

MORRIS L. COOKE TO MAKE SERIES OF TALKS HERE

Nationally Known Engineer to Deliver First Address Tomorrow in Bingham Hall.

Morris Llewelyn Cooke, nationally known consulting engineer in management, of Philadelphia, will deliver three addresses at the University tomorrow and Thursday. He comes under the auspices of the departments of economics and commerce, the local student branch of the Taylor Society, and the four University chapters of the engineering societies.

Mr. Cooke will deliver his first address at twelve noon in room 103 Bingham hall tomorrow. His topic is "Planned Work as an Aid to Industrial Stabilization." He will speak tomorrow night at eight o'clock in Gerrard hall on "Experience with Union-Management Co-operation." Significant new developments in labor relations and major current problems in industry are dealt with by Mr. Cooke. All the lectures are open to the public.

Mr. Cooke received the degrees of M.E. and Sc.D. from Lehigh University and was a newspaper reporter from 1890 until 1894. He has had much extensive experience in industry and commerce. During the Spanish-American War Mr. Cooke was an assistant engineer in the United States Navy. From 1905 until 1911 he was engaged in commercial organization work and then became director of public works in the city of Philadelphia until 1915. Mr. Cooke was chairman of the storage section of the war industries board of the national defense and was executive assistant to the chairman of the U. S. Shipping Board. In 1923 he was director of the Giant Power Survey of Pennsylvania. He is a member of numerous national engineering and management societies, and is past president of the Taylor Society. He has written numerous books and articles for scientific journals.

LIBRARY SHOWS FRENCH PAINTINGS

The subject of the library exhibit for this week is the paintings of the Impressionists, the Neo-Impressionists, and the Post-Impressionists. The development of modern French art from the middle of the nineteenth century is shown through the first decade of the present century.

The reproductions are both plain and tinted, and represent such French artists as: Manet, Monet, Cezanne, Renoir, and Degas. The exhibit has especial bearing on Somerset Maugham's Of Human Bondage.

Chapel Programs for Week

P. L. Burch, head of the buildings department, speaks before the freshman chapel today. His subject is "The work of the Buildings Department."

Wednesday: There will be no chapel since Dean Carroll wishes to see all freshmen in the school of commerce in 103 Bingham at the usual chapel hour.

Thursday: Dr. Collier Cobb, head of the geology department, will give a few "Reminiscences of Chapel Hill."

Friday: P. L. Burch will repeat his speech of Tuesday for the sophomore chapel.

Dungan To Conclude Radio Talks Series

Jack E. Dungan will conclude the series of radio talks which the University student government has sponsored for the past three months when he speaks on "Utopian College Education and How It Relates to the University of North Carolina" over station WPTF Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock.

He will briefly summarize new departures in higher education within the past few years with particular regard to the present year. In his talk he will discuss optional class attendance, individual curricula, self education, tutoring systems, housing plans, work systems, experimental colleges, new grading systems, and many other problems that have been successfully solved by other colleges.

The plans which he will discuss are ones that have been put into effect at Columbia, Harvard, Yale, the University of Chicago, Stanford, Dartmouth, Colgate, Wisconsin University, Michigan, Northwestern, Purdue, Pomona, Syracuse, University of Washington, University of Oregon, Beloit, and Oberlin.

TAYLOR SOCIETY SCHEDULES TWO NOTED SPEAKERS

Sloan, President of Textile Institute, and Gilbreth, Consulting Engineer, to Speak.

George M. Sloan, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute and Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, consulting engineer in micromotion study, are two of the speakers to be brought to this campus sometime this spring by the Taylor Society.

The local student branch of the Taylor Society was organized in the fall of 1928 among advanced students in engineering and commerce and now numbers more than fifty members. It is the only branch in the South, the others being located at the Universities of California and Pennsylvania, Ohio State University, and Colgate.

Over a dozen formal meetings were held last year, with an attendance of over five hundred. The addresses delivered were of such fine quality that they were edited by G. T. Schwenning and published by the North Carolina Press under the title of "Management Problems." It is planned to publish this year's addresses under the title of "Trends of Management." The following speakers have already appeared before the Taylor Society this year: F. M. Craft, chief engineer of Southern Bell Telephone Company; E. S. Draper, landscape architect and engineer; P. H. H. Dunn of Department of Commerce; E. H. Eige, of Western Electric Company; C. L. Holmes, of U. S. Department of Agriculture; and General Rees, assistant vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The Taylor Society is an international society to promote the science and art of administration and management. The main objects are: through research, discussion, publication, and other appropriate means: (1) To secure—for the common benefits of the community, the worker, the manager and the employer—understanding and intelligent direction of the principles of administration and management which govern or

HOUSE ADDRESSES GROUP IN DURHAM

Executive Secretary Chooses George Washington as Subject of Kiwanis Talk.

R. B. House, executive secretary of the University, while speaking before the Durham Kiwanis Club in a Washington's birthday address at the club's regular meeting last week, said, "Many lessons applicable to the present time may be learned from the life of George Washington, who risked his life, his personal fortune—in fact, everything—because he had the courage and decision to meet the problems of his own day."

"The course of history is largely determined by the faith, action, and integrity of character of men like Washington, and not by those who cling to an attitude of passive acceptance while awaiting for something to happen," Mr. House said.

The theme of Mr. House's talk was that Washington was a great builder who placed service to country above self.

The Durham address was the second of the week given by the executive secretary. Earlier he had addressed the Parent-Teachers Association of Greensboro on the value of education.

"A man who does not believe in education loves darkness rather than light," he said in his Greensboro talk.

"The single specific issue in North Carolina for more than one hundred years has been education," he said. "The times of our greatest prosperity have been the times when we have had leaders who could preach effectively the gospel of education. The essential remedy for our present troubles is more and better education. Civilization functions through the process of education."

REALTORS GATHER HERE NEXT MONTH

Guy W. Ellis, of Detroit, and Paul Stark, of Madison, Wis., will compose the faculty of the second annual Real Estate Institute which will meet at Chapel Hill March 9th under the auspices of the University Extension Division.

This institute, which will last for two days, will take the form of an intensive course in real estate problems. Its sessions will be in Bingham hall at the invitation of D. D. Carroll, dean of the school of commerce. W. A. Fonville, of Wilmington, who is president of the North Carolina Association of Realtors, together with R. C. Cantwell, Jr., secretary of the association, and M. F. Vining, of the extension division, constitute the committee in charge of the program.

Ellis is a former president of the Detroit Real Estate Board and a member of the advisory council of the National Real Estate Institute. Stark served as first vice-president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in 1928 and is a member of its real estate educational committee.

Mrs. Stallings Passes Away

Mrs. W. T. Stallings, mother of Mrs. T. E. Best, died Thursday morning at the home of the latter on Pittsboro street, at the age of seventy-four years.

Funeral services were held at two o'clock Friday from the Primitive church in Clayton.

GAY MACLAREN TO APPEAR MARCH 2

Noted Dramatic Artist is Third Presentation of Entertainment Committee.

Miss Gay MacLaren, dramatic artist extraordinary, will appear in the re-creation of an entire play in Memorial hall Monday, March 2 at 8:30 p. m. This presentation will make the third of the series of programs offered this quarter by the entertainment committee.

Gay McLaren is the young woman who gives entire plays in the voices and actions of all the players of the original cast. She has often been called, "The One-Girl Play Company."

In her childhood she displayed an amazing talent for mimicry, and astounded her teachers by reproducing an entire play after sitting in the audience, seeing the play several times and then reproducing the words, gestures and voices of the players without having seen the manuscript.

Her teacher took her to New York where she was presented before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences and created a sensation. Mark Twain became interested in her and had her reproduce his play, "Pudd'n-head Wilson," in his home down on Tenth Street.

The newspapers called her "phenomenal," and declared her a "genius." Clubs and societies heard of this "Girl with the Camera Mind," as the New York World called her, and invited her to appear before them. Mrs. Thomas Edison became one of her patronesses and attended her recitals.

Owing to her ability to memorize a play and give it after hearing it four or five times, she developed a large repertoire of plays, which she could give at a moments notice.

When the Panama Canal was in the course of construction, the United States Government sent her down to entertain the employees of the "Big Ditch" at the government clubhouses. She was still in her teens, but had already mastered twenty of the most popular plays of the day.

She was contracted for one tour of the Isthmus to give seven plays. So great was her success that she made four trips and gave one hundred and eight recitals. The Panama Morning Journal called her "The Idol of the Isthmus," and she was given a Roosevelt Medal.

The only time General Goethals, Panama's constructor, ever set his foot inside a Zone Clubhouse (he being opposed to the management) was to hear Gay MacLaren on the occasion of her one hundredth appearance at Culebra.

Duke Inaugurates Series Of Recitals

The Duke University Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring a series of music programs this year which are to be known as the Tuesday Evening Recitals. These recitals are presented solely for the enjoyment of the music lovers of the surrounding towns, and no admission is being charged to any of the concerts.

The first of this series will be presented tonight at 8:15 in Page Auditorium on the West Campus of Duke University, and will feature members of the Duke faculty and their wives, assisted by the women's and men's glee clubs and the symphony orchestra.

Five Bills On Di And Phi Calendars

When the Di senate convenes tonight in its regular meeting at seven o'clock, the following bills will be discussed.

1. Resolved: That, the students of the University have too little control in extra-curricular activities.

2. Resolved: That, the University of North Carolina should not adopt an athletic policy similar to that recently adopted by the University of Pennsylvania.

The following are the bills that the Phi Assembly will act upon at 7:15 o'clock.

1. Resolved: That, a failure, without valid cause, to vote in two successive general elections should disqualify the voter in the next ensuing general election.

2. Resolved: That, provisions should be made for a more adequate infirmary to be used in case of an epidemic.

3. Resolved: That, the consolidation of the hundred counties of the state into approximately one half that number would be for the best interests of North Carolina.
