

M'CORMICK WILL TALK ON SCIENCE AS PART OF LAW

Final Address of Pre-Law Series
Is Scheduled for Tuesday Night.

The final lecture of the pre-law series given by the faculty members of the law school will be delivered by Dean C. T. McCormick, Tuesday night, May 26, at 7:30 p. m. in the first year room of Manning hall.

The topic of the lecture will be "Science in the Court Room," a subject which should carry an especial appeal to scientifically-minded students as well as all the students who intend to enter the law school. The lecture will deal with the latest methods employed in crime detection, such as psychological deception tests, identification of forgeries, identification of weapons and bullets, and the use of microscopes and microphotographs.

Other Lectures

Other addresses of this series have been "Crime and Punishment," by Professor Albert Coates, and "The Chief Justiceship of William Howard Taft," by Professor M. T. Van Hecke. These lectures have proved beneficial to law and pre-law students.

This series will probably be continued in future years to interest pre-law students in matters pertaining to their future training, and to demonstrate to the students that their academic work forms a good foundation for the work that they will undertake when they enter the law school.

TALK WEDNESDAY TO FINISH SERIES

Henry Johnston Will Make Final
Broadcast Over Raleigh

Henry Johnston, Jr., assistant dean of students will give the last radio talk sponsored each week by the student council when he speaks over WPTF, Raleigh, next Wednesday on "Freshmen Week at the University."

Including the one by Johnston, the total number of radio talks made this spring is seven. The first of these was made by Bill Speight, president of the debate council, who spoke on "High School Week at the University." The next week Ed Hazelwood, chief cheerleader, spoke on "The History of Cheerleading at the University." Following this, K. C. Ramsay, retired president of the Publications Union board, in the ensuing week delivered an address on "The History of Politics at the University."

Explained Institute

The Human Relations Institute being near at hand, the next talk consisted of an explanation and purpose of that quadrennial occurrence. This was given by Beverly Moore, student chairman of the institute. A few days preceding the annual congress of the North Carolina Federation of Students, at Duke university, John A. Lang, at that time president of the federation, made the fifth address when he spoke on "The Work of the State Student Federation." Last week W. Clyde Dunn, editor of the Yackety Yack and chairman of the senior week committee, described the present senior week program with a brief history of its observation.

Beginning with the fall quarter these speeches will again be resumed.

Diploma Notice

It is a fixed University regulation that persons who expect to receive degrees at a University commencement must be present in person to receive their diplomas. It is only in rare and exceptional cases that permission for absence from commencement is granted. Occasionally, in exceptional cases, excuse or permission for absence must be granted by the President and formal notice given to the Registrar.

This notice is given for the information of students who may be under the impression that there is no fixed regulation regarding degrees in absentia.

Fate Of New Graham Memorial Will Rests On Vote Of Students

Election to Take Place Sometime This Week to Decide Whether
Student Body Is Willing to Pay Three Dollars a Year
As Maintenance Fee.

As the last of the scaffolding was torn down from the front of the Graham Memorial building last Friday, the completion of a project which has been in progress for nearly twelve years nears its goal. There is one last step before the building may be used, and this will be made during this week when the student body will go to the polls to decide whether they are willing to pay a dollar a quarter for the use of this student union.

The movement for a student activities building was started in 1919 when it was suggested that a fitting memorial to the late President Edward Kidder Graham, who had died in the fall of 1918 during the flu epidemic, be erected for his splendid service to the University and state.

History of Building

During the year 1919 $123,000 was subscribed from alumni, students, faculty, and friends, but the campaign was suspended during the following year on account of the business depression. Renewed efforts were made in 1923 and the goal was increased from $123,000 to $400,000. An employed secretary was appointed to take charge of the drive, and under the direction of W. Jay Ward, a group of students canvassed the state during the summer of 1923 in an effort to reach this quota. Enough money was pledged to warrant starting work on the structure late that year. At that time an article appearing in The Tar Heel stated that the "campus is now definitely assured of the proposed Graham Memorial building," but as was soon found the students have had to wait several more years before this statement could come true.

As some of the pledges were never collected, work was suspended until this past fall when a gift of $80,000 by an anonymous New York alumnus assured the completion of the center portion of the memorial. It is hoped that some time in the future money may be raised to complete a wing on each end of the present structure.

The Social Center

Graham Memorial was planned from the start to be a student center and general get-together place for all students. Unless a student is a member of a fraternity there is almost no place in which he may entertain visitors. The graduate students, a relatively small group, have exclusive use of their quarters for this purpose. The present Y.M.C.A. building is altogether inadequate for social usage, lack of rest rooms being very noticeable, and yet this building is the only place at present for students to spend their leisure time. The new memorial equipped with lounge and reception rooms will act as a sort of lobby for the campus.

The work of the committee of students, faculty, and alumni, who will decide what use will be made of the various rooms, has postponed its decision until the vote of the student body on a maintenance fee is taken. If the campus is not in favor of taxing itself to the extent of $3 a year for the building, it will have to be closed again, and used for a storehouse as has been the case for the past five years. Although money has been secured to build the memorial there has been no fund allotted to maintaining and furnishing it.

Well-Equipped Club

The building is planned to provide a home for the various campus clubs, councils, and publications, on the second floor. According to present plans the basement will be used mainly as a recreational center, with a bowling alley and other features. With the main floor containing reading and rest rooms, the memorial will be nothing more or less than a well-equipped student hotel or club for the use of all. If the Carolina student wants to have the use of this building during the coming year, he can do his part by voting to tax himself a $3 a year union dues.

Class Of 1881 Will Convene Here To Celebrate Golden Anniversary

Thirty-Three Living Members of Class, Including Many of State's Prominent Men, Will Recall Old Times at This Year's Commencement.

By Glenn Holder

One of the most colorful classes ever graduated from the University of North Carolina, the class of 1881, will celebrate its Golden Anniversary at Chapel Hill during this year's Commencement exercises. It will hold its reunion on Alumni Day, June 8, along with eleven other classes.

Practically all of the thirty-three living members of the class of 1881 have achieved distinction far above the average since they left the University campus fifty years ago. Charles Duncan McIver, president and founder of North Carolina College for Women at Greensboro, and one of the greatest champions of the cause of education in the history of the state, was one of the most popular members of the class.

COBB TO ATTEND PARIS CONVENTION

University Geologist Will Sail
For France in August for Scientific Conference.

Professor Collier Cobb, head of the University geological department, will sail for Havre, France, in August to attend the International Geological conference in Paris, August 14-21.

This trip will be afforded him by the discontinuance of the annual University transcontinental motor tour of the geological department during the summer. Due to the inadequacy of funds, the department has seen fit to cut down expenses along this line.

Professor Cobb's speech at the conference will be on the subject of "Dune Sands and Eolian Soils in Relation to Present and Past Climatic Conditions on the Continent of North America."

Despite the ancient epigram that a rolling stone gathers no moss, this noted geologist is gathering fame, "Beating about this old world of ours," as he terms it. His most recent success has been the acceptance of his work in connection with the Loess deposits in China by the standard textbooks. Tar and Von Engen's New Physical Geography, contains many of his maps and writings.

Di Will Hear Yearly Reports On Tuesday

Members of the Di Senate will convene in their final meeting of the year Tuesday night to elect officers for fall quarter, 1931. All new members will also be initiated at this time.

According to the usual custom, yearly reports of the several committees are to be made at this Tuesday meeting. The finance constitution and ways and means committees, together with the clerk and sergeant-at-arms, are expected to make a yearly summary of the work of each of these groups.

The three senators who have served as president during the past year have been, W. C. Medford, fall quarter; J. M. Little, winter quarter; and K. C. Ramsay, spring quarter.

Yackety Yack Notice

Only those students who have paid their fees for three quarters will receive their Yackety Yacks when they are distributed in June. If you have not been in school during the entire year or if you have not paid your fees, please call at the Yackety Yack office Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday between 2:00 and 4:00 o'clock, to settle for your publication fees.

Those students who wish to have their annuals sent to addresses other than the one given on their registration slips, are also requested to call at the office on the above dates.

CAMPUS AWARDS TO BE PESENTED TOMORROW NIGHT

Prizes and Trophies for Merit in Various Activities Will Be Given in Memorial Hall.

Tomorrow night at 8:00 o'clock in Memorial hall the annual awards for students will be presented. At this time Mayne Albright, president of the student union will preside at the occasion, and Ed Hazelwood, chief cheerleader, will have charge of the cheering.

Graham to Speak

The University band will open the program with "Hark the Sound," after which President Frank Graham will make an address. Immediately following his speech the scholarship awards will be presented by Joe C. Eagles, president of Phi Beta Kappa. The literary trophies will be awarded by K. C. Ramsay, this year's president of the Publications Union board. Theon Brown, president of the athletic association will then introduce Coach Bob Fetzer who will give the athletic prizes to the winners.

To break the monotony at this interval a number of specialty acts will be rendered, and after this change in the program the activities awards will be given. Included under this heading is debating, Carolina Playmakers, the University band, and the Glee club.

Grail Trophies

Trophies offered each year by the Order of the Grail will be presented tomorrow night by Haywood Weeks, president of the order. These trophies include the intramural cup, freshmen prize, football award, basketball trophy, baseball and track trophies. Of these the two highest are the intramural cup and the freshman trophy. Winners of the latter prize in the past are: Archie Davis, "Sonny" Graham, Burgess Whitehead, and Bob Zealy.

Scoring above all other awards offered by the University is the Patterson Memorial trophy presented each year on the merits of athletic ability along with other activities. Last year it was won by Ray Farris.

MYSTERY GIVEN BY PLAYMAKERS

Attended by an audience of between seven and eight hundred persons, the Playmakers' presentation of A. A. Milne's The Perfect Alibi took place in new Memorial hall last night. This was the Playmakers' last public performance of the year and the only mystery play presented by the group.

The Perfect Alibi, originally a New York production, was directed by Samuel Selden, while under his direction, Mary Dirnberger designed and executed the settings. A musical program was offered during the production by the faculty chamber orchestra under the leadership of Lamar Stringfield.

Included in the cast were Susan Creech as Mrs. Fulverton-Fane, John Sehon as Jimmy Ludgrove, Betsy Perrow as Susan Cunningham, Whitner Bissell as Edward Laverick, Arthur Marpet as Edward P. Carter, Robert Novins as Major Fothergill, Marion Tatum as Jane West, William Chandler as Arthur Ludgrove, William Allsbrook as Adams, Charles Ell-edge as P. C. Mallet, and Tom Loy as Sergeant Mallet.
