

SMOKER CALLED FOR JUNIOR AND SENIOR CLASSES

Meeting in Swain Hall at 9:00
Tonight Will Discuss Business
Relative to Dances.

All members of the junior and senior classes of the University have been called by their individual presidents to meet in Swain hall tonight at 9 o'clock, for the final disposition in regard to the Junior-Senior ball, and other details and urgent business of both classes.

Presidents Pat Patterson and Theron Brown decided late yesterday to call the meeting after conferring with members of the dance committee and other members of the two classes.

Yesterday invitations to attend the Junior-Senior ball were mailed to four hundred prominent statesmen, social leaders, business men, and their wives. President Frank Graham has agreed to head a large reception committee.

A discipline committee has engaged patrolmen from Durham to supervise the distribution of the large crowds that are expected to attend.

The contract for the decorating of the Tin Can has been let to R. C. Greene and Mayne Albright who will commence operations more than a week before the date of the first dance.

Following the modernistic design, the Tin Can will be converted into the most up to date of ball rooms.

REPRESENTATIVES OF HIGH SCHOOLS TO ARRIVE TODAY

Fifty-Three Schools Will Be Represented in Annual Debating, Track, and Tennis Contests.

Today the representatives from fifty-three North Carolina high schools will appear on the campus and begin operations leading up to the final contest of the North Carolina High School Debating Union.

The delegates were invited to the University under the auspices of the Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies and the extension division of the University. The preliminary debates will lead up to the final contest in Memorial hall at 8:00 o'clock Friday evening, when the Aycock memorial cup will be awarded.

The first general meeting of all the debaters and teachers will be held in Memorial hall at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon, where Professor N. W. Walker of the education department of the University will preside. Here drawing lots for sections and pairs in the first preliminaries will be conducted.

The question under discussion has an added appeal because of the recent attention given to it in all the large newspapers. It is, "Resolved: That the United States should grant immediate independence to the Philippines."

The committee sponsoring the debates is composed of both students and members of the faculty. Professor N. W. Walker is chairman, while Mr. E. R. Rankin is serving as secretary. The members of the committee are: (faculty) L. R. Wilson, D. D. Carroll, G. M. McKie, and C. E. McIntosh; (students) E. R.

SOCIETIES VOTE ON THREE BILLS

The Di and Phi societies meeting at their assembly halls last night at seven-fifteen three bills. The measure introduced in the Di senate, Resolved: "That the Federal government should institute a plan to limit tobacco production, similar to the Stevenson plan for limiting British rubber production," was defeated. Senator Deitz argued in favor of the bill while Senators Fleming-Jones and Little opposed it.

The resolution, Resolved:

RELATIONS CLUB IS ADDRESSED BY DUKE PROFESSOR

Authority on Carribean Question
Is Heard by International Relations Group.

The International Relations Club had as its speaker last Tuesday evening in room 213 Saunders Hall, Dr. J. F. Rippey, of the Duke University history department, who is a specialist on Latin America. He was introduced by K. C. Frazier.

"Are we to be friendly to the people around the Carribean Sea?" was the question on which his address was delivered. Rippey discussed the type of people in Central America. He stated that our pan-American policy has acted as a shield to establish spheres of influence in the Carribeans. "There are five objections that the Carribean peoples have to the American attitude toward them."

These, the speaker listed as the following: first, our action concerning the Panama Canal Zone in which we seem to consider that zone our own property; second, our action towards building a canal in Nicaragua without consulting El Salvador and Costa Rica; three, taking upon ourselves to protect our investments at the expense of the Carribeans; four, our new interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, on which we establish American influence in the Carribeans, and five, they object to the fact that we object to them having a revolution, because they claim it to be their only means to secure order.

HISTORY OF MUSIC IN SPAIN IS TOLD BY T. S. McCORKLE

The regular monthly meeting of the music club took place last night at 8:15 o'clock in the music building. Mrs. T. S. McCorkle arranged the program which consisted of Mrs. Fred B. McCall and Mrs. F. H. Edmister, pianists; Mr. McCorkle, violinist, and a small orchestra of thirteen people, both students and faculty members. In addition to the music recitals given Mr. McCorkle delivered an address on the history of Spanish music up until today. The various compositions named by Mr. McCorkle in his address were illustrated by the orchestra.

In his talk, Mr. McCorkle spoke about the foremost Spanish composers of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. A few of those mentioned were Frederico Chueca, author of many musical plays, and from whose opera, Cadiz, was taken the national hymn of Spain; Ruperto Chapi, known as the founder of the modern Spanish

ROSE APPOINTED TO HEAD STAFF OF '31 HANDBOOK

New Edition of Campus Guide Will Be Similar to Those of Former Years.

According to the plans announced yesterday by the newly-chosen editor of the Carolina Handbook, Charles G. Rose, Jr., there will be only a few minor changes in the make-up of the publication for next year. The main alteration will be made in the cover for the 1931 edition, which the editor plans to publish in a light blue instead of the usual white covering. Al Olmstead has been chosen business manager of the publication.

The plan of making the book in the order of a general campus information publication for the new men will be continued. Aside from the new covering, and a few small changes, the book will be practically the same as the 1930 issue.

It is the present plan to have the handbook off the press and in the hands of next year's freshmen by the middle of August, and in this way give the members of the class of '35 sufficient time to acquaint themselves with the organizations and activities at the University.

There will be about 1700 issues of the book published during the summer, over a thousand of which will be sent to the new applicants. The remainder of the number will be sent to numerous universities and colleges throughout the country and to the principals of the larger high schools in the state.

Those men who have been selected to work on the 1931 edition are: Billy McKee, associate editor, Winfield Blackwell, town editor; Bob Barnett, Y. M. C. A. editor; Tom Broughton, athletic editor; Bob Woerner, class editor; and Harry F. Comer, adviser.

The Carolina Handbook is published yearly under the auspices of the local Young Men's Christian Association and is sent out to all of the incoming new men.

Ben Greet Says Talkies Will Never Replace Legitimate Stage

By Peter Hairston

For the third time in his life, Sir Philip Ben Greet has visited the University, this time to present, in his inimitable way, Shakespeare's Hamlet. He came as one of the leading exponents of Shakespearean drama on the modern stage. For over fifty years he has been connected with the theatre, both as actor and director.

In all of these years, he has learned, he says, at least one thing; that is that there is just one model for playwrights, actors, and producers; and he is William Shakespeare. Although this idea can hardly be classed as unusual among Englishmen as a whole, the firmness of his conviction is unique. He even carried it to the point of using costumes such as those worn by players in the time of Queen Elizabeth in order to conform as nearly as possible to the original productions.

His pet abomination are the vitaphones, which he calls "abominable machines." To quote him, "They have not," he said, "and never can take the place

FRESHMAN CLASS SECURE WADE TO ADDRESS SMOKER

Duke Coach Will Continue
Theme of First Smoker in Meeting Friday Night.

Wallace Wade, head athletic coach at Duke University, will address the second freshman smoker Friday night at 9:00 o'clock in Swain hall. This speech will complete the theme started in the first smoker when Dr. Archibald Henderson talked on "The past relations between Carolina and Duke."

The first smoker was exceptionally successful since five hundred freshmen turned out for the occasion. Pat Patterson presided as the freshman class had not been organized at that time. Friday night, however, Ike Minor, president of the freshman class, will preside.

Beside Wallace Wade, the main speaker for the evening, President Graham and Coach Chuck Collins are to make short addresses.

All of the student leaders on the campus, faculty members, and the officers of the other three classes have been invited to the smoker, and are expected to attend.

The executive committee of the freshman class made frequent efforts last quarter to obtain a speaker for the occasion, but the event was postponed pending the acceptance of one of a number of men invited to address the group. Invitations were extended to Alfred E. Smith, ex-governor of New York and Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1928; Hon. Cameron Morrison, former governor of North Carolina and recently appointed United States Senator, and Wallace Wade, who came to Duke University recently from the University of Alabama.

An orchestra for the occasion has not yet been selected, but class officials expect to complete musical arrangements within a few days and secure a popular collegiate orchestra. All first year men will be expected to attend.

Thirty-Seven Officers Of Student Body Inaugurated

Staff Tryouts

Any persons wishing to try out for the sports or reportorial staff of the Daily Tar Heel are requested to see Managing Editor French in the office of the publication, Alumni building, this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

BAILEY OBTAINED AS SPEAKER FOR N. C. S. F. CONGRESS

United States Senator Will Address
Student Federation, at Duke, May 16.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey of Raleigh has accepted an invitation to address the second annual congress of the North Carolina Federation of Students at Duke University, Saturday, May 16. In a letter to John Lang, president of the Federation, Senator Bailey yesterday announced his acceptance of the invitation and expressed his great interest in the work of the Student Federation. The Senator said that he was a very busy man, but that he could not well afford to miss the opportunity of addressing the future leaders of North Carolina.

The subject of Senator Bailey's address to the Federation will be "What the Nation expects of its Youth," and it is believed that the Senator will use this subject as an opportunity to express many of his liberal views on government and society which will govern his future work in the United States Senate.

The program for the meeting of the second annual congress of the Federation is as yet incomplete, but already there are a number of interesting events being arranged for this affair. Besides Senator Bailey's speech, President Ed R. Murrow, of the National Student Federation, President Few of Duke, and several college professors and experts will also address the congress on various phases of student life and activity.

LOCAL KIWANIS HOSTS TO SEVEN CLUBS IN DIVISION

The Chapel Hill Kiwanis club was host to all seven of the other clubs in the fifth division of the Carolinas' Kiwanis district at a supper in the Baptist church, Tuesday evening at six o'clock.

There were 135 Kiwanians present, representing the clubs of Raleigh, Durham, Henderson, Mebane, Graham, Burlington, and Warrenton. The Mebane club won the attendance prize, having the largest percentage of its total membership present.

Mr. Thomas Pruitt, of Hickory, governor of the Carolinas' Kiwanis district, was the principle speaker of the evening. He was introduced by the lieutenant governor, Mr. Marion Fowler, of Durham. President Frank Graham, who was scheduled to deliver a welcoming speech to the members, was unable to attend, being unexpectedly called to Raleigh.

The entertainments of the evening assumed the form of stunts presented by the clubs of Raleigh, Durham, and Mebane.

GRAHAM TRACES DEVELOPMENT OF CAMPUS OPINION

Greene and Albright Urge More
Frequent Student Meetings
For Problem Discussion.

A new custom was begun in the University yesterday morning when, at chapel period, thirty-seven campus officers for the ensuing year were formally inaugurated. The band played on the steps of Memorial hall as the officers-elect assembled on the stage and the audience was being seated.

R. C. Greene, outgoing president of the student union, introduced Frank Graham, president of the University, who reminded the group of the responsibility conferred upon them, in being selected as the most fit representatives of the student body.

"Student government began in the Di and Phi societies," Mr. Graham began, "and later, control passed from the societies to the classes. For a while, the president of the senior class was always president of the student body, and the other class officers were members of the student council. The editors of the Tar Heel, Yackety Yack, and Carolina Magazine were chosen alternately from the Di and Phi, and from the fraternities. But the post-war period brought about the election of the student officers from the campus at large, and with few exceptions, this practice has continued to the present.

"The World War period found a spirit of militarism at the University, and this was followed by a cynicism, which gradually caused the disappearance of old traditions. Modern mail delivery brought an end to the habit of using the post office as a favorite gathering place for the student body, likewise the old well is no longer a favorite retreat. In the old days, daily meetings of the entire student body in chapel were the rule, but now only freshmen and sophomores attend chapel, irregularly.

"We have involved from militarism to the honor system which we employ today. I am confident that the present state of depression throughout the country will give way to the realization and rebirth of idealization of the campus. In Raleigh today, the State is stripping itself to its bare essentials in order that we may be able to maintain our high standing. So I hope that you students here will adopt a truer sense of responsibility and strip yourselves of all apparent wastefulness. I would like to see the revival of monthly student meetings to discuss questions of timely interest.

"I have watched the development of student government by student leaders and have noted a gradual decline in drinking, cheating, and gambling when taken under student control. In you new officers lies the responsibility to take your stand towards a greater University of North Carolina."

Greene then gave a summary of the activities of the student council for the past year, and stated that 110 cases were dealt with. There were sixty-four probations and twenty-eight
