

DR. MURCHISON TO ADDRESS THE TAYLOR SOCIETY

"Management Problems Of The Textile Industry" Will Be Subject Of Talk.

Doctor C. T. Murchison, professor of economics and an authority on the subject of the present situation in the textile industry, will speak on the subject "Management Problems of the Textile Industry" before the University branch of the Taylor Society at its regular weekly meeting Tuesday evening.

Doctor Murchison is to be the third of a series of faculty speakers who are delivering addresses on subjects related to business management before the University branch of the Taylor Society.

Doctor Murchison is a recognized authority on the subject of the present depression in the condition of textiles, and last week Bernard Cone, head of the Cone Textile Mills in Greensboro, referred to an article by Doctor Murchison as a true account of present conditions.

The January issue of The Virginia Quarterly has an article in it written by Dr. Murchison in which he shows that snarls in the organization of the textile industry are behind the cotton mill strikes and that an integration of the industry is necessary before either mill owners or workers can profit. This article was chosen by a council of librarians as one of the ten best articles appearing in periodicals during January.

Extension Division Conducting Graduate Course In Dentistry

The 1930 post-graduate course in dentistry, under the auspices of the University extension division in cooperation with the North Carolina Dental Society, was organized last week with an enrollment approaching 125. Six cities have been selected as class centers for the course: Greenville, Raleigh, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Charlotte and Asheville.

During the course a series of six subjects will be taken up, to be taught by several dental specialists. Classes will be held once each month. Conducted on his tour by Mr. Grumman, head of the extension division, Dr. R. S. Simpson of Richmond visited each of the towns recently, lecturing on the subject, "Practical Dentistry." In spite of the inclement weather, Mr. Grumman stated that the classes were very well attended.

The instructor, for the next series of classes will be Dr. Charles W. Freeman of the Northwestern University school of dentistry. He will speak on "A New Anaesthetic," through the week of February 17. Topics for the ensuing months have been selected: "Psychology," "Radiography," "Dental Economics," and "Gold Inlay Technique." As yet no announcement has been made concerning the men who will teach these subjects.

Arrangements for the course were made under the direction of an extension course committee of the dental society, composed of Drs. J. M. Johnson, E. B. Howle, Dennis Keel, Arthur Fleming and L. M. Edwards. Mr. Grumman is the University's representative in the work.

Play-Likers Production Pleases Large Audience

"Children Of The Moon" Presented By N. C. C. W. At Playmakers Theatre.

GIVE 3 PERFORMANCES

After Slow Start In First Act Presentation Of Martin Flavin's Tragedy Goes Over Big With Audience.

(By Robert Hodges)

The third and final performance of Martin Flavin's tragedy "Children of the Moon" as presented by the Play-Likers of the North Carolina College for Women was given at 8:30 last night in the Playmaker theatre.

The cast appearing is the same that was in the production when given last fall in Greensboro. All of the parts were filled by members of the organization who have received experience in previous productions.

Miss Vera Buckingham as the high handed mother was the best performer among the three women in the cast. Her role was played with the sincerity of polished experience; there was no awkwardness. Her voice did not betray her age as it did in the case of Miss Ruth Abbott's portrayal of Madam Atherton, the kindly grandmother whose actions were futile against the impending tragedy. Miss Abbott's work improved in the second and third acts; possibly the change of apparel at the last created a more distinct impression of her grandmotherliness. Miss Eloise Banning gave a favorable characterization of the unfortunate heroine, Jane Atherton, but her portrayal was not as sincere as Miss Buckingham's picture of the mother.

The male members of the cast all performed excellently. Their work was smooth, and they played their parts with a sincerity that was obvious. Mr. James Hoge carried the role of the hero, Major John Bannister, very well on his competent shoulders, as did also A. T. West as Dr. Wetherell, the kindly and understanding family physician. W. R. Taylor succeeded in creating the illusion of madness in that crack brained old caricature of a once brilliant man, Judge Atherton. The work of H. G. Mitchell in the minor role of Walter Higgs, the Major's mechanic, deserves praise, and A. Stacey Gifford as the servant, Thomas, should be accorded special recognition. He fell into the role of the old, rheumatic ex-sailor perfectly, and his acting deserves credit.

Mention should also be made of the sound effects produced behind stage. They were all realistic: the surf washing and beating against the shore, the sound of the airplane and automobile motors, the explosion occurring at the end.

On the whole the presentation of the drama received favorable comment, and its production reflected credit on the N. C. C. W. dramatic organization.

No Chapel Monday

Dean Bradshaw announces that there will be no chapel on Monday, contrary to the statement made in Friday's Tar Heel. Chapel will be held on Tuesday.

A Case Of Mumps

Miss Celeste Egerton is now in the infirmary with a case of mumps. The ordinary symptoms of this disease are swellings of the glands about the neck. If anyone has such swellings, he or she is advised to immediately report to the infirmary.

HAROLD MEYER TO ADDRESS Y GROUP

H. D. Meyer, of the Sociology department, will speak tomorrow night to the Freshmen cabinet at the Y at 7:15. The subject of his address will probably be something pertaining to "Success." At the last meeting Parson Moss spoke to the cabinet on the value of Truth, giving many examples in which truth could be used to bring about the best results.

The Junior-Senior cabinet will conduct a discussion led by Mr. Comer on "The Bearing of the Modern Psychology on the Question of Moral Obligations and Moral Freedom." The first 15 minutes of the time will be taken up with business and the last 30 will be given over to the discussion. This discussion will continue for the next three meetings.

The sophomore cabinet will probably be addressed by Dean Bell on "The Religion of a Scientist." President J. Elwin Dungan urges, however, that all members be present. The meetings for the past month of this cabinet have consisted of talks by different men on the subject of the "Negro Question."

Geology Professors Hear Buie Lecture

Collier Cobb, W. F. Prouty, T. F. Hickerson, G. R. McCarthy, and F. H. Edminister attended a meeting of the scientific society of Duke University to hear a lecture by Mr. Bowie, chief engineer of the U. S. of the Coast Geodetic Survey Thursday evening.

Mr. Bowie spoke on the work of the Coast Geodetic Survey and told of the accuracy with which one can locate points on the earth by reference to latitude and longitude. He also predicted that at some time in the future it would become the usual thing to locate ordinary surveys by reference to this system of dividing the earth's surface.

Members of the faculty plan to get Mr. Bowie to speak in Chapel Hill at some time in the future.

After the regular meeting of the society the University professors attended a smoker given by the organization in honor of Mr. Bowie.

Mosher Will Address Young People's Forum

Dr. E. R. Mosher of the education department will speak tonight at 7 o'clock to the Young People's Forum of the United Church. This will be the sixth of a series of lectures on sex hygiene being conducted by the group and is expected to be both interesting and instructive. Students and town folks interested in sex hygiene education are urged to attend these meetings.

DRAMA FESTIVAL TO BE IN APRIL

Seventh Annual Event Will Be Conducted Here April 10, 11, and 12.

The Carolina Dramatic Association and the University bureau of community drama have announced the list of entrants for the state dramatic tournament, to be held during the seventh annual dramatic festival, April 10, 11 and 12.

Competition in the tournament will be arranged according to the six types of dramatic organizations represented among the contestants. A preliminary contest for each class will be held at the last of this month, as soon as a satisfactory schedule can be arranged, to select from each group two contestants who will meet here in April to decide the championship.

The executives of the dramatic Association which with the drama bureau is jointly sponsoring the festival and tournament, are: honorary president, F. H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers; president, Preston Farrar of Asheville; vice-president, W. R. Wunsch; secretary and treasurer, Nettina Strobach, state representative of the bureau of community drama; additional executives include—R. M. Grumman, head of the University extension division; Professor Koch; Elmer Hall, technical director of the Playmakers; Virginia Horne of Wadesboro; Hubert Heffner, assistant director of the Playmakers; Elba Henninger, head of the English department and dramatic director at Greensboro College; R. C. Robinson, director of the Wayne Community players; Pearl Setzer, dramatic director at Lenoir Rhyne College; and Grace Everest, dramatic director at Alexander Graham high school in Fayetteville.

There are 17 city schools which have announced the intentions of participating in the elimination series: Winston-Salem, Spring Hope, Hamlet, High Point, Madison, Morganton, Chapel Hill, Fayetteville, Hendersonville, Charlotte, Hickory, Lenoir, Wilson, Albemarle, Salisbury, Asheville and Grace high school, also of Asheville.

The list of county schools includes Spruce Pines, Whiteville, Derita, Nashville, Swannanoa, Henrietta, Oakboro, Oakhurst, Jackson, Severn, St. Paul's, Paw

Noted Astronomer To Give Sigma Xi Lecture

Doctor Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard College Observatory, will deliver the annual Sigma Xi lectures Thursday and Friday evenings on the general subject "Flights from Chaos."

Doctor Shapley is one of the youngest of America's famous astronomers. He was awarded the Draper medal of the National Academy of Science in 1926, and has done much research work in studying the size, shape and relative positions of many of the galaxies.

The fields in which Doctor Shapley has done much work include those of photometry, spectroscopy, and cosmogony.

The lectures this year are to be given in Gerrard hall, and will begin promptly at 8:30. The public is extended a cordial invitation to attend these lectures.

Russian Symphonic Choir Sings Here Monday Night

Staff Meeting

There will be the regular meeting of the Tar Heel staff of reporters tonight at 7 o'clock in the office, basement of Alumni building. As several changes are to be made in beats and important announcements made in connection with the awarding of charms and credits for the year all reporters are expected to be present. Any new men who wish to try out for the staff are asked to report at this meeting.

Grail Gives Second Of Winter Quarter

The Grail dance of last night ended the social activities of the week-end for the followers of Terpsichore. The usual number of boys dragged, hopped and danced away the short hours, which seemed even shorter due to the nearness of the Sabbath.

Only four out of a possible five girls took advantage of the offer made by the Grail to give the first five girls entering the dance hall before 9:30 o'clock a box of candy. However, the dance was begun quite a little bit before the usual dance on the Hill begins.

A rather attractive scheme of decorating the ballroom was used. These decorations were the same as used by the law school dance Friday night. They consisted of red, blue and yellow streamers hanging over the floor and several lanterns placed artistically over the middle of the floor.

Alex Mendenhall and his Tar Heel Boys showed unusual pep and rhythm under the direction of their new leader, Billy Arthur of Charlotte. This diminutive musician could be seen quite often on top of the piano and other places seldom occupied by leaders of even the most modern of jazz-bands.

Y Deputations Will Visit Four Cities

There are at present only four cities on the list of those places to be visited by the Y deputation teams for this quarter and part of next. These four are Fayetteville, Greensboro, Rocky Mount, and Wilmington.

The trip to Southern Pines last Sunday was the first that has been made by the teams this year. There were, however, only three men sent to Southern Pines, but the teams that will go to the other places will consist of a quartet and from two to four speakers.

The teams are composed of students selected from the Y cabinets; they go to different places in the state and give talks in the schools, sing in the churches, and present regular programs.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY TO MEET TUESDAY EVENING

The 318th meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will be held Tuesday evening in room 206 Phillips hall at 7:30.

The program to be presented consists of an illustrated talk by Dr. F. P. Brooks on "The Vitamin D Content of Shrimp Oil," and a talk by Dr. W. C. George on "The Unit of Life."

Basile Kibalchich, Director, has Wide Experience In Choir Conducting.

SINGS IN SWAIN HALL

Group Is Appearing Here Under Auspices Of Student Entertainment Committee; Sixth Annual Tour.

Under the auspices of the student entertainment committee the Russian Symphonic Choir will appear here in Swain hall tomorrow night at 8:30. Those not holding entertainment coupon books may purchase tickets at one dollar each.

The present tour of the choir is the sixth in this country. Basile Kibalchich, director and conductor of the choir, is a native of southern Russia. He studied music at an early age, selecting the violoncello as his instrument. His studies in music and composition were at Petrograd Conservatory and under Rimsky-Korsakoff. In 1906 he was head of the famous Archangelsky Choir of Petrograd. Since that time the director has toured Europe as a choral director and has led the choirs of large cathedrals in Europe.

The program to be sung by the choir is in three parts.

The first of these will be made up of Russian sacred music. No country today is as rich in this type of music as Russia, due to the fact that the Russian Catholic church has one of the oldest heritages of any of the churches now active.

The celebration of feast days and other occasions on the church calendar have been so frequent that the volume of musical literature which has been created is much greater than that of other churches. The calendar calls for some 250 liturgical occasions annually in addition to the 52 Sundays. Hence, the Russian composers have created an abundance of religious pieces, many of which will be represented on the first part of the program.

The second division is that of classical music, opening with Rachmaninoff's famous "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," arranged for the choir by Mr. Kibalchich, the director. No number will display the marvelous bass quality of the Russian voice as much as this one. In this group there will also be two numbers from the popular Russian operas, Eugene Onegin and Prince Igor.

The final group will be one of Russian folk music. The folk song comes absolutely naturally to the Russian, and in most cases no new arrangements are needed, the songs being sung exactly as in the native surroundings.

The entire program as sung by the choir will be in the Russian tongue, but the printed programs will carry the English translations, so that the audience will understand the character and mood of each number.

The director is responsible for the selection of the program, as well as for the arrangement of many of the selections. He regards his group as a symphony orchestra. It has been correctly named a "symphonic choir."

The performance will be given without the aid of an instrument, and one of the most mysterious features of the eve-
