

PROGRAMS HELD UP BY DELAY IN NEW AUDITORIUM

Plans for Presidential Inauguration and Entertainment Programs Delayed.

No definite arrangement has yet been decided upon in regard to the inauguration of President-elect Frank Porter Graham, it was reported yesterday. As soon as the new auditorium is finally completed, plans will be announced.

The announcement of the final program of the Entertainment Committee is at present also awaiting the opening of the new building. The committee has at present many prospective companies in view, but at present no contracts can be made.

It has been reported that the general character of the performances will probably be higher this year than any previous season. This fact is possible due to the present economic condition which has reduced the prices of some of the best entertainments in the country to the minimum.

The new auditorium, which will have a seating capacity of around two thousand, will probably open to the campus use sometime during the first part of the winter quarter. Because of the possibility that certain materials for the building may be delayed no exact date has yet been set for the opening. Plans are now being discussed to have some of the noted men in the state present at the opening ceremonies. During the week following the opening, the entertainment committee has announced that it will try to have one of its performances booked for that time. This, however, has not been definitely arranged.

Local Cafe Placed In Receiver's Hands

Tom Gooch's cafeteria, the oldest in Chapel Hill closed its doors Monday night. Gooch has faithfully served the students of the University and the townspeople of Chapel Hill for twenty-seven years as the satisfier of the inner man. The first cafeteria owned by Gooch was opened in the store where Eubanks drug store now stands. He traveled around town, opening stores here and there, finally starting his sixth venture as a cafe proprietor at his present situation.

Gooch acted as telephone operator for Chapel Hill when the telephone building was in the house where the Carolina U-Drive-It garage now is. He lived in the same building and while residing there raised a family of ten children.

With the closing of his latest venture the sages of the town are busily speculating as to whether Gooch will attempt to start in the cafeteria business again. With his passing from the business world Chapel Hill loses one of its most colorful personalities.

SYMBOLISM AND PESSIMISM FILL RUSSIAN DRAMA

Student of Soviet Stage Describes Russian Drama to Playmakers.

Mrs. E. R. Murray spoke last night at eight-thirty in the Playmakers Theatre on "The Theatre in Soviet Russia." Mrs. Murray said that in order to understand the theatre under Soviet Russia one must understand that the Russian people have insisted on having drama and the fine arts throughout their history. To them things of mind are far more important than material comforts. This point is found in Oliver Saylor's book The Russian Theatre. Mr. Saylor, who was in Russia during the revolution of 1917, says that they attended the theatre in the midst of the firing.

There are two outstanding features in the Russian theatre, Mrs. Murray tells us. The first of these is the finest art of symbolism; the second, a Japanese influence which, though adapted to the Russian temperament, is quite obvious—especially in the Meyerhold Theatre. In the old days only nobles went to the theatres so the lower classes were forced to stage their own drama. The originality of this has come from the fact that the people were scattered and were very poor. Mrs. Murray says that drama is often born of loneliness and that the downtrodden try to fabricate a dream life. In this way, she says, the South may also develop an art in drama.

After the talk an open forum was held, in which Mrs. Murray, drawing from her personal experience, answered diverse questions about Soviet Russia. She has been to Russia twice in the last three years, spending three months there, and has traveled to Vladivostok through Siberia—a trip which few tourists make.

Williams Chosen To Meet Cambridge

In the tryout last night to select the second Carolina representative for the debate with Cambridge University, J. C. Williams was chosen. The negative side of the query will be supported by McE. Fleming-Jones, and one of the men from England. The meet will be held in Gerrard hall, December 13.

ARTISTS CHOSEN FOR PRODUCTION OF 'THE MESSIAH'

The tenor, soprano, and contralto for the Christmas oratorio, The Messiah, to be presented in December have been chosen, December fifteenth in the music auditorium have been chosen, according to Dr. H. S. Dyer, of the music department. The tenor will be sung by Mr. Edward Molitore. Molitore has just finished a ten-weeks season with the Cincinnati Opera Company. He is considered one of the finest lyric tenors ever heard with the company. He is a graduate of Northwestern University. His most recent appearances with the Boston Grand Opera Company, and with the Detroit and Cincinnati companies.

The soprano will be sung by Mrs. Camilla Tenera Molitore, the wife of the tenor. Mrs. Molitore has sung as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony. Mr. and Mrs. Molitore are at present singing at the First Presbyterian Church in Greensboro. Dr. Dyer has heard them both sing in Greensboro, and has said that their work is of the highest type.

Mme. Emily Berger Cullum, prominent Chicago singer, will be the contralto. Comment on her singing has been very complimentary. At present, she is located at Davidson. Her husband, Ernest James Cullum is director of the music department at Davidson College. The artist to sing the bass in the play has not been selected as yet, but will probably be selected before long.

Director of Players Is Versatile Artist

The members of the Jitney Players who are appearing in the Playmakers Theatre December 1 and 2 are well-known actors to Broadway and leading theatrical circles throughout the East. This company will present on December 1 at eight-thirty o'clock The Murder in the Red Barn, a melodrama of 1840, and on December 2 Sheridan's comic opera The Duenna.

Alice Keating Cheney, who is the active head of the organization since the death of her husband, Bushnell Cheney, with whom she had been co-founder and director, appears in the title role in The Duenna and as Maria Marten, the innocent heroine of The Murder in the Red Barn.

Miss Keating, before her marriage and the founding of the Jitney Players, had been playing on Broadway under the management of Arthur Hopkins and played Ophelia opposite John Barrymore during part of the run of Hamlet. Miss Keating before her professional debut in New York had been interested in theatricals in Buffalo, where she was active in the social world. After extensive travels abroad she studied dancing under the late Isadora Duncan.

Of her work on the stage one critic has said: "Alice Keating who has played many types hereabouts has ever the sure and stylized touch, a certain individual technique. She gives satisfaction in every part both to the eye and to the mind." Besides her abilities as director of this unique theatre and her capabilities as an actress this unusual woman finds time to design the costumes for the Jitney productions, as well as to assist and advise in all departments. In both plays the costumes are made from costume plates drawn by her.

THREE STUDENTS HURT AS RESULT OF MOTOR CRASH

While returning on a week-end trip to Fredericksburg, Virginia, three University students were severely injured in an automobile accident near Richmond, Virginia. The three students are Sidney Rosen, Nat Chafetz, and Charles Lasko.

According to the students, they were driving along when an approaching car suddenly swerved into them, overturning the automobile three times, and wrecking it entirely. The extent of the damage to the Virginian's car was a broken wheel and fender.

LITERARY BODIES SELECT MEN FOR ANNUAL DEBATE

Mary D. Wright Debate, Between Di and Phi, Set for December 2.

Competition for places on the Dialectic and Philanthropic teams for the Mary D. Wright debate was ended Monday night by the selection of C. A. Shreve and McE. Fleming-Jones from the Senate, and H. H. Hobgood and William Egbert Uzzell from the Assembly.

The meet will take place at seven-fifteen next Tuesday, December 2, in Gerrard hall. The query is, Resolved: That the State of North Carolina Should Adopt a Luxury Tax For the Support of Institutions of Higher Learning. The Di will uphold the negative and the Phi, the affirmative. This question was chosen by a committee from the Senate because it has been suggested that the decreasing appropriations for the University might be increased by this means. This way of financing colleges has been tried in the West and Mid-West where some states highly recommend its adoption while others condemn it.

The Mary D. Wright Debate was won last year by the team from the Senate, and the medal awarded to J. C. Williams. All of the contestants in this year's meet are experienced debaters, having represented the University in at least two inter-collegiate forensic contests.

REV. ROZZELLE TO RETURN TO POST FOR FOURTH YEAR

Reappointed as Pastor of Chapel Hill Methodist Church at Request of Friends.

The news was received in Chapel Hill yesterday that Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon had reappointed the Rev. C. Excell Rozzelle as pastor of the Chapel Hill Methodist church for his fourth consecutive year. The North Carolina Conference has just closed its annual session at Henderson, North Carolina, and the appointments of the three hundred Methodist ministers for Eastern North Carolina were read on Monday morning. Mr. Rozzelle has served as pastor of the local church for the past three years, having come to Chapel Hill from Myers Park Methodist church in Charlotte. His many friends here are pleased that the conference saw fit to send him back to this charge. Many requests went to the bishop and his cabinet from students, professors, and business men in town asking that Mr. Rozzelle be reappointed to Chapel Hill. The bishop decided to let Mr. Rozzelle remain here instead of sending him to the University Church in Atlanta, Georgia, which move had been planned.

Mr. Rozzelle is an alumnus of Duke, Emory, and Vanderbilt Universities. He has held prominent pastorates in Texas, Tennessee, and North Carolina, but he considers the pastorate in Chapel Hill to be the best of them all. Mr. Rozzelle is rated one of the most liberal of all Methodist ministers in the South, unhesitatingly speaking his mind on all the modern issues of theology, science, sociology, psychology, and philosophy. He has been called by his fellow ministers heretic, modernist, socialist, and many such titles, but he always replies with a smile and the most generous spirit imaginable.

"Chapel Hill is the one spot in our dear Southland where a man can speak freely his thoughts and not be burned at the stake," said Mr. Rozzelle in an interview yesterday with a
