

Trackmen Close Season With Conference Title

FARMER LEADING SCORER ON TEAM

Tar Heels Take Conference and State Crowns; Lose Only One Dual Meet; Set Carolina and Tech Relay Records.

TAKE 9TH STATE TITLE

The flying sophomore Charlie Farmer led the point-getters for the University of North Carolina's Southern Conference track champions during the highly successful season just closed, an official summary of season results disclosed today.

Farmer scored 100 1-2 points. He won the 100 and 220 dashes in every dual meet, won the 220 at the Southern Conference meet and placed in the 100, and tied both Southern dash records.

Another sophomore was second honor man, Theron Brown rolling up 85 points on consistent work in the discus, javelin and broadjump. Minor Barkley, senior distance ace, came third with 65 points gathered on fine races in the half mile and mile.

The season was considered one of the best of a number of fine track seasons Carolina has had in the nine-year regime of Coach R. A. Fetzer, who is generally regarded as the dean of Southern track.

Besides winning the Southern title, the Tar Heels took their 9th straight State title, and won every dual meet except from the strong Princeton team by at least 25 points. Their victories included the strong Penn squad and Washington and Lee's Southern Indoor Champions.

In the State meet the Fetzer legion triumphed by a tremendous margin, scoring 76.8 points while N. C. State came second with 26, trailed by Davidson, Duke, Wake Forest and High Point in order named.

In the Southern meet the Tar Heels scored first on 40 1-2 points, followed by Georgia with 28, and trailed in order by Mississippi A. & M., Tulane, Auburn, L. S. U., Tennessee, N. C. State, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Kentucky, Maryland, and Duke.

Charlie Farmer and the Tar Heel relay teams also carried off principal honors at the Georgia Tech relays, where the Tar Heel entries set four of six new records.

Seven University records went down before their stellar work, and an eighth mark was tied. Farmer tied the 100-yard mark at 9.8 seconds and lowered the 220-mark to 21.2. Other new records were credited to the half and mile relay teams, and to Barkley, half-mile, 1:56.5; Neiman, broadjump, 22 feet 5 3-4; Bagby, high jump, 6 feet 1-4 inch; Arnold, vault 13 feet.

The other leading Tar Heel point-winners, trailing Farmer, Brown and Barkley, were Slusser 54, Gay 45, Perry 41 1-2, Arnold 33 1-3, Baucom 33, Bagby 33, Neiman 32 1-3, Adkins 32, Weil 24, Lowry 22, Johnson 20 1-2, Nims 18 1-4.

Looking Them Over

by Browning Roach

The recent fiasco of the Warren-Middlekauf bout scheduled at Durham leaves ring authorities still in the dark as to the relative standing of the ex-collegiate pugilists. The four outstanding ex-college boys in the ring game are Marriner of Illinois, Middlekauf of Florida, Warren of North Carolina and Hansen of Nebraska, all of whom fight in the heavyweight division.

Hansen having been knocked out several times in recent bouts, Marriner's record carries a trifle more prestige than any of the others of the college quartette, while the winner of the Warren-Middlekauf fight—had it taken place—would have been advanced a notch or two in his professional standing.

Besides Add Warren, the card for the fight at Durham carried the names of four other Carolina men. Ox Shuford, class of '29 and football star, scored a decisive knockout over Bill Suggs, another Carolina man and a fullback in football, while Add Warren's brother John, and Obie Davis, both class of '31 and lettermen in boxing, saw action in the preliminaries. Carolina men almost had a corner on that ring program.

A glance over the records shows that Carolina's performances in athletics for the past year were not at all bad. In football the Tar Heels made it nine out of ten games, scoring four shut-out victories, allowing only one team to register more than one touchdown against them while they themselves scored more than 40 points on half their opponents and never scored less than twice in any game, and piling up 346 points to be second in the nation in scoring while letting their opponents get an average of six points a game.

In basketball the Tar Heels did a little better than break even with ten wins and nine losses. In baseball they turned in a similar record of 13 games won and 12 lost. In boxing, Carolina had a successful season, losing only two of eight matches to the strong Penn State and Florida boxers.

Out of seven track meets Carolina came through six of them with large-score victories and lost only to the Princeton Tigers, who boast an unusually strong squad of individual and collective stars. In addition, the Tar Heels captured the state and southern conference crowns and set four new records in the Georgia Tech relays. Carolina records in the 220, half-mile run, broad jump, high jump and pole vault were set by members of the 1930 track team and the 100 yard dash record was equaled.

For the fourth consecutive time Carolina annexed the Southern conference title in cross country, and won two out of three dual meets. The tennis team went through a very successful season, winning 12 dual matches and tying one and holding within its ranks the state titles for both singles and doubles. In golf, men representing Carolina won seven out of nine matches played, with the margin of victory in both matches which were lost being 9 1-2 to 8 1-2.

Winning 10 athletic championships in one year is no ordinary feat, but teams representing the University of North Carolina during the collegiate year 1929-30 have done just that.

The Tar Heels lay claim to three Southern Conference titles, namely, the track and cross-country championships and the tea mtitle in tennis, and to seven state championships, namely, football, cross-country, boxing, wrestling, track, tennis, and golf. That makes the total of 10.

The record is believed to be as good as any in the South for the year 1929-30 and to rank with the best in the country.

It is the second consecutive year that the Tar Heels have won ten championships. Last year they won the Southern Conference titles in cross-country and boxing and eight state championships.

Pictured above are the captains of the championship teams and two men who have been chiefly responsible for directing the University's successful athletic policy—Charles T. Woollen, Graduate Manager of Athletics, and Robert A. Fetzer, Director of Athletics.

The captains are Ray Farris, of Charlotte, football; Minor Barkley, Statesville, cross-country; Archie Allen, Raleigh, boxing; Wayne Woodard, Bryson City, wrestling; Dave Nims, Mount Holly, track; William Merritt, Chapel Hill, tennis, and Charlie Chatham, Elkin, golf.

Farris led the football team to a 346-point season and to second place in the nation's scoring. He was unanimously chosen All-Southern guard, and was named on some All-American selections.

Barkley led the cross-country team to a fourth consecutive Southern title, and set a new State record for the half-mile.

Allen led the boxers to another State title and to a fourth place in the Conference tournament. He was Southern Conference 135-pound champion year before last and a 145-pound finalist last year.

Woodard captained the wrestlers to a State title, wrestled 135 pounds and did consistently good work, although handicapped for the month of August. This will make the fourth year that Wardlaw has taken an orchestra to Europe. The group has not been completed as yet, but will be composed of boys of musical ability registered in the University.

Southern Education Conference Will Be Held Here In Fall

The Rosenwald Fund has given the University $3,000 to enable it to hold the Southern Conference on Education again next fall.

The conference has been held here for the two past years, but the recent reduction in the University's budget threatened its suspension.

fore, intramural athletics has reached a point of interest in which it actually rivalled varsity competition in off-seasons for major sports. In the fall dormitory and fraternity leagues had teams representing them in tag football, cross country and track. In the winter intramurals consisted of basketball in the main, while in the spring interest in intramural athletics reached a climax as competition grew keen in boxing, wrestling, track, baseball, tennis, fencing, horseshoes and decathlon. It is estimated that nearly forty percent of the men at the University this year took part in intramural athletics of some form.
