

Both Sides Satisfied With Results Of Opening Day Of Carolina Theatre Boycott

Student Movement For Reduction In Admission Price At Local Theatre Began Yesterday.

LEADERS ARE CONFIDENT

Proponents Of Boycott Express Confidence In Outcome Of Movement; Theatre Officials Say No Effect Of Operations Noticed In Attendance Yesterday.

The boycott of the Carolina theatre began yesterday following two week's work on the part of the backers. Complaints against the admission price of 40 cents at the local theatre took definite form two weeks ago when printed forms were circulated asking students to agree to boycott the theatre until prices were reduced to 30 cents.

Sunday night circulars were distributed throughout the dormitories and fraternity houses asking those who signed the agreement to stand by their word and not to be influenced by "the clever business schemes of Mr. Smith who is hoping to destroy this move by recently giving theatre parties and also by running a series of good pictures next week."

Proponents of the boycott stated last night that the results of the first day's operation were very satisfactory. George Davis, one of the leaders of the movement, said late last night that he was confident of securing a reduction in the admission price if those students who signed the agreement would stick by their words.

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the theatre, said yesterday afternoon that if the boycott existed box office receipts for the day failed to show it. Attendants at the theatre stated that attendance at the afternoon shows remained as expected.

Confidence that the boycott would succeed was expressed by those promoting it. They stated that it would be continued so long as the students desired a reduction in the prices and were willing to back up their desires by remaining away from the shows.

RATAN DEVI TO APPEAR MARCH 6 IN SWAIN HALL

Costume Recital Of Folk Songs To Be Given Here In Swain Hall Under Auspices Entertainment Committee.

Ratan Devi will appear here March 6 in Swain hall at 8:30 in a costume recital of folk songs of the east and west, including Kashmiri folk songs and East Indian Ragas. The recital is the second number on the student entertainment program for this quarter.

Madame Devi has appeared at many of the largest universities in the country, such as Harvard, Columbia and Chicago; she has given recitals at such places as the National Arts Club in New York City, and the Fine Arts Club in Chicago. Everywhere she has been she has received most favorable press comments.

When she was in England, Bernard Shaw and William Butler Yeats hailed her singing as a revelation. She has been called the "solitary occidental of our generation who can interpret the musical genius of Hindustan." The singer possesses a very pleasing contralto voice, with the rich, warm tone to express the almost weird Indian melodies. Her programs are distinctive not only for unusual and previously unsung folk songs, but also because of the charming manner in which she presents them, according to her critics.

After Madame Devi finishes a series of English and Continental European folk songs, she puts on a Hindu costume: a scarf of the hue of the flesh of a fresh ripe mango fruit, splashed with rose, a rose-embroidered kurt skirt, and trousers worn by ladies of the Punjab. It is in this costume that she sings the great Ragas "with a skill worthy of a Hindu court minstrel's and an intelligence often surpassing his. . . . Ratan Devi portrays Indian music with a genuine India-consciousness."

Article In Scribner's By E. W. Knight Defends Summer Schools

In Scribner's for March Professor Edgar W. Knight has an article entitled "Go to the Ant, Thou Sluggard" in which he defends the summer session of the American university and rebukes those who look upon the summer school with scorn. He points to the summer school as the symbol of an enterprise that has spread far beyond its original frontiers and now touches the educational life of the United States at a thousand intimate points, "for very few are the American schools, large or small, in which the appeal and influence of this educational agency have not penetrated."

The article points to the contrast between many students who attend the regular semesters and most of those in the summer session. The latter go about their work, Knight observes, "with intelligence, despatch, and industry. For genuine earnestness and depth of purpose few other students are so impressive. Few anywhere else show such eagerness for excellence and respect for thoroughness in their work or such capacity for sustained effort as those who kindle

REGISTRAR WILL MAIL REPORT TO LOCAL ADDRESS

All Undergraduate Students Will Receive Grade Announcements Before Their Final Registration.

The registrar's office is planning to deliver grade reports to the local mailing address of all students in the undergraduate divisions of the University, as well as the school of pharmacy and the graduate school, before the final registration date, March 22. With that purpose in mind, it is imperatively necessary to have correct addresses for all students concerned. Envelopes will be addressed from the registrations handed in at the beginning of the quarter. In quite a number of cases there are no addresses at all for the students, and in many other cases the mailing address has been changed since registration.

This service from the office will be facilitated and made decidedly more effective if each registrant will see to it that his proper mailing address is available. With the proper cooperation, the registrar's office is of the opinion that these reports can be delivered before March 22. They will, therefore, urge that every student let them have his correct address before Friday of this week if there has been any change since winter registration, or if no address was given.

Dr. Metzenthin will open a discussion on "Goethe and America" by presenting his unorthodox views on the question of Goethe's influence, past, present, and future, on America.

The meeting will begin at 7:30, as usual.

Contributions received over the week-end for the "Campus Relief Fund for Orange County Poor" swelled the total to $224.50. The $90 collected from the benefit motion picture performance given Sunday afternoon at the Carolina theatre brought the donations almost to the $200 mark, and the total of $40.50 received during the week-end resulted in the present sum.

Contributors over the week-end were Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Adams, T. B. Douglas, Jim Magner, Jack Lindley, E. C. Longest, A. V. Cole, "Bo" Shepard, George A. Long, Craig E. Wall, Thomas Rose, Jr., J. A. ### Carroll To Speak To Taylor Society

At the regular weekly meeting of the University student branch of the Taylor Society to be held this evening at 7 o'clock in the auditorium of Bingham hall, D. D. Carroll, dean of the school of commerce and economics, will speak on "Education for Business Leadership."

In his talk Dean Carroll will present his views on what constitutes a good education for one who wishes to become a leader in the field of business endeavor. He will discuss education under the two heads of education for the purpose of training one to earn a living efficiently and education for the purpose of learning how to enjoy life to the fullest extent.

These two phases of education have come to be recognized in recent years as essentials, and now greater importance is being attached to the latter. In keeping with this view, that education should train one to be able to enjoy life as well as to be able to earn a living efficiently, the school of commerce and economics now requires a large amount of liberal work in its curriculum.

As Dean Carroll is head of the branch of the University which is responsible for the training of those interested in taking up business as a career, his views on what constitutes a Full Meeting Of Board Will Consider Question Of Picking Successor To Dr. H. W. Chase.

SELECTION IS UNLIKELY

Support For Connor And Baity Developing; Some Trustees Want Immediate Action But Appointment Of Committee Probable.

The board of trustees of the University will meet this afternoon in Raleigh to consider the selection of a successor to Dr. H. W. Chase, resigned president. The resignation of Dr. Chase was announced three weeks ago simultaneously with the statement that he had accepted an offer to become president of the University of Illinois.

If precedent is followed, the board will appoint a committee to consider the qualifications of possibilities and to report at a later meeting, probably at the annual June meeting.

Several men have been proposed, with R. D. W. Connor, professor of government, and Frank Graham, professor of history, having strong support. However, last Friday Tyre C. Taylor, private secretary to Governor Gardner, announced that Mr. Graham had stated in a letter to the Governor that he did not wish his name considered. At the same time a movement proposing Dr. H. C. Baity, head of the civil engineering department here, was announced.

Several members of the board have suggested immediate action and announced their support of Mr. Connor, who was considered seriously eleven years ago at the time Dr. Chase was elected. At that time Mr. Connor was secretary of the state Historical Association and a member of the board of trustees. A ruling of the Attorney General that the trustees could not choose one of their own number prevented consideration of his name.

No action has been taken by the faculty in recommending a successor and none of the possibilities has made statements other than Mr. Graham in his letter to the Governor.
