

'ELIZABETH, THE QUEEN' WILL BE PRESENTED HERE

Theatre Guild Production of Anderson's New Play Scheduled for November 16.

Maxwell Anderson's widely acclaimed play, Elizabeth, the Queen, will be presented by the Theatre Guild in Memorial hall the evening of Monday, November 16. Its appearance here was made possible by the Carolina Playmakers and its managers.

After its first production, Burns Mantle placed it at the head of the list in his Ten Best Plays of the Year. It has won the praise of many reviewers.

Praised by Critics

Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times describes it as "Magnificent . . . We sorely need plays, rich in character, thought and imagination . . . Mr. Anderson has written one."

In the New York Telegram, Whitney Bolton, says, "When you have finished with it you will have passed through one of those rare experiences for which the theatre was created." Robert Garland's review for the same paper labels the play, "The finest piece of theatre produced in America."

Charles Collins, writing for the Chicago Tribune, says "It represents the season's highest point in brilliant stage craft."

Queen's Love Affair

The story deals with the closing days of the strangest love affair in the world's history, the mysterious attachment of England's royal enigma, Elizabeth, its virgin queen, for the handsome young Earl of Essex.

Elizabeth is depicted with a realism which is startling. She is a queen in all that the word implies, but she is dominated by the love the Earl inspires in her.

DEFENSE OF CIVIC CLUBS MADE HERE

District Rotary Governor Says Organizations Are Not Losing Their Usefulness.

The opinion expressed by some people that civic clubs have outlived their usefulness and are fading out of the picture is utterly without foundation in fact, Ted Johnson, of Raleigh, district governor of Rotary, declared Wednesday night in an address before the Chapel Hill Rotary club on the occasion of his official visit.

"I am sure that the civic clubs are perfectly willing to meet this challenge," Governor Johnson said, "and, speaking for Rotary, I feel that there was never a time when our organization was more needed. Even in this time of depression our clubs are holding up their heads and carrying on in a way that wins for them the highest commendation."

Governor Johnson said that two crying needs of the world today, as emphasized by the newspapers and public platform speakers, are understanding and good-will, particularly as applied to nations. One of the main purposes of Rotary, he said, is to supply these two needs.

Violin selections by Prof. T. Smith McCorkle, with Mrs. McCorkle at the piano, were features of the program. Rev. C. Excel Rozzelle, president of the club, presided and introduced Governor Johnson.

Freshman Council To Have "Speak-Week"

Members of the freshman friendship council are formulating plans for a campus-wide "speak-week." In such a week every student would speak to every one he should meet, on or off the campus. The purpose is to create on the campus of the University a greater feeling of attachment among students.

The freshman council has heartily offered its support to such a plan, and is even now endeavoring to build up a greater amiability among the first year men. The measure will undoubtedly gain the support of the other class cabinets. The motion is an echo of the four year effort of F. M. "Pardner" James, president of the Y. M. C. A., who has become famous for his own campaign.

Unbalanced Production Causes Depression, Says French Doctor

Bertrand de Jouvenal, Representative of Radical Socialist Party Investigating Economic Conditions in America, Pays Chapel Hill Visit in His Survey.

By Vermont Royster

"I have been exceedingly interested in the investigations and research of the University, and especially the work of the department of commerce," said Dr. Bertrand de Jouvenal, representative of the Radical Socialist party of France, who visited the University yesterday. Dr. de Jouvenal has been commissioned by his party to study the international economic situation with the relief of the worldwide depression in view. He has already made a very thorough study of the situation in England and in Germany and is now on a six months tour of America, endeavoring to obtain all the available data in connection with his work. Dr. de Jouvenal came over with Premier Peirre Laval, who was sent by France to confer with President Hoover, and he remained in Washington until M. Laval's departure.

Radical Socialist Party

The Radical Socialist party is endeavoring to have in its platform for the next general election some satisfactory method for solving the economic situation. The ultimate object of Dr. de Jouvenal's study of international economics is to find and recommend to his party such a solution. With this material on hand the Socialist party hopes to be instrumental in forming an international economic board, which is to be a permanent group for the study of international finance and trade.

Glee Club Will Give Concert At N.C.C.W.

The University Glee club will give its first concert of the year next Saturday night at the North Carolina college for women in Greensboro. Thirty-six men have been selected by H. S. Dyer to make the trip. T. Smith McCorkle, and H. S. Knox, are accompanying the club as violin and piano soloists, respectively.

The program for this Saturday night will consist of a rendition by the whole Glee Club of a group of European Christmas and folk songs. An especially selected group of twelve men will then sing a number of negro spirituals, using only the original color and inflection, and no harmony whatever.

Janitors Help Jobless

Negro janitors on the campus, out of work during the summer, and suffering a pay cut along with other University employees, have done their part in relieving the unemployed. When they heard plans for relief they chipped in, and one of their number handed their boss, P. L. Burch, $7 to be handed to the citizens' committee on relief.

"Some economic theory is needed to establish international harmony," he stated. "Many American authors have been influential in instigating this economic study. America has a vast store of information on hand, but the leaders of the country have failed to utilize it."

Depression in France

When questioned as to the relative severity of the depression in America and France, Dr. de Jouvenal was a bit hesitant in his reply. "In France," he said, "the economic situation has not been studied to the degree it has in America, so that the French people do not realize the true nature and extent of the depression. In America every little mistake in the economic policy, every little relapse or decline is brought to the public eye. This is not so in France. Men do not keep up with the trend of intricate finance from day to day. But if one may judge by the number of unemployed and the number of failures, I would say the situation is better than in America. I believe, though, that if the French had such valuable information they would act quicker than the Americans. Last year the French government spent only 800,000, francs, which is around 150,000, American dollars, for the purposes of statistics and census. Our party is in favor of the establishing of a department of economic observational

COMER TELLS OF HIGH GRADUATES

Secretary Says That Present Freshmen Are "High Scores" Of Their Age.

Presenting facts about the condition of North Carolina high school graduates now at the University, Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., spoke at freshman assembly yesterday.

He included in his talk comment on the upheaval which is now going on between China and Japan, and gave his opinion that the conflict may affect the lives and careers of college men because it is putting the League of Nations to an extreme test. He also stated that he thought it best for the United States to remain aloof from the conference at Geneva, and not try to sneak in through the "back door."

The speaker said that last year 15,500 boys and girls finished high school in this state, and that of that number, only eight and one-half per cent were financially able to attend college this year. According to Comer, not more than two months were spent on consideration and preparation for the future academic training of these individuals.

The speaker closed with the statement that the present freshman class, as individuals, are the "high scorers" of their age and category, since they found means of attending college.
