

Coach Collins Starts Preparation For Next Game With Hard Work

Drills at Blocking and Charging In Order for Whole Squad In Practice Yesterday

Coach Chuck Collins started off the work for yesterday afternoon at Kenan stadium by demonstrating to the team the several defects in the Tar Heel attack against Georgia, pointing out that there was a lack of drive in the team throughout most of the game.

After these faults were pointed out, the squad settled down to stiff drills at blocking and charging and went about its work with much improvement in its drive and fight. If a man failed to execute the block or the charge properly he would repeat it until he had it right. There was an air about the Tar Heel camp of "let's get ready for the Vols, so that the old weaknesses won't come up again."

Practice closed as the sun was setting behind the west end of the stadium with a snappy signal drill in which three elevens participated. The first team lineup showed Johnson and Parsley, ends; McDade and Thompson, tackles; McIver and Fysal, guards; Lipscomb, center; Branch quarter; Nash and Maus, halves; House, fullback. Walker and Brown, ends; Underwood and Hodges, tackles; Newcombe and Blackwood, guards; Gilbreath, center; Wyrick, quarter; Chandler and Slusser, halves; and McNeill, fullback were in the second team lineup.

Trainer Chuck Quillan reports that the squad came through the game with only a few bruises, and that barring injuries during the practices of this week the team will be in good shape for the second of the "three-in-a-row" hard conference tests.

Irwin Walker, promising left end, who broke his wrist before the opening game with Wake Forest, was in heavy equipment yesterday afternoon for the first time, taking an active part in the stiff drills of the afternoon on blocking, charging and taking out ends. Walker's wrist has been healing up nicely and doctors pronounced it sufficiently strong for him to be back in practice.

Freshmen Preparing For Princeton Game

The Freshmen were back at it again yesterday after their debut last Saturday. Even though they were beaten by the Maryland team, 13-12, this team showed promise of developing into a real winner before the season is over. The squad took advantage of the fact that the Tar Heels were not going to scrimmage with them and practiced a few new plays the Coaches gave them. Later in the week they will again serve as resistance to the varsity.

The team went through the game with only a few injuries. Hackney received a severe shaking-up but was in uniform again yesterday and back out. Mullis, a star linesman from Charlotte, was in street clothes and watched the practice from the side lines. He received a blow on his knee Saturday and is retired for the present.

The team was weak on its pass defense in the Maryland game and consequently Coach Enright intends to spend some time polishing up that department. The next game the yearlings have is with the Princeton Freshmen which is to be played next Saturday at Princeton.

Plays Well

Roy McDade played well against Georgia Saturday, stopping the powerful Bulldog backs time and again when they tried the right side of the Tar Heel line.

TENNESSEE AND CAROLINA RENEW ANCIENT RIVALRY

Tar Heels Have Won Four Games, Lost Three, and Tied One Since First Meeting.

With question marks hanging over the outcome, North Carolina and Tennessee are slated to do some heavy drilling this week in preparation for the renewal of their ancient rivalry at Knoxville on Saturday. The Conference race is so muddled this year, and there are so many outstanding teams which are potential winners that this game is likely to have a big bearing on the outcome of the race.

Tennessee is still reporting a large injured list, and Carolina coaches are still lamenting their rookie line, but supporters of the teams are skeptical of the wiles of such coaches as Neyland and Collins, and expect a great battle.

The Vols and Tar Heels have clashed eight times since 1893, but have not met on the gridiron since 1927, and this renewal of rivalry is expected to draw one of Dixie's biggest crowds of the year. The Vols will be celebrating Homecoming Day, with all the old grads expected back, and this, coupled with the announcement of special trains and low rates presages a record invasion of Tar Heel supporters.

Bill Cerney, backfield coach, scouted the Vols against both Ole Miss and Alabama, and he thinks it will be difficult to overestimate Tennessee's power. The Tar Heels, with star backs and a line that is improving every game, will be drilled to the utmost, and will be trying to play their best game of the season.

Carolina won the first game played against Tennessee, in 1893, 66 to 0. The Tar Heels won again by good margins in 1897 and 1900, lost a close game in 1908, and won in 1909. In 1926 and 1927 Tennessee crushed Carolina 34-0 and 26-0. The total series history shows that Carolina has won four, lost three, and tied one.

Princeton, N. J.—(IP)—By special arrangements made between the Princeton Athletic Association and the Princeton Boys' Council, all Princeton town boys are to be permitted to attend three football, eight basketball, eleven hockey and twelve baseball game without charge this year.

A $1 fee is to be charged to cover the cost of printing special tickets for the series.

ALABAMA LEADING CONFERENCE WITH THREE VICTORIES

Wallace Wade's Bohemians On Power Plays to Break Tennessee's Record.

Alabama, with a massive, fast charging line clearing the way for its speedy backs, ranks as the real giant killer of the south, after handing Tennessee its first gridiron defeat since 1926 in a thrill-packed game Saturday.

Wallace Wade's Bohemians depended entirely on power plays in crushing a courageous Volunteer eleven. The score was 18 to 6.

Bobby Dodd, Tennessee's all-southern quarterback, crossed the Tide with brilliant selection of strategic plays, but on all but one occasion the Volunteer drives fell far short.

In the final period Dodd passed to Hackman following an 80-yard advance for Tennessee's score. In the second quarter Hackman tossed over the goal line to Dodd, but Dodd missed.

Freddie Singleton, giant tackle, stood out in the 'Bama line. Gene McEver, hero of many Tennessee victories and Brandt, a great end, sat on the sidelines, injured, as the Vols' three-year record fell.

The standing of the southern conference football teams, including games of Saturday, October 18, follow:

CAKE RACE WILL BE RUN THURSDAY

Those Not Having Had Six Practice Runs Will Not Be Allowed to Compete.

The seventh annual Cake Race will be run off at 4:20 P. M., Thursday, October 23. All contestants are asked to come in at the main gate of Emerson Field where they will be given numbers. Anyone reporting later than 4:15 will not be allowed to run regardless of the fact that he has completed his required number of work-outs.

Anyone not having had his six practices will absolutely not be permitted to run. Those men who have four or more work-outs to their credit will be able to fulfill the requirements, but any one having less than four practices will be unable to come up to the requirements and will not be permitted to run.

Coach Ranson has received word from quite a few of the women of Chapel Hill that they would be glad to donate cakes to be awarded as prizes in the Cake Race.

FOOTBALL

By K. C. RAMSAY

THE TAR HEELS SETTLED DOWN TO WORK YESTERDAY for the coming game with Tennessee, with only memories of the defeat handed them by Coach Harry Mehre's Bulldogs. This loss does not by any means indicate that the Tar Heels are not a good football team. They are strong and powerful, but Georgia has what we believe to be the greatest team on the Southern gridiron. It was a case of two sets of powerful offensive backs, one with a veteran line and the other with a young one. When you have "Jack the Ripper", and Roberts, assisted by Chandler and Downes, at fullback with a line adept at opening holes, you have something that is almost unstoppable. Even with all this potential scoring power, the Georgians found it difficult to gain when they got in Carolina territory.

Ten first downs to three and 213 yards to 30 was the way that the two teams stacked up at the end of the half, but the score was only 6-0. We would call that "holding them in the pinches." They just couldn't keep this up any longer, and when the final period arrived "Jack the Ripper" and Co., finished up the one sided game.

It was the first time that the Tar Heels have been held scoreless since Harvard downed them 20-0 in 1928, and the worst defeat that they have taken since Tennessee conquered them in 1927 by the same 26-0 score.

WE MUST NOT TURN FROM

the Georgia game without mentioning Roy McDade and June Underwood. Roy played a nice game at right tackle, stopping the great thrusts of the Georgians time and again. It was the first time that June Underwood has ever played at left tackle, but Coach Collins knew that he could depend on him to cover this position. Limping about on his injured ankle, heavily strapped with adhesive tape, June held up the left side of the line very well.

INTRAMURAL RESULTS

Sigma Nu Runs Wild

In the only game played yesterday afternoon the powerful Sigma Nu outfit ran wild against the Chi Phis. Griffith, who did the passing for the Sigma Nus, was shooting them from all angles.

Pi Kappa Phi was awarded a 2-0 forfeit over A. T. O. S. A. E. and Lambda Chi Alpha were accredited with a loss each when they failed to make appearance for their scheduled contest. Grimes forfeited to New Dorms and Old East to Steele.

In the first quarter of the Sigma Nu-Chi Phi contest, a series of short passes brought the ball down to the 20-yard line. Griffith got one off to Bennett, who scored. The extra point was scored. In the second quarter Dameron, Sigma Nu, pulled in a short one to make the score 14-0 when the half ended.

Chi Phi threatened only once in the third quarter when Collett tossed a long one to Evans for 35 yards. Evans went up high for the pass, spun around, and landed hard, but kept the ball. Lynch took a pass for the third Sigma Nu touchdown. Griffin tossed a pretty running pass to MacNair to make the score 28-0. Just before the final whistle, Dameron snared another one to make the final score 34-0.

WEATHER HINDERS INTRAMURAL BALL

McBride of Ruffin Appears to Be Outstanding Intramural Star This Season.

The rain during the early part of last week washed away the spirits and the ambition of the dormitory and fraternity athletes. It was necessary to chalk up many forfeits and postponements. A wet turf slowed down the scoring to a great extent.

The Tar Heel wishes to correct at this time an erroneous report of the Chi Psi-Sigma Phi Sigma fracas. The correct result of this game should have been Chi Psi 19, Sigma Phi Sigma 0.

Due to various reasons only one game of the set scheduled (Continued on last page)
