

MANY DANCES ON SOCIAL CALENDAR THIS WEEK-END

Phi Gamma Delta Having Two Dances and House Party; Grail Honoring Initiates At Dance.

Social activities for the week-end will be started by the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, which will entertain with a set of dances at the Carolina Inn, one tonight from 9 until 1, and a tea dance tomorrow afternoon from 6 until 9. Tomorrow night after the tea dance the Order of the Grail will entertain with a dance in honor of its recently initiated members.

Forty girls have been invited to the Phi Gam house party. Alex Mendelhall has been engaged to play for the dances.

Girls have been bid from all over this state, Virginia and South Carolina. Among the girls who have been invited and who are expected are: Misses Sares Ellerby and Dorothy of Asheville, Anne Marsh of High Point, Katherine Fulghum of Wilson, Sally Couch of Charlotte, Meta Moore of New Bern, Betty Webb of Concord, Frances Thompson of Salisbury, Madeline Jenkins of Tarboro, Kitty Boddie of Louisburg, Lottie Frances Mays, Sophia Clifton of Louisburg, Frances Thackston of Rocky Mount, Margaret Smith, Mattie Jackson of Lynchburg, Ann Davis of Lynchburg, Reeker Davidson of Lynchburg, Layrene Fuller of Raleigh, Bumps Lewis of Tarboro, Peter Whitehead of Wilson, Virginia Rogers of Durham, Romaine Clark of Wilson, Catherine Eagles of Wilson, Frances Shute of Monroe, and Rebeckah Lowe of Greensboro.

The dance tonight will be formal, while the tea dance Saturday will be informal. The occasion for the dances will be the formal house warming after moving into the new house.

The Grail dance tomorrow night will fill out the week-end's program.

Tar Heel Meeting

The reportorial and editorial members of the staff of the Daily Tar Heel will meet for the second time since the organization of the new staff Sunday night at seven o'clock in the basement of Alumni building.

There are three sport staff positions and three news positions open to members of the student body who are interested in making the staff. They will be awarded to those applying Sunday.

No one will be excused from attending the meeting.

THEATRE GUILD AND BYRD TAKE HIGHEST VOTES

Small Voting on Next Year's Entertainments; Ballot To Be Run Again Today.

According to the balloting in the recent poll held by the Student Entertainment Committee the Theatre Guild is the best liked of the 30 entertainments from which next year's program may be selected. Richard E. Byrd ran the Guild a close second with 47 votes to the Guild's 49.

The balloting was small, only 70 votes being cast. Dean Hibbard, head of the committee, believes that a larger number of students are interested in next year's entertainments than the small voting would indicate. The ballot form is therefore being run again in this morning's Tar Heel. There is a box in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A. as there was on the previous balloting. Votes may also be turned in at Dean Hibbard's Office. The ballot closes tomorrow.

Of the thirty possible numbers for the program the ten leading ones in the order of their popularity are: the Theatre Guild, Richard Byrd, Lawrence Tibbitt, the Beggar's Opera, Pavley-Oukrainky Ballet, the Ben Greet Players, Bruce Bairnsfather, Darrow-Cannon Debate, Carola Goya, Ruth Page, Russian Symphonic Choir, Spaulding, and an art exhibit.

Each voter was allowed ten votes, indicating his choice by numbering from one to ten. The same system is to be used in today's voting. The Theatre Guild got by far the larger number of first choice votes. If the Guild comes—and if the first ballot may be taken as an indication of the students' wishes in the matter, Eugene O'Neill's Strange Interlude which has aroused so much comment, favorable and unfavorable, will be presented by them. Since the original negotiations concerning Commander Byrd's lecture the cost of his coming has almost doubled. If the students and townspeople desire him to come he will be brought here however. The ten entertainments that are now leading show a well-balanced interest among the voters, music, drama, dancing, and the arts all being represented.

Law Class Has Picture

The members of the third year law class had a group picture of the class made Thursday morning on the steps of the law school building, during chapel period. They had this picture made in order that they might all have a suitable memento of the class.

Taking Treatment

Frank Walston, who slightly injured his leg sometime ago, is now undergoing a violet ray treatment at the infirmary. The member failed to improve under Walston's self-applied remedies and is now in a very bad condition.

Graduate Notice

The written examination for the masters degree for those students majoring in German will be conducted tomorrow morning, April 26, at 9:30. The examination room will be Saunders, 106.

Next Magazine Regular

As the copy for the annual Negro Number of the Carolina Magazine has not yet arrived in Chapel Hill, the next issue will be published as one of the regular numbers. It will appear Sunday, May 4.

Deadline for copy for this issue is Sunday night. All students are invited to contribute. Material should be sent to Box 710. Book reviews are due Saturday night.

CAMPUS LEADERS TO MAKE TRIP TO NEARBY COLLEGES

Greene, Hamer, Farris, Lang, And Yarborough To Visit Schools In Interest of Student Federation Movement.

Red Greene announced yesterday that a delegation of campus leaders would make a trip today to State, Meredith, Wake Forest, and Duke in the interest of the student federation movement and of the student convention which has been tentatively set for May 10. Those going are Ed Hamer, Ray Farris, Ed Yarborough, Red Greene, and John Lang. The purpose of the trip is to have personal interviews with the student leaders of each of the institutions mentioned and to further make certain the success of the convention. Letters setting forth the purpose, date, and outline of the convention have already been sent to all the senior colleges of the state. Those invited to attend and send delegates to the convention are Asheville Normal, Atlantic Christian, Catawba, Davidson, Duke, E. C. T. C., Elon, Flora McDonald, Greensboro, Lenoir-Rhyne, Meredith, N. C. C. W., Queens, Rutherford, Salem, State, Wake Forest, and Western Carolina Teachers. The number of delegates from each institution will be in accordance with the enrollment.

The committees which have been appointed to provide for the convention are made up as follows: Finance, Will Yarborough and Mayne Albright; Constitution, Ray Farris; Red Greene, and John Lang; Entertainment, Ed Hamer, Clyde Dunn, and E. C. Daniel; Publicity, K. C. Ramsay, Will Yarborough, and E. C. Daniel.

This movement for a statewide federation of students, which was originated by Ray Farris and John Lang several months ago, has steadily grown until at the present definite plans for the formation of such a federation are being executed, and, from the apparent sentiment of the student leaders throughout the state, it will be a success.

GLEE CLUB WILL GIVE CONCERT HERE MAY 8

As a regular part of National Music Week here, the University glee club will give a full concert on May 8, probably in the Playmaker theatre.

The concert will be presented not purely as a feature of the week, but also in an effort to discharge the rather large debt incurred as a result of the participation in the national glee club contest in New York last month and the local contest at Greenville, S. C.

Canvass Is Taken Of Fleece Potentialities By Reporter

Correction

It was stated in yesterday's issue of the Tar Heel that the eclipse of the sun Monday would be annular and that it would cover nine-tenths of the surface of the sun. This was erroneous. Only about four tenths will be covered, and the eclipse here will be partial and not annular. An annular eclipse is caused by the passing of the moon directly across the surface of the sun, therefore, Monday's eclipse will only be annular in a path about as wide as that of the total eclipse. The area south of the path and the area north of the path will only be in partial eclipse.

TWENTY-FIVE ARE LISTED IN BALLOT TAKEN YESTERDAY

Student Body and Faculty Interviewed For Preferences.

(By Edward French)

To be tapped for membership in the Order of the Golden Fleece is considered the highest honor that can come to a Carolina man. It is taken to be an indication of his outstanding achievements during the time that he is a student, in addition to being a stamp of outstanding ability or talent along several lines; namely, mental, physical and moral. A candidate's personality and his ability as a mixer are also strong considerations.

A Fleece man, theoretically at least, should embody at least a majority of these qualifications. In the past, as is inevitable in all human organizations, men have been admitted to the order who appeared to the campus mind to be undeserving of the honor, and likewise men have gone untapped about whose qualifications there seemed to be no doubt. On the whole, however, those who really deserved the distinction have been admitted to membership in the order.

It is altogether highly commendable that the members of the Fleece spend so many weeks in deliberation over those they intend to tap. A member of the order is obligated to consider each man in the entire student body regardless of prejudice or affiliation. Each Fleece member should vote on men not according to his personal reaction but according to the amount of service the man has rendered the student body as well as on a

THIRTEEN TAKEN INTO HOLY GRAIL

Yearly Selection of Juniors and Sophomores Takes Place.

Thirteen sophomore and junior leaders of the undergraduate student body were inducted last night into the Order of the Holy Grail in the annual canvass of the campus for men of high attainment and character. The selection is accounted the highest honor obtainable by sophomores.

The initiates are: William Bridgers, Theron Brown, John Clinard, Oscar Dressler, Fred Ferguson, Noah Goodridge, Hamilton H. Hobgood, Steve Marsh, K. C. Ramsay, Carlyle Sitterson, Clarence Weeks, Haywood Weeks and Burgess Whitehead.

The number chosen follows the custom set by the order in its first days on the campus. When possible, in alternate

Decrease Reported In Dormitory Store Sales

Nearly every dormitory store operator on the campus reports a noticeable decrease in sales this quarter. Although this is the first year that the dormitory store system has operated, business for the whole year has been very good, despite the present decline. Of the three quarters, however, the spring term has shown for its operators the least profit per month. In the fall quarter Old East netted for its operators approximately $85 per month to top the list in sales; while the managers of the store in Carr dormitory reported an estimated profit of $45 each month to trail the sales. The majority of the stores yielded a profit of $60 per month, roughly speaking. The high average for the fall quarter is attributed to the fact that most of the dormitories were fully occupied and that the novelty of the stores attracted more purchasers.

The winter quarter showed a decrease in sales of the stores as has the spring quarter so far. Steele and Old East took the lead these two terms, each reporting a gain of approximately $50 for the last month. Carr and "I" dormitories report the greatest decrease, the past month yielding their operators an estimated gain of only $10. Managers of stores in both of these dormitories give as reasons for the small profit the fact that their stores have not been operating daily as many hours as the stores in other dormitories, since business did not demand it. For the fall and winter quarters Carr depended upon the medical students for an appreciable number of customers, but this quarter the change in schedules of these students has cut off to some extent their purchases.

Several reasons for the decrease in sales have been given. The operators of stores in the two quadrangles state that quite a few boys moved to fraternity houses and to Old East, Old West, and Steele, since these dormitories are more centrally located. A number of the managers said that the students are "just plumb broke." However it is the general opinion of the operators that business will pick up since many students study harder after mid-term and consequently refresh themselves more frequently. Several managers stated that their stores were literally swamped during examination week. As the school year comes to a close more accurate results will be reported.

Tar Heel Man Discovers Scandal In I Dorm Store

(By Alan Lowenstein)

Yesterday the Tar Heel sent Jim, the office boy, over to "I" dormitory to investigate alleged incompetence on the part of the managers of the dormitory store. The owners, J. C. Williams and Beatty Rector, from Asheville, gave him complete access to the secret files of the partnership.

After spending four hours in hunting through a mass of papers of all descriptions which included love letters to our red-headed Magazine editor, Di Senate inaugural addresses, chewing gum wrappers, various Paris style magazines with and without models, he came upon what looked like laundry slips and what were labeled "account of the aforementioned owed to aftermentioned for such matters as the purchase of human digestive materials." Whether the efficient managers of this store permitted the office boy to delve into the files for fear of fearless publicity unfavorable to them in the Tar Heel, or whether they were totally ignorant of what was in the files is a matter of question.

After much trouble the office boy found that the store was owed since the beginning of the winter quarter exactly $140.61 by students most of whom have moved out of the dormitory. He also found that the amount of goods sold totaled up to $140.61. By a strange coincidence, there was no account of any income whatsoever. The Tar Heel calls upon the managers of the store to declare publicly what income they have received or file a statement of bankruptcy.

Beatty Rector is now taking but one meal a day and Storekeeper Williams has been forced to cut down to two the number of shaves per quarter, due to inability to buy shaving cream.

On the other hand, the Everett inhabitants are going around very happily and seem very prosperous. They are always flushed with money as well as being continually supplied with candy and eats. Despite this display of food, their purses never seem to empty in the least. The only outward difference is the increase in pencils used in the store to mark down accounts and money owed. This, how-
