

FORTY MEMBERS TAR HEEL STAFF ENJOY BANQUET

Editorial and Business Departments Honor Retiring Editor And Business Manager.

The combined editorial and business staff of forty members of the Daily Tar Heel gathered in the private dining room of the Carolina Inn last night for a banquet in honor of the retiring editor and business manager of the paper. It was the first occasion of its kind in the thirty-eight years of the Tar Heel's existence. Charlie Rose, who has been news editor of the paper for the past year acted as toastmaster. Short talks were made by Dan Kelly, representing the reporters, K. C. Ramsay, retiring sports editor, John Manning, the new business manager, Ed French, newly elected managing editor, Pat Patterson, retiring business manager, Will Yarborough, retiring editor, and finally Jack Dungan, the new editor, who announced the temporary staff promotions for the coming year.

Will Yarborough in his last talk before the staff of the paper he has worked on for four years stressed three things. First he wanted it made known to the campus where the money they spend goes, secondly, he wanted the staff members to wage a fight against the curtailment of student privileges, and finally, said that one should work with the Daily Tar Heel not for honor and glory but for pleasure and experience, stressing that it was a distinct honor to be on the staff, even if one was only a reporter.

Jack Dungan told a little of his plans for the paper during the next year and stressed the fact that members must work for any promotion they may secure, as the responsible positions on the paper were to go only to efficient and capable men. The staff for the next year as announced by the new editor will be found in the masthead.

Playmakers Produce Bill of Four Plays

Last night four plays, products of the University course in playwriting, English 31, were presented in the Playmaker's Theatre before an audience of appreciative students and townspeople.

Ever' Snitch, the first on the bill, is a comedy of our Carolina fisher-folk by Irene Fussler of Chapel Hill. Not since The Playmakers produced Off Nag's Head by Douglas MacMillan eleven years ago has there been a play dealing with the interesting characters living among the dunes of our shifting coastline.

Theodore Herman of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, has given a sympathetic study of college youth in The Blue Remembered Hills. Ellen Stewart, of Camden, South Carolina, is the authoress of a whimsical satire, A Very Pale Pink Angel. Tom Loy, of Hagerstown, Maryland, is the author of the comedy, Always A Bettin' Man.

This bill, presenting four new playwrights, is to be repeated tonight and tomorrow night.

DELTA SIGMA PI HEARS BRADSHAW

Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students, spoke before the first spring quarter smoker given by Delta Sigma Pi, professional commerce fraternity Tuesday night.

Dean Bradshaw's topic was "Business and Ethics." He pointed out that the inhabitants of the world can be divided into three classes: those who leave the thical standards and conventions of the world as they find them, those who attempt to pull them lower, and those who attempt to raise them.

He went on further to say that although the latter course is the most difficult, the individual will derive the greatest satisfaction out of following it. When the speaker applied these observations to the business man, he stated that the principles were particularly pertinent because of the important position occupied by this type of professional man.

SOCIAL SERVICE STUDENTS CHOOSE MOORE PRESIDENT

Mr. Comer and Billy McKee Attend State Conference at Goldsboro.

Beverly Moore, a member of the senior class of the University was elected president for the coming year of the student section of the North Carolina Social Service conference which met in Goldsboro Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week. Other student officers were S. B. Hines of State college, vice president; and Martha Davis, of Salem, secretary.

The student section of the conference convening for the first time as an official body had its first meeting Monday night. Representatives were present from Duke, State, Meredith, Queens-Chicora, Salem, N. C. C. W. and Carolina. Harry F. Comer and Billy McKee were the representatives from the University. State College had the largest number of representatives.

During the Monday night session which was presided over by the president, Elouise Banning of N. C. C. W., Dr. W. A. Stanbury, pastor of the Duke Memorial Church, Durham, and Mr. W. C. Jackson, vice-president of N. C. C. W., were the speakers. Dr. Stanbury told what he thought the responsibility of the church was towards social betterment in the matter of the evils in the new industrialism, in the crime situation, and in attitude towards war. The essence of Mr. Jackson's address was that before people could hope to make social progress we must first know the facts.

The student division again met Tuesday morning in a joint meeting with the minister section. Professor J. M. Ormand of Duke University, was the only scheduled speaker who was present, and he gave some very interesting and surprising facts about the relation of the country church towards rural progress. He thought that the country had a great field and a great opportunity which they were not making use of. The fact that there are too many rural churches, that they are poorly equipped, insufficiently financed, and unsuitable located for the reasons the speaker gave for the present situation. Mr. Comer and Dr. Roy Brown, both of Carolina, also spoke at the meeting, along with several of (Continued on last page)

University Budget Now Set at $724,000

According to the latest figures the University's appropriation for each of the next two years will be $724,000. These figures are not final, however, as this is only the figure set by the house appropriations committee. This is a reduction of $76,000, the previous figures being $800,000. The recommendation of the house appropriations committee has not yet reached the floors of either the senate or the house.

The original budget bill called for $573,000, for the University, the joint appropriations committee raising it to $875,000 and later reduced it to $800,000. Since then there has been a struggle in the committee between members who favor curtailing the state's educational program and those who favor an increased appropriation.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR SENIOR WEEK

List of Men Who Are to Speak To Graduating Class Not Decided Yet.

At the meeting last Tuesday afternoon of the committee in charge of senior week it was decided tentatively that the annual Senior Week should occur the week following the Human Relations Institute.

The class of '31 will begin its farewell activities by donning the usual senior regalia during the progress of the week. It is planned that the insignia this year will consist of flannel jackets. Negotiations are already being made to procure the jackets in order to insure a uniform appearance.

Last year the insignia worn by the proud and dignified members of the graduating class was a white sleeveless sweater upon which the Carolina colors were pinned. A very colorful effect is noticed every spring with the seniors promenading in their gayly-colored coats.

According to the long-established custom the campus will be nominally ruled by the seniors for the brief term of five days. During that time there will be many events sponsored by the class or held for its benefit.

Last year talks were held each evening under the Davie Poplar by various prominent men. Among the men addressing the graduating class last year were President Chase and Dr. R. D. W. Connor. This year the same program is to be followed in regard to the talks for members of the senior class exclusively each evening at seven-thirty under Davie Poplar. Speakers for these occasions have not been announced, but the subjects for these addresses will probably deal mainly with such topics as philosophy, business, vocations, and social problems.

Besides this series of talks there will be numbers of benches placed at strategic points about the campus in the attempt to promote friendly gatherings among the members of the graduating class. These benches will be painted in the class colors, maroon and white.

The chairman of the committee attending to the plans for this week's activities is Clyde Dunn. Assisting him on this committee are Will Yarborough, Kermit Wheary, Charles de Wolfe, Bill Lindsay, and Bert Haywood.

PHI BETA KAPPA SOCIETY TAKES IN TWENTY-FOUR

Dr. H. Van P. Wilson Addresses Group on Teachers He Has Known.

At the meeting of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, last night, Joe Eagles, president, presided and Beverly Moore, secretary, read out the list of men who were elected to this society. Dr. Henry Van Peters Wilson, who has been an outstanding and active member of this organization, addressed the public meeting citing several outstanding teachers he has known and studied under.

The first teacher mentioned was a certain Morbin, who taught Latin and Greek, of whom he said, "Morbin realized that all boys are martyrs." Dr. Wilson also quoted Dr. Huxley, outstanding English scientist, when he said, "Science is fundamentally based on experimentation." Dr. Wilson says, "It was while studying under Ira Ranson, leading American chemist, that I first found out the difference between generalized facts and explanatory theorys. The former changes gradually with experimentation and new discoveries while the latter changes quickly due to a discovery which changes the entire theory. He further said, 'Students are hardened and do not like to accept new facts about anything.' The following men were elected:

TWO PROGRAMS ARE SCHEDULED FOR NEXT YEAR

"Beggars Opera" and "Irish Players" Are Definitely on Entertainment List.

As yet the entertainment committee has not made many definite plans for the programs to be presented next year. However the Beggars Opera and the Irish Players have been gotten for the program. Both of these companies have long been sought after and the committee considers itself fortunate in having secured them.

In the past the committee has employed the system of having the students vote on a list of entertainments in order to show their preference.

Now it is thought that the voting plan will be abolished in favor of an expression of student opinion through representation of the student body or the committee. The best plan according to Dean A. W. Hobbs, is to allow the committee a free rein, in order that they may get what is best in their opinion when it is available.

At present the committee is holding off to see if the engineering and commerce schools are going to come in. If they do, it would permit the committee to obtain the finest entertainments that may be offered anywhere. It is rumored that the committee may raise the price of the entertainments to a dollar and a half per quarter so that this may be accomplished regardless of the entrance of the two schools into the proposition.
