THE Southern Conference tournament opens at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Atlanta time, (2 o'clock Carolina time), with the Tar Heels rated as one of the "dark horses." Almost every S. I. C. basketball tourney in past years has opened with the Tar Heels one of the favorites. Half of the S. I. C. titles have been won by the Tar Heels, four in the past eight years. Last year the conference opened with Carolina as usual occupying a prominent position among the contestants, but N. C. State proved the "dark horse" of the occasion to come through with a win over the Duke quint in the titular match to win the conference laurels. Carolina previously lost to the strong Durham aggregation in the semi-finals.

RECENT WINS by the Tar Heels have raised the chances of Carolina in the game with the University of Georgia at 9 o'clock (Carolina time) tonight. Georgia is rated as having another "dark horse" team. The Bulldogs lost a game earlier in the season to the N. C. State quint by the narrow margin of two points. Carolina has lost and won to Tech by the same margin. So, according to scores, the two teams this afternoon are The Tar Heels however, will be without the services of their 6 foot 6 inch center, Harper.

THE CONFERENCE closes the basketball season in North Carolina. This year Duke, with a state championship safely tucked away, will be the favorites from North Carolina, while State and Carolina enter on almost equal terms. THE GOLF COURSE problem is to be finally settled. The opening of the new miniature golf course behind the post office will serve as an outlet for those invested with the golf bug, maybe (?).
