PARKER FAVORED BY DI SENATORS

Jack Dungan Elected Treasurer For Next Year; Banquet To Be Held Soon.

The most important feature of the Di Senate program last night was the discussion of the confirmation of Judge Parker as associate justice of the United States supreme court. After arguments were given by those who supported each side, the senate voted 22-3 in favor of his confirmation.

The election of treasurer for next year was held. Senator Jack Dungan was chosen to succeed Senator Pat Patterson, the present incumbent.

Plans were discussed for a joint meeting of the Di and the Phi to be held next Tuesday night. The Di will be host on this occasion. The topic is: "Resolved, That the Di and Phi favor the bill now before the legislature making 'bumming' a misdemeanor.

Senator Dungan reported for the banquet committee that plans were as yet incomplete. He read a menu of the Carolina Inn which will probably be accepted. Senators Wood and Fleming-Jones were added to the committee which already consisted of Senators Dungan, Patterson and Dratler.

Mr. A. Liebowitz and Mr. C. Johnson were admitted as new members at this meeting. President Rector spoke to them after their acceptance.

FARRAND VISITS U. N. C. AND DUKE

To Conduct Conferences In The Humanities.

Max Farrand, research director of the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, will spend from Wednesday, May 7, to Sunday, May 11, in Chapel Hill and Durham for conferences with those in the University of North Carolina and in Duke engaged in advanced research in the field of the Humanities. The Huntington is one of the world's great libraries and is attempting to become a research institution for the Humanities comparable to some of the great research institutions in the sciences. Mr. Farrand comes to tell students in the two universities interested and engaged in research beyond the doctoral dissertation stage about the resources and plans of the library and to get a first hand idea of the research being carried on at North Carolina and Duke so as to establish relations that may later be of mutual advantage.

"The field of research at the library," says Mr. Farrand, "the development of civilization in England and America—is really as broad as the world, and includes every discipline or subject in the University. We are, however, leaving the sciences out of account as the California Institute of Technology and the

Two Corrections

Upon the complaint of Mr. Robert G. Dawes, special dramatic reviewer, whose criticism of "Thorns and Orange Blossoms" appeared in the Tar Heel yesterday morning, the Tar Heel wishes to state that the following phrase in Mr. Dawes' contribution—"Messrs. MacMillan, McKie, and Olsen did themselves exceeding proud"—was omitted.

The proprietor of the Campus Confectionery, Mr. Jeff Thomas, complains that the statement in yesterday's Tar Heel that, "For a while the building was rented by a Greek cafe and cafeteria combined, but on account of business troubles, it soon closed its doors" is a misstatement. He says that his place of business did not go bankrupt as the Tar Heel statement implied, but that it had been sold to a Mr. Bowden who went bankrupt.

BROGDEN SPEAKS TO SENIOR CLASS

Emphasizes Honest Day's Work; Class Votes Gift To University.

An address by Justice W. J. Brogden of the North Carolina supreme court, who stressed the importance of "an honest day's work," featured the farewell smoker of the University senior class in Swain hall here Monday night.

Giving expression to his fondness for Biblical illustrations, Justice Brogden, an alumnus of the University, meted out advice and experience to the Carolina seniors "as an older brother to one who is younger."

"Fifty years ago," he stated, "all lecturers and commencement speakers talked about culture and its fineness. When it found that such teaching did not fit, they began talking about leadership. But this was a philosophy of self-interest.

"Twenty-five years ago," he continued, "they began talking about service, and we had more service than we could do anything with. Then came the time when utility was the word. One should go to college because it paid. But this was still a philosophy of self-interest and did not add to the zest, enthusiasm and pleasure of life."

"Today," Justice Brogden stated, "it's not breadth of learning, depth of thought, or utility" that make for the greatest social harmony and happiness, but "the ability to do an honest day's work."

For after all, "it's doing the hard, irksome, routine tasks well that adds to the glory and charm of life," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Ralph C. Greene, president of the senior class.

At the business session that followed the address, the class voted to place as a permanent gift to the University a bronze fountain, bearing the name and date of the class, at the head of the stairs leading to the main reading room in the new library at a cost of $300.

In addition, it was voted that

PHI OVERWHELMS PHILIPPINE BILL

Representatives Stanly, Kelly, Jackson and Hobgood Defeat Independence Measure.

The Phi Assembly last night rejected by a two-thirds vote the resolution sponsored by Representative Nazareno of the Philippine Islands which asked immediate and complete independence for the Islands.

The bill was defeated by an onslaught of opposition led by Representatives Stanly, Kelly, Jackson and Hobgood. Those favoring the measure were Representatives Nazareno, Speight and Uzzell.

Representative Stanly pointed out the 30 years of successful relations between the United States and the Philippines. Representatives Jackson and Kelly gave information concerning the present government and progress of the Philippines under the supervision of the United States.

Representative Jackson outlined the extent that the Islands are governed by the United States, and Kelly pointed out to the assembly the progress in education and the upbuilding of the Islands under the control of the United States. Representative Hobgood favored domestic independence that they should receive complete independence.

Representative Nazareno pointed out in introducing the bill that the Filipinos were universally for independence. Representative Speight contended that the United States should discontinue her imperialistic policy toward the Philippines.

Following the discussion the Phi, after a recommendation from the Di Senate, favored a discussion on the present proposal before the state legislature forbidding "bumming" by a state law.

GRAHAM SPEAKS TO PRE-LAWYERS

Gives Interesting View On Parker Decision.

Speaking to a small but appreciative group of pre-law students Monday night in the law building, Professor Frank Graham outlined the steps in the coming of the industrial revolution to North Carolina, and the part of the lawyer in dealing with problems resulting therefrom. He showed the need for study of the industrial revolution in its relation to law and legal developments. Designating this change as the latest chapter in the march of power engines around the world, the speaker traced its rise, value and consequences, and resulting need for adjustments. Referring to the experiences of England and New England, he brought out the advantages of profiting by a study and avoidance, as far as possible, of difficulties encountered by them. The way of adjustment is law making and judicial interpretation in the light of changing conditions.

In an interesting aside discussion, Mr. Graham gave his opinion that Judge Parker was merely bound by the decisions of the supreme court in the Red Jacket case, and that he did not, in all probability, agree entirely with the common law principle involved.

GLEE CLUB WILL SING TOMORROW

As a feature of the national Music Week celebration here, the University glee club will give its annual home performance in the Playmaker theatre tomorrow night at 8:15.

The concert promises to be one of the finest given here by the group, which has just returned from a very successful tour of the southeast. General admission will be 75 cents.

Last Wednesday evening the club gave a concert in the Italian garden of the beautiful and exclusive Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C., and the appearance was a marked success musically. It was highly commended by an audience regretably small.

The following is quoted from the Washington Evening Star: "The Glee Club of the University of North Carolina lived up to its reputation in the program presented last night before an enthusiastic audience. The director deserves high commendation for his training of the group in fine phrasing, excellent pianissimo singing, clean attack, and clear enunciation." Similar comments have appeared in every place where the club sang.

The same program which was used on the recent trip will be given here for the enjoyment of those who like good music well rendered. A feature of the program will be a group of songs by American composers, without which, states Mr. Dyer, the director, no program is complete. The American group, representing the higher type of music, has been highly applauded wherever heard.

Dr. Dyer and C. B. Overman, business manager, both regret that the glee club cannot afford to give a free concert in honor

HOODED FIGURES STALK IN AISLES SEARCHING MEN

Banquet for Neophytes of Order Is Held At Carolina Inn.

The Order of the Golden Fleece tapped nine Carolina men at an impressive ceremony held in the Methodist church last night. Preceding the tapping there was an introductory speech by Professor Horace Williams, an old Fleece member, and an address by President Chase, an honorary member of the Order.

Gordon Gray, Jason of the organization, introduced Professor Williams as an old Fleece man and one who has been always closely connected with the Order and its ideals. Dr. Williams spoke briefly on how leaders in history had the character and courage to live up to their ideals. "The Fleece never tapped a man who was lacking in character," said Professor Williams. "Galelio, Darwin, and Washington were leaders in their respective fields. The Fleece taps those who show the unique qualities of leadership."

Professor Williams then introduced Dr. Chase, who made a few introductory remarks on the Fleece tapping as a distinctive event of the University year. This was followed by an address on "Leadership in the State and South of Tomorrow."

The speaker recalled the first time that he came to the University campus twenty years ago as a young man out to work for the first time in the South. He found Carolina a unique sort of school rather shut off from the rest of the world. Durham was a two hour drive by buggy in those days. Lights were out at midnight, and main street was very dusty in summer and muddy in winter.

"There are two schools of thought and ideas opposing each other in the South," he asserted, "one that the South will always be sectional, and the other that it is just as much divided and varied as any other part of the country. There is no such thing as the Solid South any longer. Modern methods of industries and transportation are forming a connecting link between the South and the rest of the nation. Southern states are as widely diversified as any other states. The old tendency of the South living in self-contentment has been replaced by a heritage of independence and progress."

He closed saying, "This University stands for men of power and ability regardless of affiliations."

Following this two hooded figures stalked the aisles of the church tapping nine men in the following order: Ed Hamer, Joe Eagles, "Puny" Harper, Clyde Dunn, Pat Patterson, Noah Goodridge, Marion Alexander, Archie Allen and Will Yarbrough. Immediately following the ceremonies, a banquet honoring the new Fleece men was held at the Carolina Inn.
