

TAR HEEL TENNIS MEN STILL HOT

Beat Deacons By 9-0 Score; Makes Seventh Consecutive Victory.

The Tar Heel tennis team gained its seventh consecutive victory here yesterday by white-washing the visiting Wake Forest aggregation for nine matches. The Carolina team has been going great guns so far this season, and none of its opponents have succeeded in obtaining more than two individual matches in any team match.

Hendlin (C) had an easy time disposing of Vernon (WF) 6-0, 6-0. Hendlin was placing the ball with great accuracy and Vernon could not break through to win even a single game.

Captain Merritt (C) played a steady game to trim Sikes 6-2, 6-0. Merritt played a very steady game, Sikes being unable to play consistently enough to press him.

Liskin (C) ran through Egleston for a quick 6-0, 6-1 win. Liskin played a careful game, letting his opponent make the errors, and Egleston could win only one of his services before losing the match.

Graham (C) met a tough man in Griffin of Wake Forest, and was forced to three sets in order to win. Griffin won the first set by taking the offensive and rushing the net as often as he could. Graham got his eye on the ball in the second set and passed Griffin repeatedly at the net. In the final set both players went on the defensive, and Graham proved to be the steadier player by taking the set 6-3.

Palmore (C) defeated Cobb 6-3, 8-6 in a long match. After losing the first set, the Deacon player settled down, but could not outsteady Palmore who came from behind and took the last set 8-6.

Baggs (C) had some trouble in the first set against Fletcher, but after a long struggle he was able to win 8-6. The Deacon player slowed down in the second set, and Baggs took advantage of this opportunity to run out the set 6-1.

Hendlin and Liskin, Carolina's left-handed sophomore pair, met unexpected opposition in Vernon and Sikes of Wake Forest, and were forced to three sets to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-3. The Wake Forest couple won all of their services in the first set, and showed some fine team work to win the set quite easily. After trailing at 2-0 in the second set, Hendlin and Liskin finally got going and ran off six straight games to take the set 6-2. The Wake Forest pair fought hard in the final set and succeeded in tying the score at 3-3, before going down before the steady stroking of Hendlin and Liskin.

Merritt and Palmore (C) defeated Egleston and Cobb 6-3, 6-4 in a hard match.

Graham and Browne (C) found Frank and Fred Fletcher of Wake Forest a hard team to beat, but their playing was a little too good for the Deacon pair. The final score was 6-3, 6-4.

JINX CAMPS ON TAR HEEL TRAIL

Nine Loses 7-8 Despite Out-hitting Wake Forest Team.

Old Man Jinx camped on the trail of the Tar Heels here yesterday afternoon, and after out-hitting the Deacons from Wake Forest and missing two good chances to sew up the game with a single hit, the Carolina nine dropped an 8-7 decision to the visitors.

Heavy hitting on both sides, with three homers, a double and a triple being poled out, kept the outfielders on the run and two pitchers for either team were needed to furnish the batters with something to swing at. Allen, Reynolds and Benton for the Deacons, and Whitehead, Potter and House for Carolina hit for .500 or more, with all except the first of these pounding the moundsmen for extra bases.

The fifth was the big inning for Wake Forest. A single by Cobb, a home run by Benton, a double by Gillespie and another homer by Reynolds cleaned the bases and left the Deacons with a five-run lead.

Henry House's triple to left center brought in Maus for the first Tar Heel tally in the opening session at bat, while the fourth, fifth and seventh added two each to the home team's count. In the fourth Lufty singled himself to first, took third on Potter's hit to left field and scored when Potter took second and the shortstop missed the throw from home. Wright rolled one to the pitcher who ill-chose his play and tried to catch Potter going to third, letting both men take their bases. Wright and Potter then executed a neat double steal, with the former going to second and the latter sliding across the plate to be safe by a close decision.

Successive singles by Whitehead, Maus, House and Lufty in the next inning added a couple of runs to Carolina's total and a homer by Potter in the seventh with Jackson on third fell one short of tying the score at eight-all.

Lefty Lanning stayed on the mound for the Deacons until the seventh, fanning seven men, but relinquished his job to Newsome after Potter's round-trip clout. Longest gave way to Edwards after the extra base barrage counting four runs in the fifth. Edwards held the Deacons scoreless for his half of the game, allowing but two hits in 4 2-3 innings.

Four Southern Universities Adopt

FIFTY COLLEGES IN NATION PLAY GAME

Lacrosse As New Varsity Sport

(By Nathan Volkman)

Lacrosse has for a number of years been making slow but sure headway in the collegiate world, and each year is assuming greater proportions as more and more college teams take the game up.

According to a special dispatch to the Baltimore Evening Sun, "Lacrosse now outranks every other spring sport on the Penn athletic curriculum, having surpassed even rowing in popularity." Not only is this the case at Penn, but at most of the other colleges where it has been introduced.

In the United States at present the game is going strong in the east, progressing rapidly in the south, and swinging towards the west. The state of Maryland, where the game has flourished since the early '80's, leads the entire country in lacrosse activity.

In the lacrosse movement, Carolina, a leader in southern collegiate activities, has remained lethargic and uninterested; while Georgia, Georgia Tech, Maryland and Virginia have assumed southern leadership in the lacrosse world, the latter having engaged in a match with an Oxford-Cambridge team only a few days ago.

A brief review the game may, perhaps, aid in stimulating the interest of University athletic officials and the student body in the game.

According to historic belief, the Indians were the first to play the game. With the Indians lacrosse was almost a religious rite, the game often being preceded by ceremonies and fasting. The best player of the tribe was frequently elevated to a high and respectful position because of his prowess in the game.

The Indians had no set standard rules for the game, no set number of players, no set number of goals, and no set distance between goals, and the game must, therefore, have been exceedingly more difficult than the present day game.

The origin of the name is doubtful, one explanation having it that a missionary likened the stick used by the Indians in playing the game to a bishop's crozier, therefore calling the game la crosse. Another is to the effect that a group of white men on Lac Ile a La Crosse in northern Saskatchewan once watched the game played between two Indian teams and called it after the name of the island. The former is believed to be the better explanation.

It was in 1840 that the game was first taken up by white men, when a lacrosse team was organized in Montreal. The sport developed rapidly in Canada, so that by 1867 it had become the Canadian national game, which position it still holds in Canadian sportsdom.

From Canada it spread rapidly to the United States and England, where its invasion resulted in the organization of a large number of independent clubs and college teams. In the United States Maryland early became the center of lacrosse activity and has since held that position in the lacrosse world.

Although Harvard, Columbia, and New York University were the first colleges in this country to take up the game, Baltimoreans are said to have introduced the game at Princeton, Yale, Pennsylvania, Stevens and Lehigh. With these colleges as a nucleus, the spread of the game in the collegiate world was inevitable.

As yet lacrosse does not draw crowds even comparable to football or professional baseball, but it is interesting to note that in 1884 a game between an all-American team and an English team played before King Edward VII drew a crowd of 44,000. The American record is 11,000, which was the attendance at the finals of the Olympic playoff between Johns Hopkins and the University of Maryland in 1928.

The sentiment of the people of Holland, who saw the lacrosse contest between Johns Hopkins and an English team at the Olympic games in 1928, is well expressed by the following extract from the "Algemeen Handelsblad" (Amsterdam):

"Lacross, as it was demonstrated, gives the impression of being an interesting, stimulating, exciting and fast game. It demands great speed, quick decision, initiative on the part of the individual, a world of backbone, and a firm hand."

This spring over 50 college teams and 25 independent clubs are actively engaged in the sport, while a large increase in the numbers is expected next year. As the qualities of the game—its speed and excitement, its lack of involved technical rules, and the fact that it is one of the few college games which requires no extensive training—become better known, the game will find a place on every college sport curriculum and an interested public to support the game.

More than $800,000 worth of golf balls were imported into the United States last year.

CAROLINA LOSES IN GOLF TOURNEY

Alabama's Crimson Tide golf team won the Southern Conference intercollegiate golf tourney at Shades Valley Country Club, Birmingham, Ala., Thursday, with an aggregate team score of 614. The Florida 'Gators' golf team was second in this match. Thirty-six men represented Alabama, Florida, Vanderbilt, Sewanee, Georgia Tech, Tulane and North Carolina.

Sam Perry of Alabama won low medal score for the qualifying in 142 taking two par 71's on the difficult Shades Valley course. Bill Duckwell of the Florida aggregation took second place with a 146. Perry is favored to win the individual championship.

Meade Willis of North Carolina qualified but was eliminated by Ed Herrin of Georgia Tech 5 up and 4 to go. Benny Goodes of North Carolina was eliminated in the quarter-finals by Bill Legwen of Georgia 4 up and 3 to go.

Fraternities Entertain

This week-end brought many guests and affairs to the Carolina Inn. On Friday night the Chi Phi fraternity entertained at a dinner, and from 6 to 9 p. m. the Thirteen Club gave a tea-dance.

The Sigma Phi Sigmas and the Sigma Nus both entertained last night. The Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity gave a dinner before the dance at the home of President Chase, while the Sigma Nus had a banquet for 80 guests.
