

ARTHUR C. NASH WILL LEAVE HILL FOR WASHINGTON

University Architect Has Served Here Since 1922; Designed Eight Major Buildings On Campus.

Arthur C. Nash, the University architect, will leave Chapel Hill at the end of the summer to live in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Nash is retiring from the firm of Atwood and Nash, Inc., architects and engineers, but he will continue to be associated with Mr. Atwood in a consulting capacity.

Mr. Nash came here eight years ago, in 1922. This was the year after the legislature had provided funds for the expansion of the University, and building operations were under way. But the most important structures that have risen here in the last decade were designed by Mr. Nash. The new Library, the woman's building, the Graham Memorial, the Carolina Inn, the Kenan Stadium, the reconstructed South building, the dormitories to the east of the campus, and the later classroom buildings—all these are monuments to his skill, his artistic sense, and his good taste.

Buildings of his design outside the campus include several fraternity houses and homes in the village. In Raleigh the revenue building, the fairground building, and the additions at Peace Institute were constructed from his plans, and he also planned the renovation of the state capitol.

The sentiments of the community are appropriately expressed by the Chapel Hill Weekly, which says:

"The University and the village owe a great debt to Mr. Nash. His ability as an architect has been only part of his contribution to the community. His 'feel' for the traditions and atmosphere of the place, his devotion to the ideal of harmony between the old and the new, the sympathy and understanding he has brought to bear upon every one of his projects, and his unflinching courtesy and kindness have won the admiration and goodwill of all who know him. Chapel Hill honors him both for his achievements as an architect and his character as a man."

JITNEY PLAYERS TO APPEAR HERE

Widely Known Actors Will Present Two Plays in Playmaker Theatre April 14 And 15.

The Jitney Players, often referred to as the "most unusual theatre in America," will appear in Chapel Hill Monday and Tuesday, April 14 and 15, to present Shepperd Strudwick in "A Trip to Scarborough" and "The Wonder."

Shepperd Strudwick, formerly with the Carolina Playmakers, was one of the most outstanding actors in that group during the time he was with them.

The Jitney Players are coming to Chapel Hill under the auspices of the Carolina Playmakers, and the performances will be staged in the Playmaker theatre. The shows will cost $1 each for everybody except season ticket holders, who will be allowed to see both performances for $1.50.

Tar Heel Notice

PLAYMAKERS GIVE SERIES OF PLAYS

Productions Directed By Students Of Hefner's Play Production Course; Given Friday And Saturday Nights.

The Carolina Playmakers presented their second studio production Friday and Saturday nights, April 4 and 5, at the Playmaker theatre. These presentations were conducted by Hubert Hefner and the students in the course in play production.

"The Man in the Bowler Hat" by A. A. Milne, "The Open Door" by Alfred Sutro, "The Man on the Kerb" by Alfred Sutro, and "The Mayor and the Manicure" by George Ade were presented Friday night. Saturday night the following were presented: "Enter the Hero" by Theresa Helburn, "Dawn" by Percival Wilde and "Suppressed Desires" by Susan Glaspell and George Cram Cook.

The productions were staged successfully and the audience was well pleased with the acting. The students taking part in the presentations were: Mary Marshall Dunlap, George Frederic Cole, Kate Graham, Claude Ballard, William Dike, Lucas Abels, Milton Wood, Ruth Newell, Edgar Neely, Elaine Wheaton, Elizabeth Reed and George Race.

SCOUT FRATERNITY ELECTS OFFICERS

The second regular meeting of the local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary scouting fraternity, was held Thursday evening in the Y. M. C. A. After some discussion the following temporary officers were installed: R. B. Hubbard, president; Charlie Powell, secretary; and A. D. Kornegar, Paul Patten and Alfred Rogers, advisory committee.

Greene New Prexy

Ralph ("Red") Greene being successful in his candidacy for the presidency of the student body against Marion Alexander will assume his new office within the next two weeks. Greene has served as president of his senior class during the past year.

START WORK ON MUSIC BUILDING

Members Of Music Faculty And J. A. Page Turn First Shovels Full Of Dirt At Formal Exercise.

At eight thirty Saturday morning the faculty of the music department, the construction superintendent Mr. J. A. Page, and a representative of Atwood and Nash, the architects, gathered at the site of the new music auditorium to formally start the construction. Mr. H. S. Dyer the director of music turned the first shovel-full of dirt, followed by Mr. T. S. McCorkle, Mr. Nelson O. Kennedy, and Mrs. C. P. Woodman, then Mr. Page and the architects' representative. The exercises concluded with an invocation, and the construction of the auditorium with its organ, the gift which means so much to the University, was under way.

CAROLINA CO-EDS BEG STICKERS, ASK 'DATES' WITH HARVARD MEN

Letters Addressed To "Handsomest," "Best Sport," Etc., Delivered At Random By The Yard Postman.

(From Boston Herald)

There is no end apparently to the audacity of co-eds of a certain North Carolina college in collecting college "stickers," and incidentally in corresponding with Harvard men. So much the Rover learned when he perused the contents of several letters written by the co-eds to such as "Mr. Harvard's Handsomest," "Mr. Harvard's Best Sport," "Mr. Harvard's Best Athlete," "Mr. Harvard's Best Dancer," and other "Mr. Harvard's So and So."

In reading such letters the Rover was somewhat taken aback. He could scarcely believe his eyes were reading the thoughts expressed on the handwritten pages, but he wasn't "seeing things," of that he is very certain.

These North Carolina co-eds addressed their contemporaries at Cambridge expressing the wish that the Harvard students would see fit to comport themselves as gentlemen and scholars and reward the writers with stickers. The stickers requested are those that may be seen almost any day on the windshields of automobiles and "collegiate phords" parked in the vicinity of Harvard square.

"Dates" Are Arranged
But these girl-student-writers don't stop at requesting stickers; they go right on and suggest

NOTED PROFESSOR TO SPEAK MONDAY

J. Y. T. Creig Of The University Of Durham, England, To Talk In Bingham Hall Tomorrow Night.

Professor J. Y. T. Grieg of the University of Durham, England, who is visiting this country, will speak informally in Bingham hall 103, Monday evening at 7:30 on certain trends in contemporary English literature. Professor Grieg's address will conclude before 8:30, in order that those who wish may attend the concert.

Professor Grieg has been a visiting professor at Vanderbilt University this year, and is now making a tour of southern educational institutions. He comes here directly from Georgia, and will leave Chapel Hill for the University of Virginia. Besides being a professor of English literature, Mr. Grieg is a novelist well known to the British reading public. Students and faculty members especially interested in language and literature are cordially invited to hear Mr. Grieg, as for that matter are all who are interested in contemporary letters. Professor Grieg will be here Monday and Tuesday.

Exchange Of Pulpits

This morning at the eleven o'clock hour the Rev. W. D. Moss of the Presbyterian church will preach at the Methodist church while Mr. Rozzelle the Methodist pastor is filling the Presbyterian pulpit. Later in the Spring there will be other exchanges among the various ministers of Chapel Hill. A full attendance is expected at each service today.

Our New Chief

Will Yarborough, who defeated Joe Jones decisively for the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel in Friday's elections, has served the paper and the campus as a reporter, sports editor, associate editor and full-time managing editor.

E. G. HOFFER TO ATTEND MEETING

Mechanical Engineering Head Leaves Today For A. S. M. E. Convention In Washington This Week.

E. G. Hoffer, head of the department of mechanical engineering, will attend the fiftieth anniversary meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers which will be held in Washington Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The series of meetings celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Society will begin in New York Saturday. A meeting is being held today at Stevens Institute in Hoboken, and the three concluding meetings will be held in Washington the first of this week.

This celebration will review the past 50 years of engineering achievements and will bring together the world's outstanding men in engineering. It will aim to cultivate bonds between the nations on the basis of engineering accomplishments.

At the meetings at Washington a series of 16 papers will be presented, each summarizing and evaluating the influence of engineering upon cultural, social, economic and political life. Each of the papers will also visualize the future of the engineers place in the promotion of the common welfare in one of the 16 selected geographical divisions of the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffer will drive to Washington Sunday and will probably return to Chapel Hill on Thursday.

Also in conjunction with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the society, a "birthday party" will be held in Raleigh Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Raleigh Section of the society and the Raleigh Engineers' Club. The student sections of the society at both Carolina and State have been invited to attend this meeting.

Flower Show Group Makes Preparations

The committees in charge of the flower show to be held here May 1 held a meeting Wednesday night for the purpose of making further arrangements about the show. The president of the committees, Mrs. H. R. Totten, particularly urged that the chairmen in charge of the different sections find out how much floor space each section will require, as this is very important in making preparations.

UNIVERSITY MEN RECEIVE INJURIES IN BAD COLLISION

Six Students Are Principals In Serious Wreck On Raleigh Road Saturday Morning.

President Ray Farris reported to the Daily Tar Heel yesterday that six University students had been injured in an automobile wreck which occurred three miles from Chapel Hill while the men were on their way to Raleigh early Saturday morning.

John Idol, Red Greene, Pat Patterson, and Bill Bliss returning from a short ride they had made, discovered that a Ford coupe driven by Bobby Deese of Lumberton, also a student at the University, had been run into by a Chrysler Imperial roadster driven by Larry Flynn. The five other men with Flynn were Joe Anderson, John Wilkinson, J. D. McNairy, Al Lansford, and Glenn Holder. Two unidentified men riding with Deese, and who were uninjured, were sent together with Holder and Lansford, the latter two being only slightly injured, in a car which was hailed as it was passing on the way to Chapel Hill.

Red Greene and Patterson carried McNairy and Flynn to Watts Hospital in Durham, while Idol and Bliss waited with Anderson and Wilkinson for Greene to return to the scene of the accident with a Durham ambulance.

Dr. Foy Roberson was called into consultation at the hospital and reported that Wilkinson was not seriously hurt, that J. D. McNairy had sustained a fractured leg and a concussion of the brain, that Larry Flynn had suffered a punctured intestine, which was operated upon shortly afterward, and that Joe Anderson had received a fractured skull.

Wilkinson will return to Chapel Hill today. Although both Anderson and Flynn had regained consciousness late yesterday afternoon, Anderson's condition was reported the more serious of the two. Flynn is reported as having "a good chance to recover." McNairy had not regained consciousness at 7 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No
