

ORGAN CEREMONY TO TAKE PLACE IN COMING WEEK

Three Auditions May Be Given
On Account of Large Audience.

Beginning Monday of next week, tickets for the dedication exercises of the new organ will be available on application, Dr. Dyer announces. At several convenient places down town and on the campus, the locations of which will be published later, blank forms are to be distributed and persons desiring to attend these exercises must fill out blanks stating the number of tickets wanted, as well as other information, so that a classification may be made of the probable audience.

It is absolutely necessary that everyone expecting to attend the ceremony fill out the application blanks, since the limited capacity of the music auditorium will require a repetition of the dedication at least once, and possibly twice, depending entirely upon the number of guests expected, and the music department hopes to be able to accommodate the large crowd expected without overcrowding at any one performance. As the applications are filled out, the tickets will be numbered, the number of which will determine the night on which it is valid. Each ticket is good for only one performance. Tickets are free to everyone upon request.

It is planned to divide the nights into a University night and an outsider's night, with the possibility of an even division of the two groups, if the number of tickets warrants it. At the outsider's night, the members of the American Association of Guild Organists will be special

HEAVY DOCKET IN RECORDER COURT

Fines, Donations, and Free Services to the County Exact-ed on Variety of Counts.

Recorder's Court held in the old Pickwick Theatre building yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, netted the city's administration $40 in fines, $100 in the form of a donation, and $35 to help defray expenses of the court; while the county will receive gratis the services of one man for thirty days in the furtherance of its road-building program.

Wilson Caldwell, colored, was charged with manufacturing spirits. He returned yesterday morning from an impromptu sojourn of four months in New York to answer the charges. Officers declared that the small copper still he used was the neatest outfit they had ever seen in these parts. Wilson stoutly denied that he manufactured the beverages for public sale, declaring that his products were for a select group of private individuals. He asked that he be allowed to donate $100 to charity, and the court acquiesced but also inserted a clause charging him with the costs.

Mark Farrow, colored, charged with public drunkenness, was sentenced to one month on the county roads. Mark was fined last Saturday for a similar offense, only to fall into the clutches of the law that very night for again being in an intoxicated

STORY OF GAME WILL APPEAR IN ALUMNI REVIEW

Featuring the issue of the Alumni Review which comes off the press October 1 will be four pages devoted to the Carolina-Wake Forest football game of Saturday, September 27, it was announced last night by Glenn Holder, assistant to J. Maryon Saunders, alumni secretary of the University. The pages devoted to the game will have scenes taken from the game and other photographs of interest concerning the event.

Another feature of interest that will appear in this issue will be statistics on the freshman class, showing among other facts that for the first time there are more Baptists than Methodists in the class and that here is approximately 30 per cent increase in the number of out-of-state men in spite of the increase in tuition for out-of-state men.

The Alumni Review appears every month except August and September. This will be the first issue of the new year.

LAW ASSISTANTS ARE ANNOUNCED

Announcement has been made by the school of law of the appointment of the following research assistants to the faculty: J. L. Chadbourne of Wilmington, H. L. Lobdell of Chapel Hill, Susie Sharp of Reidsville, and Naomi Alexander of Charlotte.

Miss Sharp is a graduate of the law school of the class of 1929 and engaged in the practice of law at Reidsville until her recent appointment as secretary of the law school.

Mr. Chadbourne is student editor-in-chief of the North Carolina Law Review, and Mr. Lobdell is a member of the Law Review staff.

Miss Alexander is a member of the North Carolina bar and practiced in Charlotte. She is now a student in the law school.

Appointments of faculty assistants are limited to those who have made records of distinguished scholarship in the school.

Carolina Entertains

Every Tuesday during the football season members of the team will receive passes from Coach Collins to the Carolina theatre. "All Quiet on the Western Front" is billed this Tuesday.

Deadline Notice

Open Forum Letters Must Be Signed.

The deadline of the Daily Tar Heel for all news stories is 4 o'clock on the afternoon of publication. Managing Editor Dungan expects to enforce this ruling. In accordance with a custom of long standing, no Open Forum letter will be published unless accompanied by the name and address of the writer. This does not mean, however, that the name will be published if the writer objects and the letter contains no attack upon individuals.

Costa Rican Student Impressed With American University Life

"Friend, artist, gentleman." Such is the worthy tribute accorded to Senor Numberto Umana C. by a former professor.

After taking special courses at the Universities of "Laeco Salinos" and "Leco al Costa Rica," Umana traveled thousands of miles to enter the University of North Carolina as a pre-medical student. As a reporter to his native country he wishes to send propaganda in favor of this school, urging his countrymen to come here to study. "American boys are so friendly," he says, "and the American girl, she is beautiful, but I cannot understand her. Her character baffles me." He is touched by the kindness accorded him since arriving here, and is amazed at the high calibre of the profession. "They too, are so friendly, and the instructors of Spanish speak the language better than I."

As a keen observer of the educational system he makes an interesting comparison of the university of his country and the American university. "In my country," he explains, "the student body is organized into an association for the protection of student rights. The associations in various universities throughout Europe keep in constant communication. If a professor proves unworthy, we make a big protest resulting in his being asked to resign. We assert our rights, and the association is very powerful. This, in a measure, replaces your system of student government.

On holidays the students attend bull fights instead of football games. Our major sports are soccer and jai alai, a game of Spanish origin. Boxing is prohibited by the government as inhuman, while bull fights are sponsored. I have never seen a football game."

Umana, an orphan, entered the University with a lump sum of fifty dollars. Is that not spunk? Is his example of zeal for knowledge not a worthy example for any American boy? He is an aspirant for the glee club, and plans to compile a composition on the comparison of the American university with the university of his country. This, he intends to send to students in Costa Rica as a method of creating within them a longing to follow in his tracks, and to pursue their studies in this country. He promises to present this composition to us for publication, and we wait with anxious anticipation the completion of the work.

"I find the English language very hard to speak, but much easier to understand. I have been in this country one year, and could not speak a word of English when I arrived." His English is good but his vocabulary is limited, and he spends three hours on the preparation of a lesson to our one.

He sends each edition of the Tar Heel to friends in the schools he attended, so that they might learn something of the system used here, and keeps in constant communication with them in this respect.

"There are no co-educational schools in Costa Rica," he continues, "though there is a move-

HOUSE SPEAKS AT FROSH Y COUNCIL

Executive Secretary Talks on Friendship; Committees Appointed in Other Cabinets.

Secretary of the University Bob House gave a short but impressive talk on friendship at the second meeting of the freshman friendship council last night. Mr. House gave a number of the world-famous examples of friendships in his talk and stated that one of the most important items of college life was the friendships created on the campus.

The meeting was opened by President Graham McLeod, who appointed a program of 15 men. Pat Patterson, of the senior cabinet, and Edwin Lanier, self-help secretary, were appointed advisors. Mr. Lanier gave a short talk on the purpose of the council.

The sophomore and junior-senior cabinets met in short sessions for the appointment of committees. President Ed Hamer announced that for the remainder of the rushing season the cabinets will meet at 7 o'clock.

Constructing Sidewalks

The construction of additional sidewalks in Chapel Hill is progressing rapidly. The construction company has now reached the Strowd motor company with their laying of the cement walkways.

SEASON TICKETS FOR PLAYMAKERS SELLING RAPIDLY

Nine hundred Playmaker season tickets went on sale yesterday for the seven productions that the dramatic association will put on this year. The book of tickets, which contains one to each of the seven different performances, are one dollar and fifty cents.

Although the tickets have been on sale but half a day, already over half of the number have been sold. It will be necessary for all desiring season tickets to purchase them early. Students are covering the campus and town with the season books, and everybody will be given an opportunity as long as nine hundred will last.

The seven performances to be put on this year by the Playmakers will consist of two student productions and five major ones. The type of plays that will be given, in order, are: a new Carolina play, a comedy, an original full length play, a student play, another new Carolina play, a student play, and the seventh and last will be the Forest Theatre production.

PLANS MADE FOR RHODES CONTEST

Many important changes have taken place in the Rhodes Scholarships. Commencing in 1930, the forty-eight states will be divided into eight districts, comprised of six states each. During every year each state will compete. State committees will choose two representatives to be sent to the district meetings. There the district committees will be allowed to select the four best candidates to be sent to Oxford. Thus, in accordance with the merits of its nominees, a state may either gain two scholarships or none.

Another new and important innovation begins in 1930. A Rhodes scholar will be allowed to choose between spending his third year at Oxford or at any other university in the world which he may select as best fitted for the pursuit of his work. A second provision to this is granted. They will be permitted to take their third year immediately after their first two or after a lapse of some years spent in working in the United States.

This year state elections will come on December 6 and the district committees will convene in a period of ten days to two weeks later. All students sending applications should do this by October eighteenth; applicants from colleges and universities should be chosen by October 11. Students selected in December, 1930, will enter Oxford in 1931.

Chemical Engineers' Reception

FIRST AUTHORS' READING TO BE HELD TONIGHT

New Carolina Plays Will Be Read
At Playmaker Theatre
At 7:30 P. M.

The first authors' reading of new Carolina plays will be conducted at 7:30 sharp this evening in the Playmaker Theatre. This is the first reading of the year and an important one since the three plays chosen by the faculty play committee from those which will be read are to make up the first bill for the season. Following their three-day presentation here they will be carried North on the Playmakers' annual tour through Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and possibly New York.

Anyone is eligible for parts in these plays providing they can show the required talent. As a rule, previous experience is not taken into consideration in the selection of casts or in the selection of members for positions in any of the other varied phases of the work. It is essential that those wishing to try out for parts in the plays chosen attend the reading tonight and familiarize themselves with the plays.

Five of the following available plays will be selected by Professor Koch for the reading: Arthur P. Hudson's "Get Up and Bar the Door," a comedy of the backwoods of Mississippi; a new play by Loretta C. Bailey, as yet untitled, which treats of the recent mill agitation around Gastonia; Louise S. Perry's mountain tragedy, "One Fine Day"; a comedy of eastern Carolina by Horace Ward entitled, "Settin' Up"; Irene Fussler's comedy of

COMMUNITY CLUB ORGANIZES WORK

First Meeting of Year Held Friday; Departmental Activities Are Begun.

The Chapel Hill Community club held its first general meeting of the year on Friday afternoon, Sept. 26, in the Episcopal parish house with about 50 members attending. The business meeting, which was presided over by Mrs. R. M. Grumman, was followed by a tea.

During the meeting, reports were given by the chairmen of the different departments outlining plans for the year's activities. The department of American citizenship, under the leadership of Mrs. J. M. Valentine, will meet on Wednesday afternoon, October 1 at 3:30 in the parish house and will study highway beautification.

On Thursday, October 2, the sketch club will meet with its chairman, Mrs. W. E. Caldwell. This department will study modern American paintings.

The health department, under the direction of Mrs. G. B. Logan, meets Friday afternoon October 3 in the Episcopal parish house, to discuss their work of making surgical dressings and the sale of tuberculosis seals.

The other departments have not yet announced the time of their meetings. These, with their respective chairmen, are as follows: literature, Mrs. T. C. Farrar; American home, Mrs. Ralph Trimble; music, Mrs. F. H. Edmister.
