

TAR HEEL STRAW VOTE IS BROUGHT TO GLORIOUS END

Hoover, Roosevelt, and Thomas
Are Victorious in Presidential Nomination Ballot.

When the Carrboro Express thunders out of the Chapel Hill Union Depot tomorrow morning on its trans-continental run to Durham, the forward mail coach will contain three letters from the Daily Tar Heel to Franklin Delano Roosevelt, governor of New York state, Norman Thomas, and Herbert Hoover, congratulating them on their victories in the presidential straw vote, which was brought to a close by the Tar Heel yesterday afternoon.

Leading Roosevelt by barely twenty votes, Owen D. Young threatened to beat the Empire State governor out for the Democratic nomination, but Roosevelt forged ahead yesterday with an avalanche of votes to poll a total of 1132. Young's total was 845.

Hoover's victory in the ranks of the G. O. P. was undisputed and the present chief executive led all other candidates, regardless of party, with a total of 2023. Norman Thomas was the successful Socialist candidate, with a final tally of 345.

Thus has the Daily Tar Heel shown the way to the nation by calling its subscribers to rally to the cause of their favorite candidates. So gratifying has been the success of the poll that the Daily Tar Heel recommends to the Republican, Democratic and Socialist national committees that they forthwith select the three men victorious in our poll to carry the banners of their parties, thus dispensing with the expense and ennui of conventions.

Connor And Frazer On Leave Of Absence

Two of the members of the history department of this University are absent in Europe on leave. K. C. Frazer was sent abroad as a fellow of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace. He intends to study in London, Paris, and Geneva. He also hopes to conclude his studies of the late Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama. At present Frazer is attending the conference at Geneva of the League of Nations. In February he will attend the disarmament conference to be held there.

Dr. R. D. W. Connor, head of the history department, is abroad on the Kenan foundation. He is undertaking research work in the Record Office in London, in documents relating to the colonial history of North Carolina. Part of his time will be spent traveling on the continent. In the absence of Dr. Connor, Dean W. W. Pierson of the graduate school is acting head of the history department.

GEORGIA ROOTERS MIX WITH HEELS

Carolians and Georgians Battle Over Superiority of Two Football Teams.

An uproar which nearly developed into a general free for all arose late Friday night when a delegation from Georgia held a conference with the North Carolina committee on Inter-State Collegiate Relations at the aftermath of the pep meeting in Memorial hall. The boys from Georgia had made their presence known around 8:30 and some of them attended the pep meeting but, although they were somewhat noisy, they withheld their rowdiness until a more opportune moment. Realizing that they were greatly outnumbered, they did not advertise their presence until around 10:30. At this zero hour a group of these Georgia boys met up with some ardent Carolina supporters somewhere in the vicinity of far east quadrangle.

It all started very peaceably with an offer on the part of Georgia boys to make bets giving the Carolina supporters the greatest odds. Some of the Georgians seemed to be in a state not usually reached until the middle of the second quarter, and so naturally the Tar Heels were somewhat hesitant. The

Campus Philosophers Disagree With Whistling Moron Theory

Whistlers are not morons. Members of the philosophy and psychology departments of the University say so, and you can either take their word for it, or believe Dr. Charles Gray Shaw, professor of philosophy at New York university, who said last Tuesday that all whistlers are mentally deficient. Dr. Shaw insists that "if men whistle they are usually morons."

Dr. Shaw disconcerted readers of the world's news Tuesday morning and afternoon by saying that the whistler is not only a moron, "but if you whistle you reveal that you are devoid of moral stamina and that you possess an inferiority complex. No great or successful man ever whistles. Can you imagine of Einstein, Edison, or Mussolini tuning up to 'When the Moon Comes over the Mountain'?"

Irate readers disconcerted Dr. Shaw Wednesday with a barrage of such indignant protests that Thursday he modified his previous statement. "The ones who use the lips in whistling are the morons," he declared.

University students are beginning to worry as much as Robert Hunter MacGimsey, acknowledged whistling champion of New York City, who, the metropolitan press reports, "is vaguely troubled" and "wants to know."

Departments Disagree

Knowing professors on the campus were sought to refute or substantiate the awful charge. The results were delightfully gratifying. The psychology and philosophy departments are hopelessly divided upon the subject. Dr. H. H. Williams, venerable head of the philosophy department agrees with New York papers that Professor Shaw is a publicity hunter, only mildly interested in the intricacies of whistling and its power for expressing contentment and happiness. Dr. J. F. Dashiell, head of the psychology department, who knows the New York professor personally, holds that "the publicity he has received is not due to seeking on his own part."

Dr. Williams calls the drastic statement mere "nonsense." "I think the professor was just hunting for something to say," states the doctor. "There is a type of man who will hunt around for a statement that will startle people and attract attention to himself." New York papers have suspected that he was a trifle interested in the publicity for his latest book.

"Morons Can't Whistle"

"To my mind a moron can't whistle," said Dr. Williams. It has been rumored that Professor Shaw does not whistle.

"My notion is that he identifies morons with musicians," continued Williams. "If man makes music he's no moron." Professor N. O. Kennedy, of the music department, says "It's ridiculous."

Dr. Dashiell speaks of Professor Shaw as a "very genial and amiable gentleman, whose publicity is due to his warm interest in human nature, and his desire to get his students likewise interested." Dr. Shaw is enthusiastic, and, says Dr. Dashiell, "An enthusiast is likely to make overstatements, especially if it is incidental to driving home some other point. Shaw is a philosopher interested in romantic aspects of human life, rather than in the mere technical meta-physical problems."

"Why," continues Dashiell, "does a genial man like Professor Shaw dislike whistlers? If this were a very unusual dislike we might class it with Phobias and seek its explanation in terms of his own personal history. But there are many who dislike whistling. I am one," admits Dr. Shiel. "I like my whistling, but not the other fellow's."

Recalling a story, says Dr. Dashiell, "I remember a whistler in the drafting room of the Westinghouse Company at Pittsburgh who came near being ejected by the window route."

Dr. Dashiell grants that a moron can not be judged by whistling nor by any other single type of act.

MONOGRAPH ON WASHINGTON IS PREPARED BY DR. HENDERSON

University Professor Has Pamphlet on "Washington the Traveler" Printed by the United States Commission for Use in Celebrating Washington's Birth.

Dr. Archibald Henderson's most recent literary production, a monograph entitled, "Washington the Traveler," has been published by the United States Commission for the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Hundreds of thousands of copies of the fifty-page, paper-bound pamphlet will be distributed over the United States and American possessions.

This booklet is one of sixteen authorized by the United States Congress. A handful of distinguished scholars were selected by Dr. Albert B. Hart of Harvard university, editor of the series, to prepare these monographs; and Dr. Henderson was one of those selected.

He based his writing on two of his own books. One, Washington's Southern Tour, was published some years ago; the second, Washington's Northern Tours, is now being prepared for publication.

In his monograph, Dr. Henderson mentions many interesting and amusing events of Washington's travels. Of his tour through the Carolinas in 1791, Dr. Henderson states: "In North Carolina, entertainments and receptions greeted him at Halifax, Tarborough, and Greenville; and New Berne received him with unusual demonstrations of pleasure. At the latter place, he was twice entertained at the Palace, built by the royal governor, William Tryon; and by one of those singular reverses of destiny in which history is so rich, Tryon's office served as a stable for Washington's horses. A notable reception greeted Washington at Wilmington and the address of the citizens was doubtless very agreeable to Washington, in predicting 'the effectual operation of the new constitution.'"

The census-takers of that day were as unreliable as those of today, if we trust Washington's diary. He says: "Wilmington is situated on the Cape Fear River. It has some good houses pretty compactly built. The whole un-

REFURBISHING OF Y IS COMPLETED

Ceilings, Windows, and Woodwork All Repaired by Maintenance Department.

The entire Y. M. C. A. building has been renovated during the past few weeks by the department of the University in charge of the maintenance of the buildings. Ceilings have been replastered and calcimined; the woodwork painted; and the windows reworked. The old furniture has been repaired and new added.

Space that was ordinary allotted to other purposes has been re-allocated. One of the reading rooms has been renovated to suit the purposes of the Bull's Head bookshop. On the top floor space has been given the business school. Rooms for the heads of all the cabinets have been provided. The Y. M. C. A. has in its contract with unmarried secretaries the agreement that it will furnish them living quarters. There are also rooms provided for students connected with the Y.

The cost of all these repairs is not known. When the building was constructed, the University agreed to maintain it should the Y. M. C. A. build it, with the cost to come out of the general fund for maintenance of buildings.

CAMPUS SERVICE TO BE EMPHASIS OF WORK OF Y

Employment of Freshman Secretary Is First Step in Change of Policy.

The Y. M. C. A. has made one major change in its last year's policy, and that is the shifting of emphasis to campus service or the personal problems of the student, mainly those growing out of financial conditions. The first step in this direction was the discontinuance of stenographic service and the addition of the freshman secretary, Ed Hamer.

The Y. M. C. A. feels that it is necessary to devote a great deal of time in assisting the self-help students to secure jobs that will enable them to remain in school during the current depression.

The committee in charge of interracial work has also taken action to promote the welfare of the Negroes in this section. They will promote a charity football game between the Orange County Negro high school and Raleigh high school. They have assisted the local negro school to bring their library up to standard.

The Y. M. C. A. brought Kirby Page to the campus. Rabbi Krass will be on the campus for two days later in the quarter to lecture on the Jewish problem. In the winter quarter an eminent Chinese will be secured to lecture on the problem of the Chinese.

Graham in New York

Additional Pledges

Sigma Alpha Epsilon announces the pledging of Mason Gibbs, Columbia, South Carolina; and Alpha Lambda Tau, Zeb Cummings, Tarboro.

DYER TO ASSIST IN WAKE FOREST BIBLICAL PAGEANT

To Act as Assistant to Dr. H. A. Smith in Pageant of Art, Dramatics, and Music.

Dr. H. S. Dyer will go to Wake Forest today, where he will act as assistant to Dr. H. Augustine Smith, director of religious pageantry and art at Boston university, in Dr. Smith's pageant of art, dramatics, and music.

Dr. Smith and Dr. Dyer met at Northwestern university in the school of sacred music a few years ago. The head of the University department of music succeeded Dr. Smith as director of choirs in the New First Congregation church of Chicago.

In his pageant at Wake Forest, Dr. Smith will utilize the Wake Forest choir, with lighting effects and music, to demonstrate how certain Biblical episodes can be developed in church.

Dyer attended the state meeting of the music teachers of North Carolina in Greensboro, Friday. At the meeting, action was begun to provide the state department of education with exact facts and figures, showing what the curtailed music program has done to music in the state. A permanent committee was appointed for a study of the situation and was ordered to make a report in November.

A preliminary survey of the situation reveals that no southern state has undergone the reduction in educational support, either per capita, or per gross, which the last legislature has placed on North Carolina.

While in Greensboro, Dr. Dyer spoke, encouraging the teachers of music in the state to carry on the program, advocating the study of music and amateur performances, in fact of the particular time when music instruction is badly crippled.

Students In Battle Have Clothes Stolen

Between the hours of 5:15 and 6:30 Friday afternoon unknown persons entered the unlocked room of R. A. Singleton, L. W. Wright, and F. M. Garner in the Battle building and made away with a week-end supply of clothes in a suit-case. Garner suffered the loss of several shirts and four pairs of recently purchased socks. The suit-case was the property of Singleton. No other loss, except a shoe-shine kit and a tooth-brush case, has been determined.

The students expressed astonishment that a wallet containing money lying on a bed at the time was not taken. An endorsed check was also untouched.

SPANISH CLUB HOLDS ITS REGULAR MEETING

The Spanish club held its regular weekly meeting Friday night in Graham Memorial building. O. T. Slate read a selection from El Circo, and Miss McKinney related "Un Banquete Extrano." J. L. Smith, of the Spanish department addressed the club on the practical value of being able to speak Spanish.

Four new members were received into the club. Any student who has taken as many as three courses of Spanish, and who desires to join the club is urged to attend the next meeting, Friday, October 23, at 7:30 o'clock on the second floor of Graham Memorial.
