

RESULTS OF PLAY CONTESTS ISSUED BY DRAMA BUREAU

Original Plays To Be Produced During Seventh Annual State Dramatic Festival In April.

The bureau of community drama announces the results of the original play contest, a preliminary feature of the state dramatic tournament to be given during the seventh annual state dramatic festival, April 10, 11 and 12. Each group entered in the contest submitted an original manuscript.

From among the plays written by little theatre groups the following were selected: "The Song of the Wind" by R. C. Robinson of the Wayne Community Players of Goldsboro and "The Elopement" by Mrs. Griffin of the Seaboard Community Players.

Lenoir-Rhyne College was the only college to enter an original manuscript, "Rising Waters" by Miss Helen Miller.

In the high school group "Death Comes to Sonia" by Esta Rouch of Winston-Salem and "Clippings" by Kneale Morgan of the senior high school in Asheville were winners.

The groups submitting the winning manuscripts have been invited to produce them at the dramatic tournament, at which time the state winners in each group will be determined. A trophy is awarded to the winning producers, while the authors of the plays already selected are to receive valuable prizes for their work.

The following organizations originally entered this contest: The Mountain Mimes of Swanaoia, Blue Ridge School, Lenoir-Rhyne College, the high schools of Sanford, New Bern, Conway, Winston-Salem, Wilson, Charlotte, Franklinton and Asheville, and the community players of Greenville, Goldsboro and Seaboard.

Grail To Give Third Dance Saturday Night

The Order of the Grail will stage its next dance at 9 o'clock Saturday night. The dance will be held in Bynum gymnasium, and the building will be fittingly decorated for the occasion.

Officials of the Grail report that they are expecting a large crowd at this dance as the engineers will also give a dance Friday night.

The custom established at the last dance will be carried out Saturday night. A box of candy will be given to each of the first five girls entering, provided they are on the floor by 9:30 o'clock. By giving away the candy the last Grail dance was started 30 minutes earlier than usual. It is expected that the dance will be under way by 9:30 as the race for the candy will be pretty hot. Red Greene, treasurer, says that the members of the Grail were well pleased with the promptness which prevailed at the last dance and that they expect even greater promptness at the coming affair.

Tickets will be placed on sale at the rear entrance to the gymnasium to those not accompanied by girls. The ticket booth will be open promptly at 8:30.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Carolina Bucaners.

Soph Class Picture To Be Taken Again 10:30 This Morning

Another picture of the sophomore class will be taken for the Yackety Yack this morning during Chapel period in front of the law school. The former picture was not quite perfect because of the rainy weather. All members of the class are urged to be present.

BRADSHAW TALKS AT FROSH CHAPEL

Dean Of Students Tells First Year Men Of Vocational Guidance Meeting At Atlantic City.

Dean F. F. Bradshaw, who has just returned from a meeting of vocational guidance organizations in Atlantic City, talked to the freshmen in chapel yesterday on the subject of this meeting, giving them some very definite advice on the matter of choosing a vocation.

Emphasizing throughout the importance of studying the vocations, Dean Bradshaw showed clearly that a definite choice of a vocation should be made only after becoming thoroughly acquainted with the situation. He accorded no great importance to the points of deciding early and definitely but urged an ever-active investigation and a continuous adjustment of oneself according to a wider knowledge.

The uncertainty of a large number of college students concerning their life-work was given to the dean to show the importance of giving immediate consideration to the matter. A remarkably large number of students change their minds after entering college. According to Dean Bradshaw it is often necessary to re-think the matter, but in all events he holds that a systematic study should be the basis of the attempt.

Dean Bradshaw suggested reading and talking with persons engaged in the various vocations as means of obtaining a general knowledge of different vocations. A good plan, also, he said, is to obtain work in the summer related to the business or profession in which one is interested.

SECOND TERM OF EXTENSION WORK HAS GOOD START

Record Enrollment Of 873 Features Opening Of The 28 Extension Centers In This State.

The second term sessions of the 28 extension classes located in the various sections of the state started during the last two weeks with a record total of enrollment, according to R. M. Grumman, director of the University extension division. In these classes are enrolled 873 students, most of whom registered for the two courses offered at each class center. The total number of course registrations is 1618, an increase of 69 over the previous term, and the largest in the history of the extension division for any one term.

Practically all of the courses taught in extension classes are professional courses in education. A staff of seven extension instructors devote full teaching time to this work, three of whom make their headquarters in different parts of the state, accessible to the classes. The instructors teach at three of four centers, meeting classes once each week, and, in addition, they visit the classrooms of the student-teachers, so that the laboratory method of teaching plays an important part in the extension classes. Under the direction of Professor W. J. McKee, special methods in technique are being worked out in this program of training teachers while in service.

A list of the class centers and instructors follows: Cecilia H. Bason, Clinton, Whiteville and Wilmington; Ernest H. Hicks, Beaufort, Plymouth, Stonewall and Washington; Mrs. C. E. McIntosh, Fayetteville, Lumberton and Rockingham; W. J. McKee, Dunn, Sanford, Henderson; R. W. Morrison, Asheville, Waynesville, Hendersonville and Marshall; E. R. Mosher, Carthage; B. A. Stevens, Caroleen, Maiden, Rutherfordord and Shelby; Mrs. Grace P. Woodman, Albemarle, Hillsboro Monroe and Wadesboro; Sallie B. Marks and Nora Beust, Asheboro; Robert Sherrill, Rocky Mount.

Recorder's Court To Hold Extra Session

Chapel Hill recorder's court will meet in an extra session at 7:30 this evening in the old Pickwick theatre, according to Judge C. P. Hinshaw, who adds that Carolina students are always welcome to attend and witness court procedure.

This committee is composed of Ellis Fysal, varsity football player, Robert Hodges, assistant editor of the Tar Heel, Dr. L. M. Brooks, of the sociology department, Louis Graves, editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly, and Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the Y.

All contributions made will be turned over to George Lawrence, director of Welfare Work to distribute in Orange County. If every student will contribute the price of a picture show quite a sum will be raised for this work. If you are unable to send in money, send old clothes.

Joint Session Of Duke And Carolina Literary Societies To Be Tonight

Discussion Of Plans To Bring About More Amicable Relations Between Two Universities To Be In Gerrard Hall At 8 O'clock; Leaders Heartily Endorse Idea.

The joint session of the student bodies of Duke and Carolina will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Gerrard hall. The meeting is sponsored jointly by the Philanthropic and Dialectic societies of the University and the Columbian and Hesperian societies of Duke. John A. Lang, speaker of the Philanthropic society, announces that all students and faculty members are invited to attend the meeting and to take part in the discussion. Joe Savage and Ray Farris, president of the student bodies of the universities, will make short addresses.

Seven resolutions will be discussed at the meeting. They were prepared by John Lang and approved by a joint committee of the two societies. The resolutions are: (1) That meetings of the faculty and student leaders of the two universities be continued as permanent semi-annual occasions; (2) That the student leaders and publications direct the competitive energy into wholesome rivalry; (3) That the honored and learned societies share in appropriate inter-university occasions; (4) That the student publications announce the coming of distinguished speakers of interest and value to both institutions; (5) That the literary societies have alternate joint meetings at least once a year; (6) That professors of each university be invited to take part in some occasion or meeting at the other university; and (7) That the library facilities of each university be available for joint use of the students of the two universities.

A number of endorsements of this joint session have been received from some of the University's most outstanding faculty members. In endorsing this meeting, Professor R. D. W. Connor says: "Fine business! The plan has my hearty endorsement. I trust that the plan proposed will meet with enthusiastic and sustained support from both institutions."

Dean Addison Hibbard in speaking of this session says: "With so much possible through cooperation and common effort, it is difficult to believe that any one could find reason for objection to the program outlined by the four cooperating literary societies." Professor Frank Graham considers this meeting as the natural step in bringing about wholesome cooperation between the two universities. This movement of the literary societies is regarded by Dr. E. W. Knight as an intelligent effort to bring the two universities into more friendly relations.

Other prominent faculty members who have endorsed this joint Duke-Carolina meeting are: Dean Cyrus H. McCormick, Dean M. C. S. Noble, Professor C. E. McIntosh, Professor George McKie, Executive Secretary R. B. House and Professor E. C. Metzenthin.

RECORDER THROWS OUT ASSAULT CASE

Parker Roland, University Law Student Aably Pleads Case For Defendant.

Grace Taylor, 18, colored, went to the home of Carrie Rouse, 30, colored, with Hattie Davis, Bill Horton and Fred Farrar, at 8 or 9 o'clock on the evening of Saturday, February 15.

Most of the wee hours of the same evening Grace spent, almost entirely unclothed, and unconscious as well, in a field near the Rouse home.

Just this much was definitely established Tuesday evening at recorder's court in the old Pickwick theatre when Carrie Rouse appeared to answer a charge of assault with a deadly weapon; namely, a plank, on the person of Grace.

Parker Roland, a law student who was in the audience, volunteered to represent Carrie and had the satisfaction of securing a dismissal, together with some praise from Judge C. P. Hinshaw for the able manner in which he'd won his first case.

Testimony from ten witnesses was varied and highly colored.

Grace averred that she had gone to Carrie's home "cause ah heerd dey was a dance. Carrie gived us some home brew. Yessah, ah drank some, but ah wasn't drunk, no sah! 'N'en Carrie an' her husband an' John Merritt wen' out and got some whiskey and gived me some. Yessah, ah dranked some. No,

Henry Would Have Al Smith Succeed Chase

(By Frank J. Raskob)

Dr. G. K. G. Henry, assistant registrar, in an interview with a Tar Heel reporter late yesterday afternoon, added another hat to the many now in the ring for the honor of succeeding Harry W. Chase as president of the University. Alfred Emanuel Smith, four times governor of the Empire State and one time nominee of the Democratic party for the presidency of the United States, is Dr. Henry's unofficial candidate.

The assistant registrar stated that with Mr. Smith housed in the executive offices in the South building, the University would become one of the most talked of educational institutions in the country. In addition, Mr. Smith is not without ability or experience and in a recent news dispatch published throughout the nation, it was reported that Chief Justice Hughes and Governor Roosevelt of New York have characterized the "Happy Warrior" as the leading authority on constitutional law in the country.

It was further suggested that with Mr. Smith would come many a Northern student, and it would not be long before this school would be one of the largest and pre-eminent in the U. S. It could not be ascertained yesterday whether or not the offer has been proffered to the late governor or what action he would take on it if he received it.

PROFESSOR TELLS TAYLOR SOCIETY ABOUT MARKETING

M. D. Taylor Addresses Group On Scientific Management Of Distribution At Weekly Meeting.

At the meeting of the University student branch of the Taylor Society held last night in Bingham hall, Malcolm D. Taylor, associate professor of marketing, spoke on "Scientific Marketing Management."

In his talk Mr. Taylor showed how basic conditions of industry have changed from a period of buyer demand during the war to the present period in which the producers are forced into keen-competition to market the goods that they are now making.

This keen competition has brought about a period in which scientific marketing has been forced upon the producers. By means of the introduction of scientific marketing the producers have been able to meet the competition and so continue in business.

By actual examples of companies that have employed scientific marketing to introduce a new model of a product to the buying public, Mr. Taylor illustrated the points in the scientific selling of goods.

In presenting the point that much energy formerly put into the development of production was now being placed on marketing, the speaker stated that since 1920 buyers have become much more discriminating and exacting in their demands, and accordingly much time had to be spent in satisfying these demands.

The four phases of scientific marketing management as outlined by Mr. Taylor were the planning of the product by a consultation between the selling and the producing parts of the industry, the determination of what the public wants, the advertising research, and the sales research.

Professor Taylor was the fifth of a series of faculty speakers who are delivering addresses before the Taylor Society on subjects related to scientific business management. The next speaker, the last for this quarter, will be D. D. Carroll, dean of the school of commerce and economics, who will talk on "Education for Business Leadership" at the meeting next Tuesday evening.

Mechanical Engineers Attend Joint Meeting At N. C. State College

Members of the University student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers attended a joint meeting of the Raleigh section, the State College student branch and the University branch of the society held last night in Page hall at State College, Raleigh.

The meeting which was sponsored by the Raleigh section was held for the purpose of allowing members of the student branches to become acquainted with the practicing engineers who are members of the section.

The speaker of the evening was S. H. Libby, consulting engineer of the Bloomfield, N. J., plant of the General Electric Company, who is chairman of the society's committee on relations with the colleges.
