

DAILY TAR HEEL STAFF ORGANIZES IN MEET TONIGHT

Reporters, Editorial and Feature Writers to Meet At Seven.

Tonight at 7 o'clock there will be a meeting of the staff of the Daily Tar Heel in its office in the rear of Alumni building. All former members of the staff are requested to be present, and all new men who are interested in trying out for positions on the staff are asked to report. Previous experience in newspaper work, while desirable, is not at all necessary. All men who have done work on prep school and high school papers are especially desired.

A position on the Tar Heel staff is held an enviable one by Carolina students. Last year, under the leadership of Editor Holder, Managing Editor Yarborough, and Business Manager Alexander, the paper made its first start as a daily publication and was considered a great success by the students, as a vote of confidence by the student body showed.

This year the staff will be led by Will Yarborough as editor, Jack Dungan as managing editor, and "Pat" Patterson as business manager, and indications point toward an even more successful publication this year. The paper has rapidly gained fame in college circles throughout the country. To be a member of the editorial staff, and even of the reportorial staff, is considered an honor on the University campus.

Aside from the distinction to be gained, a wealth of valuable

TIN CAN IS MOST USEFUL BUILDING ON U. N. C. CAMPUS

Huge Tin Structure Is Now Used for Registration, Receptions and Commencement Dances.

By Will Yarborough

It is extremely doubtful if the planners of the Tin Can, the University of North Carolina's large athletic arena, foresaw the usefulness of the structure when they set out to enlarge Carolina's athletic equipment. Certainly few of them could have imagined at that time that it would become just about the most useful building here.

But it has. Condemnation of Memorial Hall last spring left the registration officials without an adequate building for registering the students enrolling here this week. The Tin Can was the solution.

Back in 1923 when Carolina basketball teams were winning titles with monotonous regularity it became evident that Bynum Gymnasium was inadequate. As no money was available for an up-to-date gym, the Tin Can was built. Three hundred feet long and one hundred feet wide the structure was suitable for almost every need of the athletic authorities.

It was completed in January 1924 and dedicated at the Carolina-Mercer basketball game. Carolina won that night 35-23 and continued winning until it had captured its second consecutive Conference title.

Hubert Heffner Is Back From Chicago

Professor Hubert Heffner has returned from a full summer of study at the University of Chicago, where he has been for the past two months or more working in the university library on a history of melodrama which he hopes to publish sometime in the future.

A large part of Professor Heffner's work during the summer consisted of teaching courses in melodrama and comparative drama at Northwestern University, which is near the University of Chicago. Besides doing the work of teaching and working on his history, the University of North Carolina professor also found time to help three graduate students who were attending North Western University.

Professor Heffner stated that he enjoyed his summer's stay at Chicago. The work done by him during the summer months will undoubtedly be of aid to the Carolina Playmakers this coming season.

SELDEN RETURNS TO PLAYMAKERS

Dramatic Group Planning "Bigger and Better Year."

Pointing to the return of Samuel Selden, technical director, from a year of study in New York, and to a wealth of material in the form of new students coming to Carolina especially for courses in playwriting and acting, and numerous former members, both graduate and undergraduate, the Carolina Playmakers are looking forward to an unusual year under the direction of F. H. Koch, director, Hubert Heffner, associate director, and Mr. Selden.

Selden, who has been on leave of absence studying in New York, returns to Chapel Hill from a profitable year. His office was filled last year by Elmer Hall of Massachusetts.

A number of students interested in the type of work the Playmakers are doing and the courses given by Professors Koch, Heffner and Selden, have come to Carolina particularly to take that kind of work. In addition to these, there are a number of Carolina graduates taking playmaking work and there are a number of undergraduates here to do the same.

Mrs. Loretto Carroll Bailey, author of "Job's Kinfolks" and several one-act plays, has just completed another long play and also another one-act play. Professor Hudson, a new member of the faculty in the department of English, has written a one-act play, which the Playmakers expect to use during the coming year.

The schedule now under consideration by the Playmakers for the school year of 1930-31

Business Staff Call

The business department of the Daily Tar Heel will hold its final tryout meeting Sunday night at 7:15 in the basement of the Alumni building. Pat Patterson, business manager, is very anxious to have as many men as possible. This invitation is extended to freshmen as well as upperclassmen.

STATE RED CROSS TO CONVELE HERE

Representatives of State Chapters Will Gather October 8 To Hear Speakers.

Representatives of a number of Red Cross chapters in North Carolina will gather here for a one-day session beginning at 10:30 o'clock, October 8. The meeting will be open to the public and everyone is invited.

The University Extension Division, with Morgan F. Vining, director of short courses and lectures, in charge, is assisting in completing arrangements with Mrs. Elsie Mulliken, national field representative. The Chapel Hill chapter with Colonel Joseph Hyde Pratt as chairman, will act as host to the visitors.

President Frank Graham is personally interested in the success of the Conference and has expressed a desire that all who can will avail themselves of the opportunity of attending it. The conference keynote—"The Red Cross in the Home"—cries out the idea of the "Live-at-Home" program of Governor Gardner. It will be the first meeting of the State Red Cross at Chapel Hill.

Present at the luncheon will be speakers of national prominence, including Miss Mabel Boardman, volunteer executive secretary for the national board of directors in Washington, D. C., President Graham will make an informal address at this time. Judge Winston will be toastmaster.

In the discussions at the afternoon session the problems of the veterans will receive major emphasis. Miss Helen Taylor, Red Cross recreational director at Oteen, will tell of the ex-soldiers quartered in this government hospital.

In conjunction with the adult meeting there will be held a separate conference at 2:00 P. M. for members of the Junior Red Cross. Under the personal guidance of a national representative children from the schools enrolled over the state will conduct their own meeting apart from their elders. Weather permitting they will gather on the campus in front of the new library. Otherwise, their conference will take place in Person Hall.

The day's program will come to a close with an hour's reading by Prof. Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers.

Valentines Moving

The Valentines are moving from North street to Chase avenue near the Pittsboro highway.

Dormitory Socials

Each dormitory on the campus will have a "get-together" meeting at 10:15 Monday night, September 22. The dormitory officers will visit the rooms and collect funds for the purchase of refreshments. The general program for the evening will be election of councilmen for the various floors of the dormitories, explanation of the service rooms, intramural athletic programs, and consideration of particular dormitory problems. These smokers give the men rooming in dormitories an excellent chance to get acquainted with each other. New men are especially urged to turn out for the occasion.

New Y Secretary

The above cut of Edwin Lanier, new self-help secretary at the Y, lay on the ground outside Alumni building for some 18 hours while the Tar Heel staff searched high and low, far and wide, to find it. It was to have appeared with a story about Mr. Lanier in yesterday's paper. As you see, it was found, and here it is—Mr. Lanier.

Y TO COMMENCE YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

First Meeting Comes Off Monday; Freshman Council to Be Organized.

The first meeting of the junior-senior and sophomore Y cabinets will be held tomorrow night in the Y. M. C. A. council rooms at 7:15.

It is the plan of President Hamer that the two cabinets meet in a joint session for the purpose of discussing plans for the year 1930-31. The work and duties of the different committees will also be discussed. The chairmen and members of the several committees, however, will not be appointed until the next meeting, states Hamer.

It is the Y. M. C. A. officials' desire that all old men be present at this opening meeting of the year. All upperclassmen interested in Y work who have not been connected with the association in the past are also requested to attend the Monday night meeting.

Jimmie Kurfes, president of the friendship council last year, has been working with Mr. Lanier, self-help secretary of the Y, for the past few days making plans for the Ex-Hi-Y banquet which is to be held on Friday night, September 26, in the social rooms of the Methodist church. All freshmen who were members of Hi-Y clubs last year and all those interested in Y work will be given opportunity to give in their names at the Y. M. C. A. building some time during the coming week.

Last year there were over 70 freshmen who were present at the Ex-Hi-Y banquet, and the Y. M. C. A. is looking for a larger number to attend the luncheon this year. Officers for the friendship council will be elected at this time.

The program for the dinner will probably consist of one or two talks by a member of the faculty and one of the student leaders on the campus. The Y

Buccaneer Staff To Meet On Monday

The entire staff of the Carolina Buccaneer will meet Monday night in the Buccaneer office, Alumni building basement. The art and editorial departments will convene at 7:15, and the business staff at 7:30. Editor Kermit Wheary urges all old and new students to be in attendance.

Theatre Managers To Assemble Here

Managers of Publix-Saenger theatres in North Carolina will assemble here Friday, September 26, as guests of the Carolina Theatre for the regular managers' meeting.

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina Theatre, said today that R. B. Wilby, of Atlanta, Ga., vice-president of the Publix-Saenger chain, and Jack Barry, of New York, head of the personnel department of the organization, will be among 30 managers and other officials expected here for the meeting.

The opening session will be held Friday morning in Gerrard Hall. President Frank Graham will welcome the visitors, and after this a business meeting will be held. Lunch will be served at the Carolina Inn.

Addresses by H. F. Kinsey, of Greensboro, general manager of North Carolina, and M. S. Hill, also of Greensboro, assistant general manager, will feature the afternoon session.

Managers from Winston-Salem, Hendersonville, Salisbury, High Point, Greensboro, Burlington, Durham, Raleigh, Fayetteville, Goldsboro, Rocky Mt., and Wilson are expected here for the meeting.

DORMITORY CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

At First Meeting Friday Night; History of Organization Is Outlined.

The Carolina Dormitory Club, composed of self-help students operating service rooms in every dormitory, began its second year with a meeting Friday night by electing officers and having the new regulations of the organization read.

The Dormitory Club was organized last year under the supervision of the buildings department of the University consolidated service plants, when agents were prohibited from coming into the dormitories because of the annoyance and thefts caused by the easy access of all kinds of persons to the dormitories.

The service rooms were established in every dormitory and were put in the charge of self-help students rendering partially the services of agents. The commissions and profits derived from the stores, on an average, paid for the board of the operators.

The new rules of the service rooms are hardly any different from last year's. The chief difference is that a standardized list of articles and services is suggested which in no way are aimed to interfere with the trade of local merchants.

The stores will handle candy, chewing gum, bottled drinks, milk, sandwiches, fruit, peanuts, smoking tobacco and matches, tooth paste, shaving cream, soap, hair tonic, pressing, shoe repairing, writing materials, pen-nants and banners of local merchants. This is a complete list of authorized articles.

The new officers of the organization are: J. B. Parker, president; R. H. Morgan, vice-president; and J. E. Huffman, secretary.

Eric Merritt in Florida

Eric Merritt left Monday night for Blountstown, Florida, to be assistant principal and director of athletics in the high school there.

WARD DISCUSSES MINOR CHANGES IN RUSHING RULES

Executive Council Announces Plans for Distributing Invitations and Making Dates.

Meeting Friday night, the executive committee of the Intrafraternity Council discussed and made one minor change in the rushing rules for 1930. Jack Ward president of the Council presided.

By-law No. 2 of the rushing rules, which deals with fraternity invitations was thoroughly gone over and plans made for its strict enforcement. The date when invitations are to be turned in to the Dean of Students for presentation to the Freshmen, was changed from September 25 to September 24. This section of the rules now reads as follows:

"Rushing for the first two days (i. e., September 27th and 28th) shall be done by invitation. During these two days rushing shall be restricted to fraternity houses. Cards will be distributed to the fraternities on which they are to write (one name to the card) the full name, the home and in every possible case the local address of the freshman they wish to come to their houses these two days. These cards are to be handed to the Dean of Students through the secretary of the Intrafraternity Council by noon, September 24. A standard invitation will then be delivered to each freshman for every card received, these invitations requesting that the freshman visit the various houses, at least once

ORCHESTRA AND BAND TO START PRACTICE SOON

McCorkle Announces Meetings Monday and Tuesday Nights For Organization and Rehearsals.

The musical activities on the campus for the new year will get under way Monday night when the University Band, under the direction of Professor T. Smith McCorkle, holds its organization meeting in the practice room in Person Hall. The University orchestra will meet at the same time Tuesday night to start its organization for the year.

Director McCorkle expects a large number of students to try out for the band. Forty-eight members of the band of former years will be on hand at the organization meeting and there will probably be about that number of new men who will be candidates for membership.

Every year, according to Mr. McCorkle, there are more men who come out for the band and this is due to the fact that high schools and prep schools are laying more and more emphasis on music.

The gathering to be held Monday night at 7:00 will be a
