FOUNDER'S DAY TO BE OBSERVED BY MANY ALUMNI

Executive Secretary Saunders Announces Plans for Gala Celebration, October 12.

University alumni will celebrate founder's day on October 12 with more alumni meetings than have been held in several years, according to plans made by J. Maryon Saunders, executive secretary of the General Alumni Association.

Alumni groups in approximately fifty communities in North Carolina and in alumni centers outside the State are preparing for October 12 meetings next month, according to Secretary Saunders who has just completed an extensive tour of North Carolina towns, during which he held conferences with officers and other interested alumni of local alumni groups.

To Dedicate Auditorium

Exercises in Chapel Hill in celebration of the University natal day will take place in the new Memorial hall on the morning of October 12, and will also include later in the day the dedication of the new auditorium.

New Memorial hall, the successor to the oddly shaped Memorial hall torn away over a year ago, was used for the first time last January. Plans call for a supper meeting of University alumni in Chapel Hill to take place in the evening in Graham Memorial.

Towns Represented

Members of the faculty and prominent alumni will be invited to address the local meetings of the University alumni. Among towns in which meetings are being planned are: Sanford, Rockingham, Southern Pines, Raeford, Fayetteville, Selma, Goldsboro, Kinston, New Bern, Wilmington, Lumberton, Warrenton, Henderson, Oxford, Raleigh, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Wilson, Roanoke Rapids, Burlington, Greensboro, High Point, Lexington, Winston-Salem, Mount Airy, North Wilkesboro, Hickory, Lenoir, Asheville, Morganton, Marion, Lincolnton, Gastonia, Charlotte, Concord, Albemarle, Salisbury, Statesville, Durham and Chapel Hill. Cities outside North Carolina in which alumni gatherings are contemplating include: Norfolk, Virginia, Atlanta, Chicago, New York, and San Francisco.

In a letter written to presidents in local alumni groups, K. P. Lewis, of Durham, president of the General Alumni Association, strongly urges that local alumni meetings be arranged this year. "The University is living through a very critical period, when heavily cut budgets are making it difficult to run at all, and it would be greatly cheered by having the alumni display this fall an unusual interest in our Alma Mater," he wrote.

Loan Funds

All students needing loans from the University loan funds who have not yet made application for such assistance are requested to meet in Gerrard hall at 10:30 this morning.

FRESHMEN GIVEN TALK BY COOPER ON FRATERNITIES

President of the Interfraternity Council Defines Rushing Rules Effective This Year.

John Phil Cooper, president of the interfraternity council, addressed the freshman-sophomore assemblage in chapel yesterday morning on the subject, "Fraternalities." He was introduced by Henry Johnston, Jr., assistant dean of students, who presided over the chapel program.

"Hark the Sound" was sung by the group after which Johnston made announcement of the Freshman Friendship Council supper which occurred in Graham Memorial building last night. The assistant dean of students then introduced the speaker.

No Antagonism

Cooper began his address by making it emphatically known that there is no antagonism between fraternity and non-fraternity men on the University campus and advised those freshmen who did not receive an invitation to visit a fraternity house not to feel offended. He then gave the cost of fraternity life, stating that it was merely a college luxury, absolutely an extra cost from other assessments. In defining "rushing," the interfraternity council president said that it involved entertainment of freshmen by fraternity men as engaging in social conversation or any other ways of entertainment, stating that no fraternity men were to pay for any entertainment of freshmen.

Three Considerations

"There are three vital things to be considered by the freshman who is planning to join a social fraternity," stated the speaker. These three were pointed out as: the personnel of the local chapter; the local standing of the chapter; and its national standing. Cooper urged every freshman who is contemplating joining a lodge to consider carefully these three points.

Concluding, the speaker told the group that rushing rules as set forth by the interfraternity council must be strictly obeyed and that there was to be no rushing during the Carolina-Wake Forest football game or at meal time. As a future reference for the new men who might want further advice on the subject, Cooper recommended Dean Francis F. Bradshaw, dean of students.

Everett Dormitory Elects New Officers

Magazine Writer Is Attracted By Books

Because of the inspiration derived from books by E. C. Branson, head of the University department of rural-social economics, Lewis Carr, magazine writer, is now visiting Chapel Hill to meet the man who wrote them.

Before Mr. Carr began magazine work he was a newspaper man and farmer. It was while he was on the staff of a Dayton, Ohio, paper that he read the books and articles by E. C. Branson, which prompted him to come to Chapel Hill.

Last week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post contains an article written by Mr. Carr in collaboration with Charles E. Kettering, vice-president of the General Motors Company, entitled, Industry at the Crossroads.

GRAHAM SPEAKS AT CONVOCATION IN MANNING HALL

President in His Address Describes Lawyers as Craftsmen and as Citizens.

For the first time within five years, a professional school of the University will depend upon the discretion of its students to attend their classes and will make class-room attendance a student obligation. Such a change, together with the procedure by which law students are certified for the state bar examinations, was announced at the annual convocation of the law school yesterday morning in Manning hall.

Students in professional schools enjoyed this privilege up until five years ago when authorities in all of them abolished optional attendance. Juniors and seniors in undergraduate schools were also free from attendance regulations until last year when all cuts were limited almost to a minimum. This program of the faculty has met with such opposition since the limitation, but the law school is the first to leave the matter to the student's discretion.

New Men Welcomed

Allen Langston, president of the law school association, welcomed the new students and introduced Dean M. T. Van Hecke. The speaker told the law students that regular attendance in classes would continue to be a student obligation but no attendance records would be kept and class attendance would be incident to the student's work.

Mr. Van Hecke stated that this action had been taken with the unanimous consent of the law faculty which expected the new plan to work better than the old system which reduced credit after sixteen absences. The speaker is reported to have stated that the law school instructors were no policemen.

Certification Limited

Mr. Van Hecke then announced that after September, 1932, the law school would certify no (Continued on last page)

FIRST PEP RALLY IS WELL ATTENDED

A large crowd of students, filling the new Memorial hall, attended the pep meeting last night in preparation of celebrating the Wake Forest game today.

The meeting was led by Billy Arthur, cheerleader, who had planned the program.

Mr. Graham's talk was on the Carolina traditions, and he urged the students to not only back the team to the utmost, but to play the game in the Carolina way, the fair way.

Between each speech there were several yells and the meeting broke up with the singing of "Hark the Sound."
