STRINGFIELD TO SHOW RELATION OF TWO MUSICS

Institute of Folk Music Plans Series of Lectures and Concerts.

Lamar Stringfield, associate director in the Institute of folk music, will deliver the second of a series of lectures on subjects related to folk music and the music of the present day at 4:00 o'clock this afternoon in the choral room of the music building. His subject will be a continuation of the lecture last week on "Art Music in Its Relation to Folk Music." The third lecture will be delivered November 10, on the subject of "Individualism in American Art Music."

First Recital

The first of a series of recitals for flute and piano, given by Adeline McCall, was played last Saturday evening at Red Springs. The concert was given as one of the numbers of the Flora MacDonald college entertainment courses.

As a result of the organization of the institute of folk music, one of the projects of which is the exploitation of native music and its relation to modern music, concerts by Stringfield and Mrs. McCall, as well as concerts by a chamber music group, have been scheduled in many cities over the state. Music clubs, for the most part, are sponsoring these events.

LIBRARY USERS SUFFER AS THERMOSTAT BREAKS

The inability of the weather man to decide whether he wishes cold or hot temperature is affecting the University library quite seriously. The buildings department is forced to keep the fire in its furnaces going for the fear that the mercury will drop and catch them unaware.

The heat in the library is regulated by thermostatic system. When the room heat reaches a certain temperature, the compressed air line, if functioning properly, will effect the thermostat which cuts off the heat until the room requires more warmth. The heat is renewed by the same system. The compressed air line has a leak in it, and the Johnson service corporation which installs and maintains the thermostat system is now working to repair it.

NEW CHAPTER OF JOHN REED CLUB ORGANIZES HERE

Malvin P. Levy Sets Forth Purpose of Group in Initial Meeting in Graham Memorial.

A John Reed club was organized last Friday evening in Graham Memorial. Melvin P. Levy of the New York John Reed club set forth the purpose of the club as follows:

The John Reed club, an organization of writers and artists, named in honor of the revolutionist and writer of that name, recognizes that the interests of all artistic, intellectual and cultural workers are in harmony with those of the revolutionary working class. It recognizes the irreconcilable struggle between the workers and capitalists as two contending classes, and concludes from it the necessity of developing a cultural movement dedicated to advancing the interests of the whole working class.

The John Reed club opposes all support of capitalism by cultural workers; it aims to clarify and crystallize the creative problems of literature and are in relation to the revolutionary movement, and considers its specific task the development of new writers and artists, as well as the aligning of all artists, writers, and intellectuals to the side of the revolutionary working class. It must be understood, however, that this club is not limited to creative workers alone, but to all persons striving to attain knowledge of the class struggle as a real basis for their liberalism.

Club membership is held open to all persons who feel it necessary to acquaint themselves as much as possible with the vital and fundamental causes of the social revolutionary movement. All persons interested in the purely cultural sides of the club, particularly in music and literature, are invited to join. Definite political beliefs are most certainly not necessary.

Mr. Levy was joined in a few comments by Samuel Elam, author of Watch the Stars, Immortal, who is visiting in Chapel Hill.

It was voted that a telegram of greeting be sent to the Dreiser defence committee, now in Harlan, Kentucky reporting on the coal strike there.

Library School Picnic

The students of the library school of the University entertained the faculty of the school at a picnic yesterday afternoon.

SCHOOL BOY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

McLendon Browning Breaks an Arm and Several Ribs When He Is Struck by Car.

McLendon Browning, eight year old Hillandale school boy, was injured Sunday night when an automobile driven by Mrs. B. J. Cooper of Heaters, West Virginia, struck the lad while he was riding a bicycle on Hillsboro road near the Hillandale golf course.

Mrs. Cooper stopped at once and reported the matter to the sheriff's office, and then brought the boy to the University infirmary. Dr. E. A. Abernathy, University physician, in a hasty diagnosis feared a fractured skull, and rushed young Browning to Watts hospital, in Durham.

The last report on the case, however, reveals that a broken arm and several ribs were the extent of the injury. The patient is in no danger now, and is considered, by physicians attending, to be well out of danger.

CHAPEL CRITICISM SCORED BY HOUSE

Executive Secretary of University Addresses Sophomore-Freshman Assembly.

Bringing to the freshmen and sophomores the idea that they must have some strong ambition to strive for and that they must organize and not destroy that desire, the executive secretary of the University, Robert B. House, spoke to the joint assembly yesterday morning.

Defends Programs

Another item stressed by the speaker was that it is impossible to devise assembly programs that will meet the satisfaction of every member of that assembly. The audience, he is reported as saying, did not know a good speech when they heard one and usually paid little real attention to the programs. He then challenged the two classes to show themselves worthy of the best of the programs.

Last of the remarks of the executive secretary was to the effect that there is no such regulation as to prevent the student possessing a scholarship from joining a fraternity. He stated that it is a good plan for such a student to give the matter careful consideration and think twice before he acts.

ASSOCIATION OF UNIVERSITIES TO MEET NOV. 12-14

Pierson Announces Tentative Program for Representatives of Twenty-nine Institutions

Tentative plans for the thirty-third meeting of the American Association of Universities which will convene in Chapel Hill on November 12, 13, 14 have been drawn up by the faculty committee on this function. Dr. W. W. Pierson, dean of the graduate school, and chairman of this committee announces the program, as of the time of writing.

Twenty-Nine Representatives

The convention of representatives of twenty-nine universities will open with a visit to Duke university on November 12, where they will be entertained and tendered a luncheon. At 4:00 that afternoon there will be a meeting of the deans of the represented graduate schools in the hall of the Dialectic Senate. This will be followed by an informal dinner in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn at 7:00, after which the conference of the deans will be resumed.

A general session of the delegates will occur in the main assembly room of Graham Memorial at 10:00 Friday morning. Following this will be a luncheon in the banquet hall of the same building at 12:30. After luncheon the convention will hold its second general session in Graham Memorial. At seven a formal dinner in the Carolina Inn will be served and at 8:30 the delegates will be the guests of the University at a presentation of a program of folk-plays by the Carolina Playmakers.

Closes Saturday

A business session in the Dialectic Senate hall will open the Saturday portion of the program; a luncheon at the graduate club in the Smith dormitory will close the events of the convention.

Twenty-nine universities will send at least one representative, but the official list has not yet been determined. The faculty committee in charge of local arrangements for the meeting of the American Association of Universities consists of the following members: W. W. PROFIT MADE BY YEAR-BOOK ALONE

J. M. Lear Releases Financial Report of Four Organs Sponsored by University.

J. M. Lear, treasurer of the Publications Union Board, has released a summary of the financial statements of the four University publications, the Daily Tar Heel, Carolina Magazine, Buccaneer, and Yackety Yack. The Yackety Yack was the only one of these which finished the year with a net profit. The other three went more or less into debt. The net operating loss from all publications was $1,182.

The Tar Heel was published three times a week until the session 1929-30. When the question of increasing the issues to six per week arose it was estimated that there would be a considerable increase in the volume of advertising, although it was not thought that this would be doubled. Nor was it believed that it would fall off.

Ads Drop Off

Since the paper has become a daily the local ads have increased 22 per cent, and the national ads have decreased 26 per cent. The total income from ads in this same period shows a dropping off of $408. Most of this decline may be attributed to the depression, but some perhaps to differences in the effort put forth by the various business managers. The amount carried as bad debts has increased considerably in the last two sessions. The student subscriptions since the paper has become a daily exceeded those of the previous period by $3,436.00.

Student Fee Raised

In 1929-30, the student fee for all publications was $5.00, which was distributed as follows: $2.70 to the Daily Tar Heel and the Carolina Magazine; $.55 to the Buccaneer; and $1.75 to the Yackety Yack. When the fee was increased a dollar in 1930-31, the Daily Tar Heel and the Carolina Magazine received $4.00; the Buccaneer, $.40; and the Yackety Yack, $1.60. This change explains the large increase in the Daily Tar Heel revenue from subscriptions, and also the decrease in the income of the Buccaneer and Yackety Yack from this source.

The total expense for the session 1930-31 was $945 less than the year before. This reduction resulted from a more favorable printing contract and from a reduction in the salaries of the business manager, the managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel, and the editor of the Magazine.

The editor of the Daily Tar Heel receives $35.00 per month as compared with $25.00 which the editor received when the paper was a tri-weekly. The business manager received $675.00 last year as compared with $225.00 plus a commission on net cash profits of the old tri-weekly, which amounted to between $100 and $200 a year.

Delivery Expense Up

The delivery expense in 1930-31 was about twice as large as it was when the paper was a tri-weekly. The other items are comparatively small, and are not significantly different from previous years.
