

Cardinals Even Series As Hallahan Shutsout A's With Three Safeties

"Wild Bill" Hallahan Scores in Second Shutout Over Athletics in a World Series.

"PEPPER" MARTIN STARS Sensational Centerfielder Scores Two Runs, Steals Two Bases, and Leads Cards at Bat.

By Thomas H. Broughton
"Wild Bill" Hallahan held the Athletics to three hits and no runs to give the Cardinals a 2-0 victory and even the series at one all. If you remember, it was Hallahan who shutout the Athletics 5-0 last year, allowing seven hits. Except for an occasional streak of wildness, Hallahan was in even better form today and the big guns of Philadelphia were silenced with three scattered singles.

George Earnshaw, big Athletic righthander, was in great form himself, but the Red Birds from St. Louis were not to be denied and "Big George" was touched for seven hits and two runs.

"Pepper" Martin, rookie center gardener of the Cardinals, has proved to be the sensation of the series. It was Martin, who scored the first run of the game for the Cardinals. "Pepper" doubled to left field, stole third, and came home on Wilson's fly to center. Again in the seventh Martin singled and stole second, making a total of three stolen bases for the series thus far. Martin later came home on the ancient squeeze play, Gelbert bunting perfectly.

Hallahan experienced two bad innings, but excellent field kept the Athletics from scoring. The first threat of the Mackmen came in the fifth. Walks to Williams and Foxx, Miller's single, and Dykes sacrifice left the bases loaded and one man down. However a fast double play, Frisch to Gelbert to Bottomley, on Earnshaw's grounder retired the side.

Again in the final frame the A's threatened. Foxx opened the inning with a walk, Miller fied out to Hafey, Dykes walked, Williams fanned, and Wilson dropped the third strike on Moore, who was safe at first. However "Sunny Jim" Bottomley took Bishop's foul out of an old ladies' lap to end the game.

"Dib" Williams, twenty-one year old Portland flash, again featured for the Philadelphians. Williams walked twice in four times at bat and starred afield, racing into left to take a fly on one occasion.

Al Simmons again provided one of the fielding features with a one-handed catch of Frisch's long fly that was headed for the fence.

Martin and Watkins, with a double and a single each, and Gelbert, with two singles, led the Cardinals at bat. Haas, Miller, and Foxx gathered the Athletics' three hits.

Hoyt or Walberg and Grimes will probably pitch in Monday's game at Philadelphia. However there is a possibility that Grove

Report To Editor

The editor of the Daily Tar Heel requests that Jack Besen and Don Shoemaker meet with him Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, if they wish to be reinstated on the staff.

Special Bulletin

Chattanooga, Tennessee, October 2.—The University of North Carolina football team stopped off here today to engage in its final practice session before meeting their first Southern Conference opponent of the year in Nashville tomorrow.

Today's workout consisted of final defensive drill against the plays expected to be used by Vanderbilt, a short dummy scrimmage, and a session of pass receiving and punt returning. Although the Tar Heels went without scrimmage they were given plenty to do and were kept busy throughout the two hour drill.

The Tar Heels left Chattanooga tonight for Nashville where they will rest until game time Saturday. Today's workout was held on the University of Chattanooga field.

BRANCH IS ALWAYS SCORING THREAT

Johnny Branch has to be surrounded before he's downed. The tackler in the right hand bottom corner thought sure he had Branch, but the diminutive quarterback is out and landing on two feet and a hand, ready to spring away from the Wake Forest tacklers bearing down on him. Today will see most of the Southern Conference teams meet their second opponents of the year, and the day's lay out promises plenty of excitement for those interested in the great God football. Georgia, Georgia Tech, Florida, and Kentucky will be playing their first games of the season while Auburn is the only school in the Conference that will be idle.

Carolina-Vanderbilt

This game is going to supply quite a bit of action and somebody may get a surprise before it's all over. We'd like very much to predict that the Tar Heels are going to come out on top and get a flying start towards the Conference crown, but things don't point that way. Vandy has a great team and has been rated as one of the strongest teams in the South this year, while the Tar Heels are still in the dark horse class. Whatever the outcome, there's going to be a battle, and if the Tar Heels can get the right breaks they may come through with one of the season's biggest upsets. Branch, Slusser et al may come through to win, but we'll go down as picking Vandy to win by about one touchdown.

Florida-State

Florida is supposedly pretty weak this year, but we have an idea that the Gators have been keeping something under cover and will give the Techmen a warm afternoon of it. State showed plenty of power last Saturday against the Davidson Wildcats, and should come through with the victory. By about one touchdown, we should say.

Duke-V. M. I.

The Blue Devils picked a nice one for their Homecoming event, and everyone should leave Durham with a happy feeling—that is, except the Cadets. Duke should take this game without any trouble, and unless the V. M. I. fighting spirit is too much in evidence should roll up two or three touchdowns.

Tulane-Texas Aggies

Tulane has another great team this year and although the Aggies from down in the Panhandle are usually no weaklings themselves, we figure the Greenies to come out on the long end of the scorekeeper's tabulations. The score will probably not be overwhelming by any means, and if the Aggies come out best don't be surprised. However, call it Tulane by a touchdown.

Tech-South Carolina

Georgia Tech opens its season today against the Gamecocks of South Carolina. The South

High Spots Of The Series

By TOM WALKER

Manager "Gabby" Street pulled an ace, "Wild Bill" Hallahan, out of his pack of Cards that Connie Mack couldn't take with his A's, and it looks as though it may be in the Cards for St. Louis to have a world championship club.

Hallahan started off like Deringer, striking out two men in the first inning, but the port-sider finished quite a bit better than his teammate. Bill put down the first eleven men to face him. The three hits the A's got were scattered out over the same number of innings.

"Pepper" Martin, little five-foot centerfielder for the Red Birds, got a big hand from the crowd when he came to bat in the second, and he gallantly responded with a double, a stolen base, and the first run of the game. Getting two hits and two runs yesterday, the big, little man seems to be determined to show the world his performance Thursday was no fluke.

"Mickey" Cochrane was the first Athletic to get on base, Hallahan passing him in the fourth. "Bing" Miller, singling in the fifth, was the first Mackman to hit Hallahan safely.

Al Simmons went back to the oil sign in left field to pull another drive off the fence. "Sunny Jim" Bottomley, St. Louis first baseman, went to the barrier to catch a foul off the bat of Jimmy Dykes, and in the ninth Jim made a catch that was probably the most pleasing one of the game to the St. Louis fans. He reached over the wall of the stands to take a foul out of a lady's lap for the final put-out. Watkins, Cardinal rightfielder, also came in for his share of the glory by picking a fly ball off the fence and throwing in to hold Haas at first.

Bottomley got Earnshaw's first and only complimentary ticket to first base in the eighth inning.

At least one world conference of the year accomplished something. The Cardinal infield held a meeting with Hallahan in the fifth, and then with the bases full, a double play by Frisch, Gelbert, and Bottomley, retiring the A's, spoiled the first chance to score that Philadelphia had. Maybe we'd get some results if those Cardinals were put to work on the unemployment situation.

The oil wells had to shut down soon or late. There are just so many corners. — Waterbury American.

TOUCH FOOTBALL WILL OPEN FALL MURAL PROGRAM

Fourteen Fraternities and Twenty-Seven Dormitories in Tag Football Leagues.

This year, as in past years, the University is doing its part to carry out the intramural slogan, "every student in some form of healthful exercise." With this in mind, G. E. Shepard, director, and R. Mac Gray, assistant director of the department of intramural athletics, have worked out a diversified program for each quarter of the current year, in an effort to interest as many of the students as possible. Mac Gray is now spending much of his time in organizing the fraternities and dormitories for the annual tag football tournament. Last year sixty percent of the students took part in some form of athletics and it is hoped that still a larger percentage will participate this year.

Tag Football First Sport

Starting Monday and lasting six weeks a series of tag football games between the various dormitories and fraternities will take place. Fourteen dormitories and twenty-seven fraternities, making a total of forty-one teams, are entered in the tournament. Each team will play eight games, then the dormitory winner will play the fraternity winner to decide the champion of the campus. All men not on the varsity or freshman football squad and who have not received a varsity award in football are eligible to play for their dormitory or fraternity team. Many teams are now preparing for the tournament and are holding practices at various places on the campus. Other dormitories and fraternities are urged to organize their teams at once.

GRID-GRAPH WILL REPORT TAR HEEL VANDERBILT TILT

Play-by-Play Account of Game Will Be Shown in Memorial Hall.

A grid-graph report of the Carolina-Vanderbilt game will be shown this afternoon in Memorial hall beginning at 3:30 o'clock. The price of admission has been reduced to twenty-five cents, instead of the fifty which was charged last year. This is said to be the actual cost price, and the Athletic Association will merely break even on the total receipts.

The grid-graph which was used last year has been entirely remodeled, with a new coat of paint as well as a new lighting system. The device is placed on the stage of the hall, making it possible for each spectator to follow the game without any inconvenience of having to stand up to watch the plays.

In Use Several Years

The plan of showing the report of the game on the grid-graph was first introduced here some five or six years ago, and has been used since that time at varied intervals. It is doubtful as to whether the Athletic Association will clear any profits, unless the size of the crowd is exceptionally large.

Each play is telegraphed direct from the sidelines at Nashville and is reported on the grid-graph by the use of lights. When anyone carries the ball a light goes on by the side of the man's name who is doing the running.
