NIGHT BLOOMING PLANT ATTRACTS MUCH ATTENTION

The Night Blooming Cactus plant exhibited in front of Davie hall is attracting quite a bit of interest among students of biology. The plant is commonly called Night Blooming Cereus, but this is not its correct name, according to Mr. Totten, of the department of botany. The correct name is Night Blooming Cactus. This plant blooms at night only. It bloomed on Thursday night between the hours of 9:00 and 12:00. Mr. Totten was there showing how the plant had to be pollinated. He explained that the plant was a native of Mexico and that there the pollination process was carried on by a certain insect or moth which is not to be found in North America; therefore artificial pollination is necessary.

The plant is usually propagated by cutting branches and rooting them in damp sand.

This plant cannot stand the winter weather, and it soon will be removed to a place of protection. The plant blooms three or four times during the summer and early fall. It has had as many as seventy blossoms during the summer, which have a very pleasant odor. After the plant blooms, it closes up and does not bloom again until more buds form.

Mrs. B. B. Lloyd presented the plant to the botany department three years ago. Since that time it has been kept for observation there.

Mr. R. B. House is to speak at Flora McDonald College in Red Springs on November 8.

INTERNATIONALLY NOTED ORGANIST CHOSEN FOR DEDICATION CONCERTS

Edward Eigenschenk Has Been Recipient of Much Praise for Ability as Soloist While Yet Comparatively Young; Studied in Paris.

Dr. H. S. Dyer, of the music department, announces that the dedication ceremony for the new organ will take place Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15, at the music auditorium, in the form of two concerts. Tickets are available upon application at the Book Exchange, the Students' Supply Store, and at the music building.

After the consideration of approximately ten of America's leading organ masters, Edward Eigenschenk, soloist with Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has been chosen to render the dedication concerts, and has already accepted the invitation. He states that he is greatly pleased at being able to dedicate the organ, and also at being able to witness another step in the encouragement of interest in organ music to university students.

Mr. Eigenschenk was selected from the many other organists chiefly because of his wonderful ability and attainments as a soloist, and his extreme youth, being only 22 years of age. He has been outstanding for a number of years as a student, and there was no surprise on the part of his former teachers when his rapid rise to prominence became a certainty. His first organ studies were begun under Frank Van Dusen at the American Conservatory of Music, during which time he made a very enviable record, being awarded first prize in three organ contests in three consecutive years, winning the cash prize in the contest sponsored by the Illinois chapter of the American Federation of Music Clubs, and first place in an organ contest sponsored by the Society of American Musicians, which carries with it as a prize an appearance as soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Frederick Stock.

After leaving the Conservatory, Mr. Eigenschenk went abroad for study with Joseph Bonnet in Paris, and while there studied under Dupre, where, during his last year, he distinguished himself by being declared the most outstanding musician of American birth ever to have studied there. His signal honor while abroad, however, was being chosen from a class of fifty to render the major concert, which honor was all the more noteworthy considering his extreme youthfulness. He was by far the youngest student in the class.

One of the most outstanding appeals of this artist as a soloist is derived from his ability to render the selections from Bach with an attractiveness which delights even the most unappreciative of audiences, according to the foremost Chicago critics, and his unusually large repertoire of more than 2000 numbers includes all the major works of this famous composer. His program at the dedication concert, Mr. Eigenschenk declares, will be selected particularly for students, and judging from the write-ups in Chicago papers, he is wonderfully adept at choosing programs which may be appreciated even by persons not intimately acquainted with this type of music. Edward Moore, critic, writes in the Chicago Tribune, "Edward Eigenschenk displayed great technical facility, a fine understanding of the art of registration, and rarest of talents among organists, a vital and accurate

BONN DISCUSSES GERMAN POLITICS

German Economist Addresses Large Group in Gerrard Thursday Evening.

Dr. M. J. Bonn, professor of economics and director of the Institute of Finance at Handelschule, in Berlin, spoke to a large audience Thursday evening in Gerrard hall on the general subject of "Economics and Politics in Modern Germany." The speaker was introduced by a former pupil of his, Dr. E. W. Zimmerman.

In tracing the connection between economics and politics in Germany, Dr. Bonn went back to the days before the war, and said that right now Germany is in an experimental state and offers a valuable laboratory for economic students. "There are two great series of questions that divide people," according to Dr. Bonn. "One is religious, which is now practically an argumentative question of the past, and the other is that of government and politics. The form of government does not always satisfy people. There is, for instance, the question of taxation, an economic one as far as it goes. What should be the rate of taxation? Who should pay taxes? These are the type of questions which arouse people. Germany following the war was

BROOKS SPEAKS AT DEBATE MEET

Discusses Subject of Debate With Cambridge University This Year.

Following the usual preparation practice the debate squad Thursday night heard L. M. Brooks, assistant professor of sociology, give an outline of the history of woman's emergence from the home, and discuss the advantages and disadvantages of this emergence. Dr. Brooks' lecture was the first of a series on the question of the advantages of woman's new status in the world, which will be the subject of the debate with Cambridge university.

In his talk, which was heard by twenty members of the squad, Brooks pointed out that woman's emergence really began when she went out of the cave to plant beans just in case the "old man" failed to knock down the bacon with his knotted club. He showed the character of her submergence in the Hebrew, Greek, Roman and recent civilizations, and concluded by showing the results of invention on women, and the results of her emergence on the home and children.

Mr. George McKie announced that the subject for the State College dual debate on November 20 and December 9th, will be on the question of free trade.

COMMITTEE NOW PLANNING YEAR'S ENTERTAINMENTS

Tickets for Student Series Will Be Issued in Two Groups.

Tickets for the student entertainment series will be ready for sale as soon as the program committee formulates the year's program, stated the chairman of the committee yesterday. A committee meeting is to be held sometime in the near future for the purpose of finally deciding upon the year's program.

Dr. H. S. Dyer, chairman of the Student Entertainment Committee, has been corresponding with the managers of the prospective production companies for the past few months. Dr. Dyer is of the opinion that, because of the present economic conditions, the committee will be able to get some of the best talent in the country for very reasonable prices.

Because of a cut in the budget of the University, this entertainment committee will not receive any funds from the state as has been the custom in the past years. For this reason the committee will be faced with the problem of either cutting down in the character of the performances or raising the price of the season tickets. This question is to be decided upon at the next meeting.

When the student coupon books come out this year, they will be published in two series, A and B. Since there are approximately 1500 coupon holders this year, it will be necessary to divide this number in two sections so that room will be available in the auditorium. The auditorium itself will probably seat this number, but it will not be able to seat this number together with the local attendance, which is usually comparatively large.

Each performance that is to be produced here will run for two consecutive nights. One night will be for the series A tickets and the second night for the section B tickets. In this way the auditorium will be able to accommodate the large crowd of ticket holders.

WILLIAMS SPEAKS TO SOPHOMORES ON LAW ASSOCIATION

Sophomore chapel, Friday, was devoted to the filling out of vocational cards. The vocation which a student had decided upon, or which he preferred, was indicated. The pre-law men were asked to remain a while after the others had left.

Through J. A. Williams, its president, the pre-law sophomores learned of the law association which was formed last year, and is to be continued this year. The organization meets once a month and a short program is given. The purpose of the association is to create a bond between the pre-law students and the law men themselves. Then too, the undergraduates can learn through the law association, what to expect when they enter the law school.

Questions were asked and answered; and a show of hands seemed to indicate that the second year men were behind the movement.

Father John Manly says Mass will be held every Sunday in Gerrard Hall at 8:30.

Pledging Of More Than Three Hundred Denotes End Of Frat Campaign

Bell's Condition Becomes Serious

L. P. Bell, instructor in German here, is reported to be in a serious condition at Watts Hospital in Durham as a result of a self-inflicted bullet wound and poisoning. Bell took the poison and shot himself in an effort to take his own life. Little hope is now held for his recovery.

TO MAKE PLANS NEXT WEEK FOR MUSIC PROGRAMS

Several Attractions Under Consideration for Program in Music Auditorium.

No formal action has yet been taken in regard to the opening of the new music auditorium, stated Dr. H. S. Dyer, chairman of the committee in charge of providing a program, in an interview yesterday.

The committee will meet sometime during the coming week, and will definitely decide on a program. The opening of the auditorium is to take place November 14 and 15.

Although the committee has not yet decided on the attraction to be presented at the time of the formal opening, several entertainments are being discussed.

The Pavley-Oukrainsky Ballet is one of the companies which is being considered by the committee. This company, according to Dr. Dyer, presents a most unusual invention, which has not been used in previous years. The plan of this company is to present a stage set as a forest. In the center of the stage will be a large screen on which will be shown characters who will take part in the performance as though they were really present in person on the stage. By an optical illusion the characters which are shown on the screen will appear to be actually on the stage in flesh and blood.

Some of the other attractions which are being considered by the committee are Paderewski, Kreisler, Richard Crooks, and the Belgian Opera. Many requests have also been made for the return of the Russian Symphony Choir, which appeared on the campus last year under the auspices of the entertainment committee.

Heretofore no plans have been made for the year's program of entertainments to be produced in the new music auditorium. Now that the date of its opening has finally been set, the year's program will soon be made out. The fact that the date of opening has not been set hindered the program committee in making any definite agreements with any of the productions.

Bell Is Absent
