

FRESHMAN STUDY TRAITS SHOWN IN RESULTS OF TESTS

Scores of Psychology Test Given To Freshmen Returned to Office of Dean.

The scores on the psychology test given to the freshmen at the beginning of the year have been returned from Washington. Freshmen wishing to know their scores may do so by calling at Dean Bradshaw's office on the second floor of South building between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock on any day except Saturday.

The practice of giving psychology tests was started in 1922 and this year's test was the ninth. The first two were of different types, but the last seven have been the same. These tests are not to be considered strictly intelligence tests, but rather tests of college ability or the ability to do college work. The tests do not always do justice to the students, according to Mr. Bradshaw, for the reason that some students are slow to think. The student who can think rapidly, making good guesses when he is not certain, is usually the student who makes the best grade, while a student who knows just as much, but who thinks more slowly, will not do nearly so well.

Bradshaw has made a comparison of the students whose grades were low with those whose grades were high and the results show that from the tests one can judge whether or not the student will do passing work. The following table shows the scores of 3500 freshmen together with the percentage of failures. The students are divided into ten groups. The highest scorers start at the top and go down to the lowest scorers.

| Rank | Percent to Fail |
|-------------------|-----------------|
| 1st 350 students | 1.8 |
| 2nd 350 students | 7.0 |
| 3rd 350 students | 4.2 |

| 5th 350 students | 14.1 |
| 6th 350 students | 20.2 |

| 8th 350 students | 28.0 |

HOUSE SPEAKS TO SENIORS AT CLASS SMOKER

Says Spiritual Growth of Individuals Is Standard by Which University Is Judged.

"Graduate not from, but into the idea of a university," said Robert B. House, executive secretary of the University, in an address to the senior class Tuesday evening at an informal smoker held in Swain Hall. "The Class of 1931 has seen a great development in Carolina in the last four years," continued Mr. House, "but it is the spiritual, internal growth of each and every one of you, while in this University, that sets the standard by which this or any educational institution is judged. I would prefer that you look upon the material development as essential and necessary, but only as an integral part of the whole idea of a university; take from Carolina, not customs and habits, but the idea that it inspires—a thirst for knowledge, an incentive for learning, and a desire to know, and to know that you know."

Mr. House is very popular among members of the class and his presence there was considered quite an honor to the body.

The group was entertained by Ty Sawyer and his Carolina Buccaneers while refreshments were being served. Afterwards Pat Patterson, president of the Senior class announced the names of the class executive committee for the year. The following were appointed: K. C. Ramsey, Bob Betts, J. C. Goodwin, Ramson Whittenton, Arthur Sickles, Bill Moore, Howard Whisnant, Harry Shaner, Sam Silverstien, Curtis Blackwood, Ellis Crew, Milton Cohen, J. G. D. R. Hamilton.

RHODES AWARDS TO BE MADE ON NEW PRINCIPLES

National Committee Changes Rules for Selecting Men and Awarding Scholarships.

Important changes in the awarding of the Rhodes scholarships have been made. Beginning this year, the 48 states will be divided into eight districts of six states each. Each year there will be a contest in each state, and state committees will choose two candidates to appear before the district committee. From the 12 candidates appearing before the district committee 4 will be selected, according to the abilities of the men. Thus a state may receive two scholarships or none, according to its representatives' merits.

Rhodes scholars will be allowed the option of spending their third year at Oxford or any foreign university which may prepare them for their studies. The scholars may take their third year at the close of their first year's work, or after a number of years' work in the United States.

This year state elections will fall on the sixth of December; district committees will meet a week or two later. Applications are due October 18, and colleges and universities should select their candidates before the eleventh of October. A Rhodes Scholar elected in December of this year will enter Oxford in Investigation Is Accorded First Offenses of Year; Junior and Freshman Are Punished.

In two cases that have come up before the Student Council this year, a junior has been put on strict drinking probation and a freshman has been sentenced to indefinite suspension from the university for stealing and lying.

The first case was disposed of last week when a junior was reported to the council for drinking. He was put on strict drinking probation which means that in case of any violation he will be automatically suspended from the university.

The second case was reported Monday when a student who had been away over the week-end found that a sum of money he had left in his room had been taken. The Council worked two whole days investigating the case and closed it Tuesday night.

From a number of clues followed by the council, enough evidence was found to convict the roommate of the victim of the theft. He was brought before the council and the evidence was presented.

When the suspect testified in his own behalf, it was found conclusively that he was lying, which in itself is punishable by indefinite suspension.

In reporting the case, the council commented that "Mr. X., a freshman, was sentenced to indefinite suspension from the university for conclusive evidence of guilt in stealing from his roommate; and for lying to the council acting in official capacity."

Red Greene, president of the student body, said yesterday that this was the first case of stealing reported this year; and that in such cases the whole council investigates all possible clues. He requests that when any larcenies take place where students are involved, the council be notified immediately.

Greene is in the office of the Student Council at chapel period every morning, and he wishes to be notified of any violations of the rules of the council immediately after such infractions take place.
