

JUDGE PARKER TO DELIVER SENATE BANQUET SPEECH

Dean Bradshaw Visits Meeting
And Offers Criticism

The bill, Resolved: That there is a need for a strong third party in the United States was hotly debated at the meeting of the Di Senate Tuesday night. After lengthy discussion the bill was defeated 26-13. Senators Rector, Shreve and Olive defended the affirmative side, while Senators Fleming-Jones, Little, Ramsay, McIver, and Entwistle upheld the negative.

A letter received from Judge John J. Parker to the effect that he would be delighted to speak at the annual banquet of the senate which will be held next month, was read to the members. A vote of appreciation was extended the president for having secured Judge Parker.

It was also announced that the tryouts for the Mary D. Wright debate will be held next Monday night. The question for discussion is, Resolved: That the state of North Carolina should levy a luxury tax for the support of institutions of higher learning. The debate will be held on December 2, and the Di will have the negative side. Anyone wishing to try out for the debate should see Senator Fleming-Jones immediately.

A motion was passed changing the meeting time from 7:15 to 7 o'clock.

Before adjournment, Dean Bradshaw offered a few constructive criticisms.

FOUR THOUSAND DOLLAR LOSS IS SHOWN BY AUDIT

Last Year's P. U. Board Debt
May Be Averted by Increase In Student Fees

The auditing department of the University issued financial reports of the individual publications and of the Publications Union recently. The reports showed a total net loss of $4,420.15 for the session 1929-1930. The Daily Tar Heel suffered the greatest, having a loss of $4,896.38; the Carolina Buccaneer was next, losing $629.22, while a profit of $1,005.37 was made by the Yackety Yack.

The total assets of the Carolina Publications Union amount to $15,769.30. Some of the interesting items are: stocks and bonds, $10,997.66; office improvements, $315.10; furniture and fixtures, $1,162.90.

The loss incurred last year will be alleviated to a great extent by the fact that the publication fee paid by each student was raised one dollar last spring by popular vote of the student body. The present business staffs of the various publications have been doing efficient work in curtailing running expenses and in getting more advertisements than were used last year.

The greater part of the income of the Yackety Yack last year came from payments for space by student and fraternity pictures, as well as for space of other organizations. Its total revenue amounted to $13,469.77, $8,738.75 coming from organizations' space, while the amount received from advertising was only $699.76.

The total revenue of the Daily

HAMER STRESSES SPIRITUAL LIFE IN RADIO SPEECH

Cites Need for New Y Building
After Outlining Activities
Of Organization

"Religion in the broadest and truest sense is a most vital issue at the University of North Carolina," stated Ed Hamer, president of the Y. M. C. A., in his speech over the radio yesterday afternoon. Hamer's talk was the second of a series presented by student leaders on the campus. The first speaker of the series was "Red" Greene, president of the student body, who talked on the present system of student government in effect on the campus.

Continuing his talk the speaker outlined at length the purpose, history, position in campus life, types of leadership, organization, and financial support of the local Y organization. President Hamer stated that the local organization was established on the campus in 1860, and was the third student Y. M. C. A. to be founded in the entire United States, being preceded only by associations at the universities of Virginia and Michigan. Numerous prominent men in the state who were formerly connected with the University Y were mentioned by the speaker.

It was the Y president's opinion that, although the present Y building is still in good condition today, it is entirely inadequate to meet the demands of a student body of over 2600 men. Besides making mention of men formerly connected with the association, the speaker made the statement that many of the present campus leaders take an active part in the Y's program.

After discussing the organization of the campus Y, Hamer took up the program of the association. "The chief mission of the association is that of 'drawing out for every man the highest and best and fullest there is in human life.'"

The speaker then closed his speech by saying that the Y believes in and puts across to the students time and again that a student leaves college with a very unbalanced education if he neglects spiritual development.

Buccaneer To Clean Up Daily In Energetic Purity Drive

By Chic Sale

Deviating for a few lines from its customary habit of presenting only newsworthy articles, the Daily Tar Heel informs its readers that the self-styled funny magazine, The Buccaneer has made its appearance. Whether it is desired or not, the publication that has received almost campus-wide animadversion has arrived.

This number, dated the November issue and called the Football number, is different in one respect from practically every other periodical in the country. The habit of editors of magazines is to arrange their business so that the issue with the November date upon it will be issued late in October or the first few days in November. Some publications carry this too far, and we have the Christmas numbers being circulated early in September. However, Kermit Wheary and his band of earnest comics have set the new style of issuing their paper almost in December, and with the November date upon it. But not only in this respect is the funny paper unique. It is worthy of the highest praise, for the football number appears just before the football season is gone and forgotten. Nevertheless, it does not prevent the editors from devoting a large amount of their space to very unhumorous attacks upon those few campus institutions which contain the essential ingredient of civilization—a sense of values.

On page 17, there is a well-drawn cartoon of the Mason Brother's concept of what the Daily Tar Heel looks like. It is one of a series of called "Impressions of Compus Publications." The misspelling of campus is apparently a deliberate attempt at the subtle laughter that is innervated by the staff's broad humor. Although the actual physical appearance of the office and workers for the Daily Tar Heel is decidedly erroneous, the essence of Mason's drawing is true. The Daily Tar Heel's staff is constantly conscious of an effort at approximating perfection.

As to Buccaneers being allowed in the office of the Daily Tar Heel, the Buccaneer would have you believe they were not to be seen, but the drawing is but a half truth. Although there are rarely any Buccaneers to be had in the Tar Heel's office, it is because the staff of the Tar Heel, like so many members of the student body, regularly fail to receive the funny magazine due to the greediness of certain members of the student union.

INTEREST SHOWN IN CAMPUS 'POINT'

A few days ago, passers in the neighborhood of the outdoor auditorium were attracted by the perfect form and accurate pointing of an animal resident of Chapel Hill.

The dog was white with black spots, and greatly resembled a statue or a dog that one sees in the circus—well powdered and riding motionless in a chariot.

The object of the dog's point was one of the thickly populated squirrel family, which was busy gathering acorns, and which seemed to ignore the impending danger.

The dog was so intent on its prey that it was unaware of the ever growing group of spectators that stood enhanced by the beauty of the dog's graceful body. No one uttered a word, for noise did not harmonize with the extraordinary scene. The wind ceased to stir the leaves—in fact nature seemed to watch also and remained infatuated by the sight. The dog stood as if frozen in his tracks, and though the squirrel hopped here and there, the dog didn't move.

Such scenes do not last long, and soon the squirrel, frightened by some falling object, or becoming suddenly aware that his every move was being spied upon, scampered off over the benches, and the disappointed "pointer" relaxed and went in search of another victim.

CO-EDS DRINK TEA BY CANDLE AND FIRE LIGHT

Kathleen Wheaton and Elizabeth Reed acted as hostesses for the weekly co-ed tea given at Spencer Hall Wednesday afternoon from four-thirty to six o'clock. A large cheerful fire lighted the living room which, together with the soft candle light added much to the enjoyableness of the occasion. Along with the tea dainty cakes and mints were served. From time to time during the tea a large number of the girls came in.

Amaze a Minute

The Daily Tar Heel beginning today will publish regularly an illustrated scientific feature on some of the phenomenal facts about science and invention. These drawings, entitled "Amaze a Minute," contain facts concerning some of the recent discoveries as well as numerous peculiarities of nature.

The illustrations will be printed weekly, and will contain only statements which have been authenticated by experts.

WOMAN'S PLACE IN MODERN LIFE DEBATED BY PHI

Twenty New Men Are Initiated
Into Assembly at Tuesday Meeting

The Phi Assembly held its second initiation of the year Tuesday night when twenty new men were taken into membership.

Speaker Mayne Albright read several articles from the constitution regarding initiation at the beginning of the session which was followed by Representative Uzzell's report on the Mary D. Wright debate. The question to be discussed December 2 between the Phi and Di is, Resolved: That a state tax should be levied on luxuries for the support of higher institutions of learning.

Only one bill was taken up by the group which was: Resolved: That the emergence of woman from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life. This topic is now under the consideration of the debate squad.

Following a long discussion on this measure, a vote was taken which resulted in a tie. The bill was defeated when acting Speaker Hobgood voted against the measure.

Among the members initiated Tuesday night are: W. D. Tennant, Angus MacLean, Jr., Wm. A. Thompson, Everett M. Jess, Chas. B. Evans, W. W. Sloan, Wm. W. Bynum, M. V. Barnhill, Jr., P. W. Hairston, J. H. Patterson, Edwin Akers and George W. Wright.

PLAYMAKERS TO BROADCAST LOCAL FOLK PLAY TODAY

'Git Up an' Bar the Door,' Recent Production, on Air
Over WPTF

At 4 o'clock this afternoon the Carolina Playmakers will broadcast Arthur P. Hudson's farce of Mississippi folk life over station WPTF in Raleigh. Git Up an' Bar the Door, the play, was produced here two weeks ago in the twenty-seventh bill of original plays written and produced by the Playmakers.

The officials of the Playmakers have chosen this play for a radio broadcast because it seemed to be the most representative of their productions this year and because of the praise it received here.

The Playmaker officials also believe that much of the comic value of the farce will be lost before the microphone due to the fact that the amusing pantomime will be missing.

Mr. Morgan Vining, who arranges all radio programs for this vicinity, states that the program will be broadcast on the coastal hookup and part of a national chain.

Professor F. H. Koch, director of the Playmakers and the director of this play, will announce the cast which includes the following characters:

SENIOR CLASSES DUKE-CAROLINA TO GIVE TROPHY

Carolina Seniors Approve Trophy
as Award to Winning Team at Annual Game

The Senior class of the University met last Tuesday night in Gerrard hall in a call meeting for the purpose of discussing the question of establishing a trophy to be given annually to the winning team of the Duke-Carolina football contest. The class voted unanimously to join with the Duke seniors in this idea.

The idea of this trophy came from a suggestion of the official staff of the North Carolina Student Federation early this fall. This federation, in order to allay unnecessary hostility between Carolina and Duke, has been working on projects for the improvement of the relations of the two schools. In view of the fact that the athletic connections of the two universities are more strained than any other relationships at the present time, the federation suggested to the students of the two institutions that they express their goodwill toward each other by presenting trophies for winning teams in their intercollegiate contests. This trophy just approved by the senior classes of the two schools is the natural result of this movement.

Committees from both of the senior classes are now at work on the type of trophy to be offered. It is generally believed that they will select a large gold tinted football on which can be inscribed the name of the winning team each year.
