

Tar Heel-Pack Cage Tilt In Raleigh Tonight May Hold Key To State Race

Carolina And State Both Have Same Standing In Big Five Chase.

DUKE AND DAVIDSON LEAD
Ashmore Expected To Send
Same Line-up Against 1929
Champions Used Against Deacons
Saturday; Neiman Likely
To Start In Place Of Cleland.

Carolina's meeting with the N. C. State cagers in Raleigh tonight will be watched with keen interest by sports observers in the state and in the Southern Conference, because of the bearing its outcome will have on the state title race and its test of the strength of both teams. In the state race Carolina and State are tied for third place, with Duke and Davidson holding the first two positions, while both the Tar Heels and the State cagers are looked forward to as strong contenders for the conference title, which the Wolfpack won last year.

While Carolina was trouncing the Deacon quintet last Saturday night, the Duke Blue Devils defeated the State cagers 35-31. In games with Washington and Lee both quints lost by approximately the same margin. On the basis of early season records both teams will enter the fray tonight evenly matched. The game should also throw some light on Carolina's chances for victory in the Duke game next Saturday night.

Lack of veterans is the reason for the poor showing made by both Carolina and State thus far this season. The Wolfpack has only Larry Hear, stellar forward, and Maurice Johnson from last year's team, while the Tar Heels have only Harper, Marpet and Brown. The Wolfpack is without the services of Frank Goodwin, brilliant center, who led them to a Southern Conference title last year, while the Tar Heels lack even one veteran forward.

Coach Ashmore has announced that he will probably start the same team that hit such a fast stride against Wake Forest last Saturday night, except Dave Neiman, substitute forward who showed up so well against the Deacons, may replace Cleland at forward. That team showed Dameron and Cleland, forwards; Harper, center, and Brown and Marpet, guards.

Duke Leads Big Five

Duke University's Blue Devils are leading in the race for Big Five honors with two victories as a result of their squeeze-out, 35-31 victory over State Saturday night. The Davidson Wildcats, with a win at the expense of Carolina in their only game in the loop, are holding the runner-up position.

Carolina and State, each with one loss, are tied for third, and Wake Forest brings up the rear with three defeats and no win.

Although the Demon Deacons showed a good deal of improvement in their game, the Tar Heels had little difficulty in annexing a 49-19 victory in Raleigh. The play of Marpet and Dameron was largely responsible for the one-sided victory.

Going into the game as favorites, Duke found the going tough against State's Terrors and needed all their resources to keep in front. The game was hard fought and close from start to finish. State's inability to make free shots handicapped them.

RELAY TEAM IS GETTING SHAPE

Four Fast Veterans And Three
Sophs Vie For Places On Milrose Relay Group.

With three weeks of hard work concluded, four lettermen and four sophomore speedsters are running a neck and neck race for the honor of carrying Carolina's colors in the select mile relay of the Milrose Games at Madison Squar Garden, February 8.

Whether age and experience will win out, or whether youth and ambition will triumph, remains to be seen. Official try-outs, to be held the last of the week, will tell the tale and end the long grind of conditioning, dash work inside the Tin Can, and quarter-mile trials around the big cinder track.

The veterans who are making the strongest bids for team places are Captain Dave Nims and Dick Garrett, letter quarter-milers; Minor Barkley, letter miler, and Ken Gay, letter sprinter.

Garrett, Nims and Barkley held down three of four posts on the Tar Heel team that won the mile relay at the state championship track meet in Greensboro last spring. Nims does the quarter in 51 flat. Garrett is his closest rival in the Tar Heel camp. Barkley is a regular miler, good on the quarter-mile also. Gay, star in the 100 and 220, led all Tar Heel track scorers last spring.

There are likewise three members from last year's championship freshman half-mile relay team, which came in first in the select Georgia Tech relays.

These boys—Charlie Farmer, Lionel Weil and Wallace Case—give promise of pushing the veterans hard. Farmer especially is a great prospect. The Wilmington greyhound did 10 seconds on the 100, 21.4 on the 220, and 51.2 on the 440 as a freshman, to give himself a rating as one of the greatest sprint prospects seen in the south.

Dale Ranson, who is coaching the relay candidates, said today that five men would probably make the trip, and that there was a possibility that some of the men would be entered in individual events at the Milrose games.

Sigma Nus Score 58

Yesterday the Sigma Nu basketball team literally walked away from the Chi Psi team 58-15 in a game at the Tin Can. Johnson tallied 32 points for Sigma Nu. Campbell, Chi Psi, played well, scoring all of the losers' points. Allen also played a good game for Sigma Nu as did Griffith.

The lineup:
Chi Psi (15) Sigma Nu (58)
Avery Allen (15)
R. F. Johnson (32)
Mitcham L. F. Griffith (8)
Glascock C. Wright (3)
Hovis R. G. Skinner (2)
Campbell (15) L. G. Barwick; for Chi Psi—Ben-net.

BOXERS TO HAVE 3 TOUGH MATCHES IN 8-DAY PERIOD

Meet V. M. I., Duke And Virginia In Rapid Succession;
Get Back To Work Today.

The University boxing team, holders of the Southern Conference title, today get down to hard work in preparation for three engagements that the Tar Heels are to hold with Conference opponents in the brief spell of eight days.

V. M. I. will be met at Lexington Saturday night. Duke will be taken on here February 4 in one of the classic events of next week's North Carolina sport schedule. Virginia will be met at Charlottesville February 8.

To date the team has won from Washington and Lee and V. P. I., both by the count of 5-2.

Coach Creyton Rowe has the men in good shape to begin the week's work for V. M. I., except for the scrappy little 125-pounder, Harry Sheffield, who was kept out of the V. P. I. meet due to a bad arm. Sheffield's substitute fought gamely but couldn't quite match V. P. I.'s Towler, and the Tar Heels dropped one of two matches here.

Sheffield's arm showed improvement over the weekend, and it is hoped to have the little "blonde blizzard" back in shape for the Cadets.

Evan Vaughn, the 115-pounder, with the dynamite punch, the only other loser to V. P. I. was recovering from the bumped head that rendered it impossible for him to continue his scrap with V. P. I.'s clever little bantam. He should be in good shape for the Cadet's 115-pounder.

Captain Allen, Noah Goodridge, Obie Davis, John Warren, Bill Koenig, all of whom won their fights, are in good shape. Allen and Goodridge looked at the top of their careers against V. P. I. Davis, who missed early practice, is fast rounding into shape. Koenig, the football fighter, is gaining a ring confidence, that with his fine form and size and speed, may make him a great heavy.

Frosh Will Meet Tough Opponents During This Week

With their five-game winning streak stopped abruptly by the Wake Forest Baby Deacons in a game played last Saturday night in the Raleigh city auditorium, the Tar Babies began practice in an effort to start all over again.

Saturday the freshmen were unable to hold the ball. This may have been caused by the very poor lighting system in the city auditorium, but the fact remains that the Tar Babies lost many golden opportunities to score. Coach Rex Enright will drill the boys in holding on to the ball and perfecting their formations. In all probability there will be a light practice game at the Tin Can.

This week the freshmen will tackle the hardest part of their schedule. There are no less than three games carded for this week. Tonight the Tar Babies will travel to Raleigh to take on the Wolflets on the State floor. The Wolflets are said to have a fine quintet, having defeated the Baby Deacons 19-21. Coach Enright will take about 20 men on this trip. Thursday the frosh travel to Durham to take on the Durham Bull Dogs in a return contest. Recently the Tar Babies administered a sound defeat to the Durham quint, but the Bull Dogs are traveling at a fast rate, and a good contest should follow. Saturday will be the big night.

AYCOCK LEADS IN DORMITORY PLAY

Twelve Teams Still Undeclared
In Intramural Basketball
Court Play.

The close of the second week of the intramural association finds an even dozen teams in the undefeated class. Aycock, with four victories and no defeats, is leading the race in the dormitory league. Steele, Law No. 1, and Mangum are in the runner-up positions, with 3, 2 and 1 victories, respectively. In the fraternity league, Kappa Alpha, Zeta Psi, Phi Gam, Deke, Sigma Nu, and Theta Kappa Nu are joint holders of a six-cornered deadlock on the top rung. Sigma Zeta and S. A. E., each with one victory and no defeats, are in second place. S. P. E., leading at the beginning of the week with three wins, suffered badly at the hands of the Dekes and the A. T. O.'s and dropped to tenth place.

The unofficial standings in both leagues through January 26:

Tar Heettes Meet Leaksville Tonight

The Tar Heettes are primed for their battle with the Leaksville Y. W. C. A. tonight at 7:30 in Bynum gymnasium. This is the fifth game of the season for the co-eds, and with three losses against one victory, they are after the Leaksville girls' scalps. At the time of going to press last night the Tar Heel was unable to ascertain the lineup for either team, but it is probable that the lineup will be the same as in last Friday's game. Kitty Wells, guard, may be back in uniform for tonight's game. The admission is the usual 25 cents.

Intramural Schedule

TUESDAY, JANUARY 28
4:00 p. m.—1. Phi Kappa Alpha vs. Beta Theta Pi; 2. Kappa Alpha vs. Phi Gamma Delta; 3. Kappa Sigma vs. Phi Alpha.
5:00 p. m.—1. Mangum vs. Question Marks; 2. Old West vs. New Dorms; 3. Ruffin vs. Everett ("I").

S. I. C. Sports

(By Browning Roach)

The Wildcats of Kentucky proved themselves a dangerous foe last week by trimming the Mississippi Aggies twice in succession and bringing their total up to four games won and none lost. This gives them a tie with Washington and Lee for conference leadership. The Genarals retained their prestige by a second victory over the Virginia Cavaliers. The three other undefeated squads, Georgia, Alabama and Sewanee, held a firm grip on their positions, and the general standings of the teams remained practically unchanged.

Alabama, after being idle in conference play since the two early season victories, reopened her attack with a win over Vandy Thursday. Georgia again eked out a last minute victory over the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets when Captain Henry Palmer sank the deciding shot just before the final whistle.

N. C. State, 1929 champs, succeeded in putting V. M. I. down Monday in the first game for the Cadets, but lacked the punch necessary to whip Duke Thursday and the 1929 runners-up won 35-31.

Tennessee returned to prominence with victories over Georgia Tech and Auburn. Maryland, fresh from a victory over Navy, continued her stride and walloped V. P. I. Saturday 44 to 27. The Tech outfit lost to Virginia 28 to 21 earlier in the week. Mississippi, Tulane and Florida took a rest from intercollegiate activity and merely engaged in a few practice games to keep in shape.

Results for non-conference games engaged in last week are: South Carolina 29, Woffard 23; South Carolina 20, Furman 39; North Carolina 44, Wake Forest 18; Virginia 36, Richmond 35; Clemson 51, Woffard 21; V. P. I. 35, Emory and Henry 29; L. S. U. 37-42, Louisiana Poly 31-27.

Manly Beats Best House

Manly won a decisive victory over Best House yesterday. The game began slowly but the players woke up in the second quarter and showed some fine playing. The game ended with the score standing 44-16 in favor of Manly.

The lineup:
Best House (16) Manly (44)
Tsumas (2) Ball (8)
R. F. Leonard (13) Goldston (6)
L. F. Adams Sieder
C. McKinney Egan
R. G. Powell Auman (8)
L. G.

Substitutions: for Manly—Stuart (8), Willis, Barnwell (14), Wilkin; for Best House—Price. Carr forfeited its game scheduled for yesterday to the Question Marks.

TAR HEEL TEAMS FACE HARD WEEK FROM ALL POINTS

Basketball Team Will Engage In Two Conflicts With State And Duke.

University of North Carolina athletic teams face a stiff round of nine tests, eight of which are with southern conference foes, during the coming week.

Three varsity teams will see action four times, while a like number of freshman teams face five contests.

The basketball team plays N. C. State in Raleigh Tuesday night and Duke here Saturday night.

The freshmen play the Wolfcubs and Blue Imps preceding the varsity games, and will probably have a return game with Durham high in Durham Thursday night.

The boxing and wrestling teams will both journey into Virginia for Saturday night contests, the wrestlers with V.P.I. at Blacksburg and the boxers with V. M. I. at Lexington.

The Tar Baby boxers and wrestlers will meet the freshman teams of both institutions the same nights.

The basketball team promises to hold the center of the spotlight of interest.

The Tar Heels have already met Davidson and Wake Forest. These first meetings with State and Duke, besides counting in southern conference standings, will tell whether the Tar Heels, with their rookie forwards, can be counted strong Big Five contenders. They will also give a good line on the relative strength of the Wolfpack and Blue Devil quints.

The boxing and wrestling meets will pit the Tar Heels against two of their strongest opponents for southern honors, which the Tar Heel boxers have held two years running and to which the Tar Heel wrestlers are now aspiring.

The freshman basketballers will be striving to keep clean an undefeated record. The Tar Baby grapplers will be making their season debut. The freshman boxers will be striving in their second meet to erase a 5-2 loss to the Washington and Lee freshmen.
