E. TOWN WILL FINE ALL VIOLATORS OF PARKING LAW

No cases have been made against drivers violating the new traffic laws in force on the University campus, but ten first warnings have been given. P. L. Burch, chairman of the Safety Committee, issued a warning that the second violation of the new traffic laws would incur a $50.00 fine.

Parking in back of Bynum Gymnasium is the main bone of contention in the parking problem. Most of the first warnings have been made against drivers parking their cars in this restricted area.

The new parking laws were printed in the Tuesday, November 19, issue of the Daily Tar Heel.

Recorder Henshaw had an easy time in Recorder's Court yesterday morning when only three cases were docketed.

M. H. Fann, white, was charged with reckless driving and running into two women. His case was postponed until the latter part of December pending the complete recovery of the young women.

Fred Alston, negro, charged with possessing intoxicating liquors for the purpose of sale, gave notice that he would appeal his case to a higher court.

William Horton, negro, charged with hunting without license and hunting rabbits out of season, was made to pay the costs of court.

VARSITY DEBATE TEAM SELECTED

Varsity debate tryouts held recently resulted in the selection of six men after the following query had been debated for two and one half hours: "Resolved, that the nations of the world should adopt some plan of disarmament of all forces, except those which are needed for police purposes."

Carr and Denton were chosen on the affirmative side of the question. Bailey, Hobgood, Meares, and Mashburn won negative berths. These men will represent the University in coming debates with the University of South Carolina, N. C. State, and Wake Forest.

N. C. State and Wake Forest will be met in the form of a triangular debate, while the North Carolina-South Carolina fray is to be a dual contest. Both the triangular debate and the dual engagement will take place early in December.

Sophomores Elect Johnson Official

In the election held in chapel Monday morning, Larry Johnson of Charlotte was elected vice-president of the sophomore class to fill the place of George Buchan, who dropped out of school this year. President Ben Aycock presided.

Three other men besides Johnson were nominated for the office, though Johnson received a good majority in the voting. The other nominees were Peter Gilchrist, Bill Petty, and Casper Austin. After being elected, Johnson made a short speech in which he promised to fulfill conscientiously the duties of his office.

After the election the remainder of the chapel period was given over to the practice of some yells and the song—"Carolina Go"—in preparation for the Thanksgiving football game. Cheerleader Jack Barret and Moore Bryson, author of the words of "Carolina Go," conducted the meeting.
