

GREENE EXPLAINS TELEGRAM FROM TENNESSEE HEAD

Invitations From Hackman Does Not Mean Free Admission To Game.

Several days ago an article was published in the Daily Tar Heel to the effect that a telegram has been received by the editor of the daily paper from the president of the student body to be the guests of the Tennessee institution, while in Knoxville for Saturday's game.

Many students on the campus seem to have gathered from the article that hotel rooms will be furnished, and free tickets to the game will be given as well. According to "Red" Greene, president of the student body here, no such accommodations can be expected.

President Greene stated that all attending the game will have to carry sufficient funds to cover all expenses. "No reduction will be made in the admission fee to the game, either," the student body president stated further. Greene explained that the telegram was merely a good-will invitation, and not a request to visit Tennessee at the expense of its state university.

A special train will be sent to Knoxville for the benefit of all those planning to attend the game. A comparatively low rate has been made for the round trip, and a large crowd is expected to witness the game.

HENRY JOHNSTON CHAPEL SPEAKER

Billy Arthur, Cheerleader, An- nounces Two Practices for Georgia Tech Game.

In chapel yesterday morning Henry Johnston, director of the bureau of vocational information, spoke to the freshmen on the subject of the factors which determine what one will get out of college.

Johnston started out by saying that men come to college for different reasons: some for athletics, some come to enjoy college life, some because of friends, some because of parents, and some to prepare for future work.

Whether or not one will be better fit for life when he leaves college depends, according to Johnston, on four main things: his habits of work, his moral standards, the care of his body, and the development of his personality and the social side of his life. Along with personality, which is very important, goes the ability to speak, to express one's thoughts. Initiative is also a very great asset.

Johnston concluded by saying that everyone is the master of his own fate. One gets out of college just as much as one wants to.

Johnston's speech was preceded by a short talk by Billy Arthur, head cheerleader, who explained that the presence of girls in the cheering section at the last game had hindered the Cheerios from doing all that they had hoped to do. He requested all those who are not going to take anyone to the Georgia Tech game to get seats in the cheering section. There will be two practices in Kenan Stadium next week, of less than fifteen minutes each, for those who will do this.

1881 PHOTOGRAPH GIVEN UNIVERSITY

An enlarged photograph of the University class of 1881, taken in front of South Building, near the Old Wall immediately after the conclusion of its Commencement exercises, has been presented to this institution by Charles R. Thomas, of Waynesville, one of its members.

The photograph will be hung in a room in one of the University buildings to be selected by Professor M. C. S. Noble, who was a college mate of Mr. Thomas. The class included several of North Carolina's most distinguished men, including Judge W. J. Adams, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; Dr. Robert P. Pell, president of Converse College; Charles Duncan McIver, one of North Carolina's greatest educational leaders and President of North Carolina College for Women; Judge James D. Murphy; Herbert B. Battie; Frank B. Dancy, and others. A total of thirty-one students graduated in 1881, of whom sixteen are dead.

FEDERATION MEN VISIT COLLEGES ON STATE TOUR

Meet With Student Leaders at State Wednesday and to Meet At N. C. C. W. Today.

John Lang, president of the North Carolina Student Federation, and R. C. Greene, president of the local student government union, accompanied President E. R. Murrow of the National Student Federation of America to the Eastern Convocation of Student Government Officials, which began Wednesday afternoon at N. C. State College.

The meeting was opened Friday with a thirty-minute address by President E. C. Brooks of State College on self-government in general. This was followed by an open forum discussion for two and one-half hours on all phases of self-government and the honor system. The delegates exchanged ideas and methods of carrying out the honor system.

From 5:30 to 6:00 a program was broadcast over WPTF. President Murrow of the National Federation, and President Lang of the State Federation spoke on the history, organization, and purposes of the Federation.

At six o'clock State College and Meredith jointly entertained the delegates at a banquet in the Peacock Alley tea room. At eight o'clock a concert was given by the N. C. State College band, and this was followed by an address by Mr. Murrow on the history of the National Student Federation of America and on the things it has done and plans to do.

There were about 150 delegates present, including presidents of student government unions, vice-presidents and council members. About half of

Freshman Cheerios

All freshmen who pledged their support to a stag cheering section are requested by Billy Arthur, chief cheerleader, to meet with him at Kenan stadium, Monday afternoon, 3 o'clock. Plans for cheering stunts during the Georgia Tech game will be outlined.

POSITION OF GRAND OLD GRADUATE NOW HELD BY CAPTAIN TIMBERLAKE

Death of Major Charles M. Stedman, Veteran Congressman, Leaves Only Surviving Member of Class of '61, the Oldest Grad; Will Be Ninety-Three in January.

The death in Washington, September 23, of Major Charles M. Stedman, veteran Congressman from North Carolina, leaves Captain William Poindexter Timberlake, of Jackson, Tennessee, as the only surviving member of the graduating class of 1861 of the University of North Carolina, a search through the class files in the General Alumni Association offices in Chapel Hill discloses.

Captain Timberlake will be 93 years of age in January. After his graduation from the University with an A.B. degree he served with distinction in the Confederate Army, fighting in several of the most important campaigns of the war between the states. After several months service in the rank he received a captain's commission for conspicuous bravery in action.

Last week J. Maryon Saunders, Alumni Secretary of the University, received a request for information about the class of 1861 from a member of the editorial department of the Jackson Sun, who is preparing an extensive article concerning the life of Captain Timberlake. His research in answer to the request revealed a great deal of interesting information concerning the class, which was one of the most unusual in the University's history.

During the greater part of Captain Timberlake's undergraduate life at the University of North Carolina, the institution was in the midst of its most brilliant period, with the possible exception of the past ten years. But when the class of 1861 reached its Commencement its ranks were already depleted by North Carolina's initial call to arms as it prepared to defend what it considered its rights.

COFFMAN CHOSEN TO LECTURE AT EDUCATION MEET

Dr. George R. Coffman, new head of the University English department, will speak before the North Piedmont District of the North Carolina Education Association assembled in High Point this afternoon, October the twenty-fourth. He will outline the objective in teaching punctuation and grammar.

There will be meetings of the various districts all over the state this fall. Dr. Raymond Adams stated yesterday that several members of the English department would very probably attend the Raleigh conference the seventh of November, as Chapel Hill is in the district with Raleigh.

Dr. A. C. Howell will be on the program for the Southeastern District in Fayetteville November 14, and Dr. Adams on the Northeastern program the twenty-first of November in Greenville, N. C.

Dr. Adams, district chairman of the State English Council, explained that this is the first year the meetings have been held in districts around the state. The custom was, formerly, to hold the education meetings in Raleigh. The present plan was designed to reach the teachers all over the state who might be unable to attend the one central conference.

at Chapel Hill had witnessed the close of a highwater mark in student enrollment, with 430 members of the student body, including 185 from outside North Carolina. The presence at the Commencement exercises of James Buchanan, president of the United States, and one of his cabinet members, Jacob Thompson, a University graduate of 1831, climaxed one of the institution's most successful years.

But the year 1860-61 opened with a decided decrease in student registration, due most probably to the unrest in national politics and the portentous rumblings of internal strife. Only 376 students were enrolled, including 155 from out of the state. From Tennessee came 26 students, including William Poindexter Timberlake. As the year wore on the rumblings of dissension between the states became more ominous, and political excitement increased prodigiously. When in December, 1860, South Carolina passed her Ordinance of Secession, the concensus of opinion was that war was inevitable. But sentiment against secession was strong in North Carolina, as well as in Tennessee.

Not until Abraham Lincoln's proclamation of April 27, 1861, declaring ports of North Carolina and Virginia covered by the Federal blockade, did North Carolina take steps toward secession. Other Southern states had already passed secession bills, and as each state passed such ordinances, its citizens in the University student body hurried home, burning with zeal to take up arms. Those remaining were in a state of turmoil.

LEAR IS PRESENT AT ENGINEERING COUNCIL MEETING

John E. Lear, vice-president of the North Carolina Board for Registering of Engineers, has just returned from Richmond, Virginia, where he attended a meeting of the National Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners. The meeting lasted from Tuesday morning until Wednesday afternoon.

The most important issue of the meeting was a bill presented for the adoption of uniform laws for all of the state boards. The council is hoping to establish these laws in every state in which there is a board for registered engineers. There are now thirty-one states which have these boards and all of these had representatives at the meeting Tuesday and Wednesday. Of these, fourteen have adopted the law which appeared in the proposed bill.

The officers for the coming year were elected at this meeting. Professor P. H. Daggett, formerly head of the electrical engineering department of this university, was elected secretary and treasurer of the National Council for the year.

T. J. Wilson Is Back

Dr. T. J. Wilson, Jr., has returned from Wilmington where he had a short vacation.

Silhouettes Given To The University

Three small silhouettes have been presented to the University, to be placed in the president's office, by Dr. Archibald Henderson, head of the mathematics department.

In the center of the group, now on the president's mantle, is a silhouette of Joseph Caldwell, first president of this university. On the left is William Lenoir, first president of the board of trustees, and, on the right, James Hogg, who secured the establishment of the University at its present site.

The original of the silhouette of Caldwell, now in the library, was presented to the University by W. A. Tillinghast of Converse College, at Spartanburg, South Carolina. On the backs of the gifts are the names of the men and their connections with the University.

VILLAGE COUNCIL EXPLAINS RULES AGAINST BUMMING

Local Government Draws Up Regulations Regarding Bum- ming and Street Conduct.

The town of Chapel Hill has drawn up certain rules and regulations which are of vital interest to the student body as well as to citizens of the town.

These laws concern bumming, riding over the fire hose, bus stops, and improper use of the sidewalks and streets.

Section 1. No pedestrian shall be permitted to take a stand on the motor-vehicular portion of any street in the town or in any manner obstruct motor vehicular traffic, and that on crossing the street, all persons shall keep in motion while in this portion of the street.

Section 2. That any person guilty of violating this notice willfully shall be subject to a fine of $50.00 in the discretion of the court.

During the winter season just past there was a further ordinance of amendment, requiring that motor vehicles stopping to take on passengers should do so only after drawing up to the curb, in order to avoid accidents from on-coming cars.

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person operating a bus on Franklin street, between the intersections at Columbia street and Hillsboro street to stop the said bus for the purpose of admitting or discharging passengers, except at the following stations: viz, the bus station, the Carolina Theatre, and at Spencer Hall.

Section 1. That it shall be unlawful for any person to drive any motor vehicle, or any horse-drawn vehicle over the fire hose of the town of Chapel Hill.

Section 2. Any person violating the terms of this ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not more than 30 days.

Reporters Note

All reporters who fail to cover their beats today will be in danger of being dropped from the staff. If, after covering their beats, the reporters fail to secure any news, they are required to report to the office of the Daily Tar Heel for further assignment.

COMMITTEE WILL REFUND FEE FOR ENTERTAINMENTS

No Place Ready for Presenting Programs, So Students Will Be Credited With Fee.

Rather than attempt to present inferior programs under poor conditions the Student Entertainment Committee has voted to accredit each student in the college of liberal arts and the school of education with his entertainment fee for the winter quarter. This decision means that instead of paying the usual yearly assessment of three dollars, these students will only have to pay two dollars.

For weeks the personnel of the Committee has been casting about for a suitable place to stage productions and present artists who were to have been brought to the campus. In turn the question of using the Tin Can, the Methodist church, and the new Music Auditorium, have come up. For the reason that the Tin Can is always cold during the fall and winter months this idea was rejected. The church authorities naturally enough did not care to have presented all the various types of entertainments that the Committee will bring to Chapel Hill. The Music Auditorium will seat but one third of the number who usually attend the programs, and since this building will not be opened to public use until November 14, this also was considered impractical.

The Committee was chosen to offer its first importations shortly after Christmas in the winter quarter, immediately following the dedication of the new auditorium. They are at work at the present time considering engagements and expect to meet next Wednesday for the purpose of arranging bookings.

DEMOCRATS PLAN MONSTER RALLY

Ehringhaus To Address Party Meeting in High School November 1.

Mr. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, prominent Democratic leader of Elizabeth City, will address a huge rally of Democrats of Orange County and the University Saturday night, November 1, at eight o'clock in the Chapel Hill High School auditorium or the Tin Can. Definite arrangements as to the meeting place have not been made yet.

This rally has as its purpose the furtherance of the candidacy of Josiah W. Bailey, Democratic nominee for senator, and other Democratic nominees. Many of the outstanding Democratic leaders of the state will also be present. The meeting is under the auspices of the Young Democratic League of North Carolina of which Ray Farris is field secretary.

Farris plans to stage a campaign to create interest in politics here at the University and hopes that all interested students will attend the rally. An interesting program will be arranged.

Comers Return

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Comer returned yesterday from a trip through Virginia with Mrs. Comer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White of Mason, Texas.
