

GAMECOCKS LOSE TO CAROLINA MEN ON DIAMOND HERE

First Game Since '26 Results In 3-1 Win For Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels and the South Carolina baseball teams resumed their rivalry yesterday afternoon for the first time since 1926. The game added another victory to the Blue and White 1930 schedule. The game was a close one, but the Tar Heels came through with Lufty's home run in the second and with Brown and Wright scoring in the seventh, chalking up a 3-1 win to the credit of the University.

Whitehead, Lufty and Wright led the home team's hitting, Whitehead getting two singles, Lufty a home run, and Wright a single and a triple. Harley led the Gamecock's hitting by getting two singles. He was followed by Vaughn, Edens and Laval who got one single each. Stoddard started the mound work for the Gamecocks, but was relieved in the sixth by Porter.

Crouch of Carolina relieved Potter in center field in the eighth.

Fleming of Carolina pitched a good game, allowing the South Carolina nine only six hits. No time during the game did he show any weakness or get himself in a hole that he couldn't get out of.

Vaughn played a good game at second for the Gamecocks and also did good at the plate as well as steal several bases.

CAVALIERS LEAD DIAMOND SERIES

Virginia Credited With 11 "Clean Sweeps" To Nine For Tar Heels In 36 Years Of Play.

The University baseball squad, meeting the Virginia Cavaliers on Emerson field here tomorrow at 4 o'clock and in Greensboro's memorial stadium Saturday at 3 o'clock, will have a chance to pull a "clean sweep" of the 37th annual Carolina-Virginia diamond series.

During 36 years the Tar Heels and Cavaliers have fought out their differences on the diamond, playing from one to three games each year. Nineteen times out of the more than three decades one team or the other has swept the annual series. Virginia shows eleven of the "clean sweeps," while the Tar Heels are credited with eight of the unblemished slates.

The Cavaliers have already lost that sort of chance this year, for the Tar Heels won the opener of the three-game series in Charlottesville by an 8-5 count, and that victory gives Carolina a chance for a ninth clean record.

The most famous of all the sweep series came in 1922 when three crack Tar Heel hurlers, Manly Lewellyn, Herman Bryson and "Lefty" Wilson, turned the Cavaliers back in three straight shut-out games. The three musketeers of the mound took a game apiece and won by scores of 6-0, 4-0, and 7-0.

Shields, Tar Heel rookie, held the Cavaliers to 9 hits for 8 innings in the first game this year, and kept those well scattered. Fleming replacing him and pitching hitless ninth-inning ball when the Cavaliers threatened a rally. Fleming and Shields, with the veteran Wright and the promising rookie Paul Edwards, are the most probable mound selections for the closing games of the important series Friday and Saturday.

SPORTS CHATTER

By Hugh Wilson

Again we burst forth in advocacy of the addition of an extra sport to the University's schedule—two of them, in fact. North Carolina being a seacoast state having many rivers, creeks, lakes, swamps, etc., there are no doubt a great many native Tar Heels in the student body who are proficient in the art of playing fish—that is, swimming. In addition to these, there are plenty of swimmers from such a "wet" town as New York. The question then is, "Why not have a swimming team? True, the University has no pool of its own which is adequate for this purpose, but an arrangement might be made with the owners of Sparrow's pool for its use for such a purpose. This pool is of adequate length, being some 60 feet long. Certainly we should not allow ourselves to be outdone by almost every college of equal size in the country and by many much smaller colleges and preparatory schools, and we should especially endeavor to put a team in the field to compete with such close neighbors and rivals as Virginia, South Carolina and Duke—all smaller schools than ours; and of equal wealth at the time of the construction of their pools. Plans are under way for an adequate gymnasium and pool, but why wait in disgrace while plans lag and money arrives slowly?"

The other game advocated is merely for intramural purposes. It seems to have invaded the campus for several weeks—in fact, it is said to have started at the Chi Psi fraternity house last fall, and is being played in so many places on the campus now that the campus is hardly safe for pedestrians. The ancient game of horseshoes is, of course, the game referred to. If some of the "barnyard golf" artists will only grow beards and learn to chew tobacco, perhaps the athletic authorities will set aside some place and let the enthusiasts have an intramural league, and then sane students will be able to go out of their respective dorms and frat houses without fear of having ringers thrown around their necks.

It looks as if K. O. Sells will wish that he never had left New York's "Great White Way" after his fight with Ad Warren in Greensboro Friday. Ad, tanned by the sun and looking to be hard and full of pep, has been working out in the Tin Can this week and looks much better than at any time this winter or spring. Sells will probably want to "sell out" long before the fight is over.

Wrestling Captain

Above is shown a picture of "Shorty" Stallings, captain-elect of the University's wrestling team for 1931. Stallings, who wrestled in the 125-pound class during the season of 1930, has an exceedingly fine record during the season and is deserving of great credit, although he failed to win the southern conference championship. "Shorty" won every match in which he competed during the dual meet season, winning on falls over the Navy and Princeton wrestlers and winning the majority of the remainder of his bouts in the same decisive manner. A few days before the Conference tournament he injured his arm.

This injury handicapped him greatly, and was in a large way responsible for his losing to the V.M.I. 125-pounder, the only defeat which he suffered last year. Stallings is considered a great bet for a conference championship next year.

WARREN GETTING READY FOR FIGHT IN GREENSBORO

Former Varsity Boxing Star Takes Daily Workouts In Tin Can.

Ad Warren, University alumnus and one time star of the Tar Heel boxing team, has been working out in the Tin Can this week in preparation for his ten-round bout with K. O. Walt Sells of New York, which will be held in the Yellow Cab Company arena at Greensboro tomorrow night.

In his workouts here, Ad seemed to be in wonderful shape, appearing much harder and more aggressive than when he trained here last month before his fight in Wilmington with "Big Boy" Roper, Indianapolis, whom he knocked out in two rounds. In addition to improving his physical condition, he seems to have speeded up his boxing without losing any of his old punch, as his sparring partners will agree.

Little is known about Sells' ability as a fighter, but he has been matched with Jack De Mave and Phil Mercurio who are well known throughout the east and middle west, and worked as Max Schmeling's chief sparring partner on the "German Dempsey's" barnstorming exhibition tour last year. At least, he has had enough experience to give Ad plenty of trouble.

K. O. Conway, under whose promotion the fight will be held, had originally scheduled Ger-

CO-ED RACQUETEERS WIN MATCHES AT RALEIGH

The co-ed racqueteers returned Monday afternoon from a trip to Raleigh to play the woman's tennis club there. Lil Jackson defeated Suzanne Tucker 6-1, 6-2. Sidney Carr lost to Mrs. Harry Fain 6-1, 6-0. Ida Curry won one set, 6-3, lost the second, 11-13, and the third set was called on account of rain with the score 3-0 in her favor.

many Heller, another New York fighter, as Warren's opponent for this fight, but Heller was forced to withdraw because of an injured foot.

Ad has been taking strenuous workouts, boxing several rounds daily with a large squad of sparring partners composed of Ralph Starnes, Duke varsity ringman; Archie Allen and John Warren of the Carolina varsity; Odell Sapp, frosh coach; Landis and Wilson of the freshman team; and also doing the usual ropeskipping, shadow boxing and bag punching.

Ad says that he chooses to work out here instead of in a pro gym because he can get a number of sparring partners.

Knitting Needles that help you swim

THE four inches extra stretch in Spalding Swimming Suits goes right back to the needles that knitted them. Special spring needles are used—not the ordinary latch needles that make a less elastic, lively garment. And the yarn in Spalding suits is Bradford spun—selected for its extra strength and extra stretch.

It is this extra stretch that makes it a joy to swim in a Spalding suit—that gives you such freedom of movement no matter how energetically you disport in the water. And we're particularly glad to feature Spalding suits because they always hold their shape, always fit snugly no matter how long they are worn.
