EGYPTIAN PAPYRUS IS BEING UNROLLED

Work on the Egyptian papyrus, given to the archeological department by M. P. Gilmour, is progressing rapidly. A few days ago the papyrus was sent away to be repaired and mounted, and so far it has been unrolled about eighteen inches. Inscribed in red and black ink with hieroglyphics and illustrations, it is found to be, as was surmised, a Book of the Dead.

The papyrus was damaged in Egypt by white ants and before it can be mounted it must be repaired by experts. Rather than unroll it entirely in the mounting, it will probably be mounted partly unrolled in order that the appearance of the original papyrus roll and its contents. This gift will constitute the nucleus of the new collection made by the archeological department.

MEN CHOSEN FOR BINGHAM DEBATE

Hobgood and Uzzell Will Represent
Phi, and Shreve and Rutledge, Di.

The Bingham prize in debate, awarded annually at commencement will go to either Hamilton Hobgood, W. E. Uzzell, Clyde Shreve, or Carlyle Rutledge. These are the men who will represent the Di and Phi literary societies in the yearly event.

The Bingham prize is offered annually by Mr. R. W. Bingham in memory of his great-grandfather, grandfather, father, and brother who were closely connected with the University. It is presented for excellence in debate to members of the two societies.

Commencement Events

The contest takes place annually as an event in the commencement program. Two representatives are chosen from each of the two societies and the final decision is made at commencement.

This year the query is: Resolved: that the emergence of women from the home is a regrettable feature of modern life." The Di will uphold the affirmative side of the question while Phi members will speak for the negative. Hobgood and Uzzell have been chosen to represent the Phi while Shreve and Rutledge will represent the other society.

Play Presented As Degree Requirement

Rest For My Soul, a play written by Anne Braddy, student of the University, was presented in the Playmakers theatre last night. The play, which is entirely experimental, deals with the problem of the intermixture of the whites and the blacks. There are four white and six negro characters.

The cast consisted of: Hattie Lou, Betty Jones; Zook, Phillip Milhous; Judetha, Ellen Stewart; Mr. Gibson, Laurence Miller; Jane Gibson, Bess Winburn; Mrs. Bass, Marjorie Good, Magnolia, Adelaide Reed; Gus, Charles Ayres; Hugh, Ralph Westerman; and Luvinia, Ann Braddy.

This play, the first ever to be presented as part requirement for an M.A. degree, was given before the English faculty committee. Others who were present attended by special invitation.

Playmakers' Thirteenth Season Sees Active Theatre Production

In Spite of Trips Being Abandoned, Local Group Presents Plays
Employing Two Hundred and Forty-Seven Persons As Well As Engaging in Scenery Manufacture.

Two hundred and forty-seven students took part in some phase of the Playmakers' productions during the past session of the University, making this the busiest home year that the dramatic organization has ever experienced. A total of fifty-five plays were produced in The Playmakers Theatre by the organization itself and thirty-four other programs were put on by professional companies and high school organizations. When no tours were taken on account of prevailing business conditions throughout the country, The Playmakers concentrated their activities in their own theatre at Chapel Hill, and writing, acting, costuming, designing, producing, directing, and technical and business work each claimed its votaries. As a result, the procession of rehearsals, readings, exhibits, lectures, and actual productions has overflowed the theatre and made necessary the use of the scene shop in Person hall as an auxiliary as well as the Parish house of the Episcopal church and the stage of the recently constructed Memorial hall.

Outside Attractions
One hundred and seventy-five one-act plays were written during the year and of these thirty-two were given production in the theatre, two of these being full-length plays. Among the outside attractions given were seven productions by professional companies, including the Ben Greet players, the Jitney players, and the Sue Hastings marionettes, two programs of original folk music and one reading of an original folk opera, The Mountain Song, by a Pulitzer prize winning composer, Lamar Stringfield. There were seven public readings of plays by professional playwrights, including Green Grow the Lilacs, a week after its New York premiere, and Cherokee Night by the author himself, Lynn Riggs, and Tread the Green Grass, by Paul Green,

Carolina Pulitzer winner. Eight lectures on the theatre were given by such prominent visitors as Percy MacKaye, Barrett Clark, Lynn Riggs, Phillips Russell, and Paul Green.

Scene Shop

In the technical department The Playmakers have also been extremely active this year. They equipped a new scene shop in Person hall for the construction and painting of their scenery, and have given two public exhibits of stage and costume designs by students.

In addition to the original plays, a number of pieces of professional authorship were produced by the Playmakers, among them The Importance of Being Earnest, East Lynne, and The Perfect Alibi. Also, two special programs have been given—The Annual Twelfth Night Revel, The Annual Caper, and a radio performance of an original one-act play, Git Up An' Bar the Door, a Mississippi folk-play.

Dramatic Festival

As a center of the state's interest in dramatics, the Playmakers Theatre was the scene of the annual Dramatic Festival of the Carolina Dramatic association, when the high schools and colleges throughout the state put on twenty plays, six of which were original. One, Ridin' the Goat, was written by a Negro and acted by students from St. Augustine's College for Negroes at Raleigh.

Forty-seven students have been given intensive training and practical work in acting, directing, and scenery design, and construction in regular University courses, while fifty-five have been enthusiastically engaged in original dramatic writing.

All in all, the Carolina Playmakers, in sixty-eight performances, played to more than 15,000 persons, in their small theatre at Chapel Hill since September.

Students Vote 806 To 74 To Use Graham Memorial

Plessow Returns To German University

Dr. Gustav Plessow, who has for the past few months been a visiting professor at the University from the University of Tubingen, left last night to return to Germany. He will go by way of New York and New Haven, where he will spend a few days at Yale university.

Dr. Plessow has been studying the point of view of the American people, which he will teach in his department of Americana at Tubingen, and has at the same time been delivering a series of lectures in the English department here. At a future time Dr. Plessow hopes to return to the United States and study at Universities in other sections of the country.

TWELVE CLASSES TO UNITE IN JUNE

Three Thousand Invitations Issued to Alumni Holding Reunions at Commencement.

Plans for the 136th annual commencement of the University this June have at last been completed. Copies of the program for the exercises and entertainments have been sent out to over three thousand alumni whose classes are scheduled to meet here for Alumni day, Monday, June 8.

U. N. C. News Reel

A novel feature of the list of entertainments will be the presentation of a U. N. C. news reel at 10:00 a. m. both Monday and Tuesday mornings, June 8 and 9. This reel includes the inauguration of President E. K. Graham in 1914, and many other interesting events that will be familiar to the returning grads.

Twelve classes are expected to be represented at the alumni reunion, including those of '81, '91, '92, '93, '94, '01, '06, '10, '11, '12, '13, and '30. Invitations have been sent out to these three thousand alumni, and a large percentage of this group is expected to attend. Several of the dormitories will be available for their accommodation, and also the Carolina inn.

The complete commencement program is printed elsewhere.

City Fathers Arrange Next Year's Budget

A special meeting of the Chapel Hill board of aldermen was called last Wednesday night at which several officers were appointed and reappointed. B. D. Sawyer was appointed town attorney and prosecuting attorney for the recorder's court; M. W. Durham was appointed clerk of the recorder's court; J. M. Foushee was reappointed city manager; and Miss Josephine Osborne, town clerk.

The meeting was mainly devoted to the discussion of next year's budget. The town auditor made a report showing the expenditures for last year and recommended an extra month in the budget caused by adding the month May 31 to June 30 to the fiscal year. Since this extra month will be taken care of in the present budget the tax rate will remain the same. The standing committee of the board of aldermen will go into details of the budget at a further hearing at the next regular meeting of the board, June 10.

UNION BUILDING IS FINALLY REALIZED AFTER LONG WAIT

Campus-Wide Balloting Shows
Three Dollar Assessment To Class Fees Advocated.

Graham Memorial Union building will be used during the coming year. Such was the overwhelming decision of the campus on the basis of the election which was run off all day yesterday. The final tabulation showed 806 votes for and seventy-four against the proposition that a fee of one dollar a quarter be levied on all students for the maintenance and furnishing of this student center.

Organization Meeting

With this favorable decision the work of organization and equipment which have been held up until this election will now go forward. These various groups have already been chosen and consist of students, faculty, and alumni. The meeting of the board of directors of the union will take place today, and everyone having suggestions as to what uses could be made of the building and to whom the various activity rooms should be assigned will have the opportunity to express themselves.

The ballot stressed another important fact—that the total fees of only the freshman and sophomore classes will in reality be changed. The three dollars a year will be added to their present fee of a dollar and a half. The junior and senior classes will pay the same total amount that they have been paying during the past, for three dollars will be transferred from their present fee to the Graham Memorial fund. The reason for this is that these fees have been found to be too high anyway.

GIRLS TO DISCUSS COTTON QUESTION

Two High School Students Will Appear Here in State-Wide
Contest.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock, in the seminar room of Bingham hall, Miss Temesia Laws, of Rougemont, Durham county, and Miss Elizabeth Barrington, of R.F.D. No. 2, Raleigh, Wake county, will speak on the subject, "Cotton Cooperative Marketing in North Carolina—Its Progress and Its Future."

These two young ladies are competing for valuable cash prizes and for the right to enter the Central District Essay Contest sponsored by the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association. The result of the contest between these two girls will determine whether Wake or Durham county will furnish the representative in the district contest.

State-Wide Contest

This contest is a part of the state-wide essay contest which is being conducted in the high schools by the Cotton Growers Association. These speakers are the winners of elimination contests in their counties and their speeches are expected to be both instructive and entertaining.

The program will be in charge of Dr. S. H. Hobbs of the division of rural and social economics. All students are invited to attend.
