

BAGBY TALKS ON PSYCHOLOGY AND RELIGIOUS IDEALS

Second of Series of Lectures on
New Phases of Religion
Given Sunday.

Dr. English Bagby, of the psychology department, spoke to a large group last Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church on "Some Phases of the Psychology of Religion." The talk was one of a series which was started by Dean F. F. Bradshaw last week, and Dr. Bagby's remarks were on the same theme as Dean Bradshaw's.

Mental Deficiencies

In opening Dr. Bagby listed several characteristics causing mental deficiencies in some otherwise normal beings, as given by Dr. Alfred Adler. These were lack of social sense, lack of kindly attitude, lack of intimate social service, and the fact that they were very competitive, self-centered in their attitudes, and pre-occupied with themselves. The speaker stressed that what was needed was less argument about the truths of religion and more constructive work to improve the world.

Continuing he stated that one needs more than good intentions, more than prayer, although prayer provides an impetus, and that one must use intelligence to be religious. He went on to say that what one doesn't do, and the "thou shalt not" that one keeps from, do not necessarily make good men.

Can't Define Religion

"Many people do not know what religion really is. We frequently only have what passes as religion the 'thou shalt not' and silly taboos." Dr. Bagby went on to say that people ought to get away from the trivial things and the inadequate fragmentary ideas of religion, and do some real social service, which is greatly needed. An example given by the speaker of getting out and doing some practical social service was just being friendly to a friendless student.

Following the talk the meeting was thrown open for discussion and quite a number of questions were asked. "Parson" W. D. Moss will be the speaker at the meeting next Sunday night at 7:30.

Graduate Student Is Chinese School Dean

Student representatives from foreign colleges are no longer a novelty to the American university, but it is still nothing short of infrequent to find a dean studying during the winter at one of our institutions of higher education. Carolina may be justly proud of the fact, therefore, that Miss Mary T. H. Kwei, dean of women, at the Central Chinese college at Wuchang, China, is taking courses in the school of education.

Miss Kwei met Professor Edgar Wallace Knight of that school in China last January. She became interested in the work he was doing down here and decided to round out her educational learning under his tutelage. Hence, she arrived here this fall and will study for a masters degree this year and next summer, as a graduate student with Professor Knight.

After completing her work at the University, Miss Kwei will return to her position at the Wuchang college, of which she is a graduate.

A. I. C. E. To Hold First Meeting Of The Year

The local student branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers will meet tonight at 7:30 in room 201 of Venable hall.

E. O. Bryant, a senior in the chemical engineering department, will give a talk on the "Manufacture of Cellophane." Mr. Bryant was located at the DuPont cellophane plant this summer, and his talk should be of interest to everyone.

The details of the prize contest that is to be opened by the national institute will be given and explained fully. This contest is open for members of student chapters only.

Although the local chapter had a short meeting two weeks ago this is the first regular meeting of the year. There is some important business to be taken up, and all members are urged to be present.

GRAIL SETS FOUR DANCES FOR FALL

Extra Event Scheduled Because of Overcrowding on Spring
Social Program.

The Order of the Grail will sponsor four dances this fall, according to the information issued yesterday by the society.

The Grail has usually sponsored three dances a quarter, but members have felt that the spring term is overcrowded with dances and social events and that an extra dance in the longer fall quarter would serve the student body better.

Schedule of Dances

The first dance of the series this fall was given September 28 and was considered highly successful. The second event of the quarter will take place October 24, the evening of the Tennessee-Carolina game. The third is scheduled for November 7, after the Carolina-Davidson game here, and December 7 is the date for the final occasion.

Jelly Leftwich and his orchestra from Durham will probably be secured for the next dance which is scheduled for October 24.

Di and Phi Bills

The following bills are on the Phi assembly's calendar for discussion at tonight's meeting:

1. Resolved: That the Phi assembly go on record as favoring representation from the freshman class on the student council.

2. Resolved: That the Phi assembly go on record as opposed to any legislative limitation on cotton acreage in North Carolina.

The Di senate has the following bills up for discussion:

1. Resolved: That democracies have failed to be a rule of the whole people.

2. Resolved: That the dismissal of Dr. Carl Taylor from State college at Raleigh was unwarranted and unjustified.

3. Resolved: That communism does not offer permanent happiness or representative government.

4. Resolved: That the police system of the United States is corrupt and inefficient.

5. Resolved: That the dissemination of birth control information to married persons at the discretion of doctors be legalized.

6. Resolved: That cement sidewalks be laid upon the campus.

'BEGGAR'S OPERA' IS FIRST STUDENT PROGRAM NUMBER

Satire on Ancient English Laws
Has Been Accorded Success
Wherever Presented.

The classical old musical comedy, The Beggar's Opera, to be produced in Memorial hall October 30, under the auspices of the Student Entertainment Committee, was written by John Gay in the year 1727 and first performed at Lincoln Inn theatre in London, January 29, 1728. From the first performance the success of the opera was assured, and since that time each of its innumerable revivals has been a conspicuous success; so much so that it has been declared the most successful piece ever produced on the English stage.

Is a Satire

The play is a satire on the politics and criminal laws of Gay's day. At that time the English criminal code was in sore need of reform. The punishment for stealing, pocket-picking, shop-lifting, and similar crimes was hanging. Capital offenses were common. In such a state of affairs there was bound to be abuses and graft. Servants of the law called "informers" extorted money from the people by threatening to bring them to court. Jail keepers even took money in giving

Alumni Basement Is Stenog's Cold Spot

While the rest of the faculty and students were sweating and cussing the heat Monday, the stenographers in the offices of the University of North Carolina Press were vainly trying to keep warm.

Until expert testimony on the subject is available it cannot be determined whether it is the cool of the Alumni building basement, where the University Press offices are located, or the frigid disposition of the stenographers, which makes this the coolest spot on the campus.

But it is true that when a representative of The Daily Tar Heel visited the offices at high noon on Monday he discovered two stenographers sitting in the full glare of a mammoth electric heater. "It's a little chilly down here," one of the girls explained.

Mrs. Shallna spoke of her experiences in the law profession and of the problems of women lawyers generally.

Those present were Misses Susie Sharp, Lucile Elliot, Reeme Moore, Mary White, Naomi Alexander, Cecile Piltz, Mrs. Dorothy Andrews and Mrs. A. C. McIntosh.

Philological Society

A meeting of the Philological Society will take place this evening at 7:30 in the lounge of the Graduate Club. Dr. Boggs will speak on "Gathering Folk-Lore in North Carolina." This organization meets on the first Tuesday of each month, unless something interferes.

DEBATING TEAM WILL ORGANIZE THURSDAY NIGHT

Old and New Men Will Be Welcomed at First Meeting of Quarter.

A meeting for all those in the University who are interested in debating will take place Thursday evening at 7:30 in room 201 Murphey hall, where the squad met last year. All candidates will find a welcome at a discussion of debating technique, and an analysis of the virtues and faults of the forensic system in use here. Experienced debaters will find the criticisms helpful toward the gaining of a varsity berth.

New Debaters Welcomed

Inexperienced and would-be debaters are welcome, for as Professor W. A. Olsen, debating coach, explains, "A large part of the responsibility of the coach is in teaching debating."

Professor Olsen also wishes it known to freshmen that there are no restrictions against a freshman's debating with the varsity in intercollegiate events. He calls attention to the fact that in recent years freshmen have held squad positions, one even having debated against Oxford in the annual meet three years ago.

It is probable that the squad will convene every Thursday night at the same time in Murphey.

Man And Wife Are Killed In Accident

Eric Davis, white, age twenty-two, was instantly killed Friday afternoon about 12:00 when the car which he was driving left the road. His wife, sister to Rev. Carr of Chapel Hill, died at 8:00 o'clock Friday night in the Duke hospital.

Davis was driving down hill in a model "T" Ford at a rapid rate of speed. The car left the road and turned over in a ditch, and righted itself again.

Mr. D. B. Waters was the first persons upon the scene. He saw the car approaching his home before the accident occurred, and he reported that Davis, his wife, and baby were thrown from the car.

Mrs. Davis was found on the ditch-bank in a semi-conscious condition. Mr. Davis was found lying dead in the ditch just above his wife, and the two year old baby was found underneath the vehicle, apparently not hurt.

Dr. Nathan, Orange county coroner, was at once called to the scene. After an investigation, he found an inquest not necessary. Davis's body was turned over to the Hillsboro Funeral Home, and Mrs. Davis was rushed to the Duke hospital where she died later.

Dwight Morrow Dies

Dwight W. Morrow, Republican senator from New Jersey, and former member of the London conference on naval disarmament, was found dead yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage at his home at Englewood, New Jersey. Mr. Morrow won much fame with his activities as United States ambassador to Mexico, and also as the first Republican of any consequence to be elected on a wet ticket. He became Lindbergh's father-in-law, when his daughter, Anne, married the aviator two years ago.

DR. BAGBY SPEAKS TO CHAPEL GROUP

Psychology Department Head
Gives Pointers on How to Study Effectively.

"How to Study" was the topic upon which Dr. English Bagby, of the psychology department, addressed the first and second year men in chapel yesterday morning.

Commenting briefly on the two subjects of math and modern languages, the speaker said that if the student would rid himself of the feeling of tension on class, and devote more time to discussion better results would be obtained.

Anticipate Questions

Next the psychology professor spoke of a procedure for studying history and English. He stated that in studying these courses the scholar should be able to anticipate certain questions which might be asked on class, and find sufficient answers to these questions. The speaker stated that an instructor might stress things not labeled as important in the text. "The Phi Beta Kappa man knows what he will be asked within a narrow range of what he has studied," continued Dr. Bagby. As a bit of further advice he mentioned the usefulness of underlining words and phrases.

Finally Dr. Bagby said that it was extremely important that the student make a hasty review of underlined matter and notes before class begins.

KNIGHT WILL GIVE TWO LECTURES IN NEW YORK

KOCH AND GREEN INVITED TO HELP SPONSOR PAGEANT

Historical Celebration to Commemorate Founding of Roanoke Colony Is Planned.

Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, and Paul Green, playwright and assistant professor here, have been invited to attend a meeting of the Dare County Chamber of Commerce today which proposes to lay a foundation for a Roanoke Island historical pageant.

Roanoke Island was the first settlement in North America made by the English people, and perhaps the first attempt to colonize on the continent. The colony was sent out by Sir Walter Raleigh and became the famous "lost colony."

Idea of Pageant

The idea of the historical pageant was recently advanced by W. O. Saunders, "the militant editor of Elizabeth City." The Dare County Chamber of Commerce proposes to give such a pageant, and are inviting leaders in North Carolina to give the idea support.

Professor Koch has been the exponent of folk-drama in North Carolina while Green was winner of the Pulitzer play-writing prize of 1927.

Invitation

The following invitation has been sent to Koch and Green. "We cordially invite and urge you to join with us in a meeting to be held Tuesday at Manteo, 8:00 p. m., October 6, for the purpose of formulating plans and naming a committee of distinguished North Carolinians to lay a foundation and vigorously support a Roanoke Island historical pageant along the lines suggested by W. O. Saunders in his editorial 'A Read Idea' which we understand you have read. The success of this movement is of tremendous importance to our state and we predict nation-wide interest will result from this meeting.

"Come please.
"Dare County Chamber of Commerce. D. B. Fearing, Sec."

Carolina Students Make High Grades In Medical Exams

Of about five hundred medical students from all parts of the country who took the June examinations given by the National Board of Medical Examiners, four students of the University Medical School made leading grades. These students took examinations in the various divisions of medicine—atomy, pharmacology, physiology, chemistry, surgery, hygiene and public health, medicine, bacteriology, pathology, and clinical medicine—and made good grades in one or more divisions.

William Fowler and Jean McAllister, graduates of the medical school last June, tied for the lead in the division of pharmacology with a grade of 93. Dr. Sarah Vance Thompson, '29, and Vanderbilt '31, was one of three making the highest mark in hygiene and public health with a grade of 97. She also made 96 in bacteriology. Louis Appel, '31, made a grade of 98 in bacteriology and 91 in anatomy.

Passing the National Board Examinations qualifies a medical student to practice in almost every state in the country.
