A book exhibit under the supervision of the University library is now going on in the show window of the Memorial building.

SENIORS OUTLINE CLASS PROGRAMS

Class of 1932 Plans Combination of Economy and Progressiveness in Events.

The general program of the senior class this year will be as progressive as those of former years, but will necessarily be more economical, according to Hamilton Hobgood, president of the group. Dues have been cut from $10 to $7 a year, which brings a saving of over a thousand dollars to the class in general.

One important feature of the program will be Senior Week in May, when, as it is planned the contest for the Mangum medal will take place, instead of at Commencement, which has been the custom.

Senior Gift
The senior gift to the University this year will be along two lines. One may be in the form of a senior loyalty fund, and the other may be another appropriate gift for which funds have already been set aside by the class.

The senior space in the Yackety Yack will be different from that of former years; it will be arranged so as to be both artistic and economical in every way.

The junior-senior dance is scheduled for some week-end in the latter part of April. This will be an elaborate affair such as last year's but will be much less expensive on account of the general depression and more economy to be used in decorating.

LUTHERANS OBSERVE FESTIVAL TOMORROW

At the 11:00 o'clock morning service of the Lutheran student association tomorrow the Festival of the Reformation, a church holiday, will be observed. The celebration is in remembrance of the important religious movement started by Martin Luther in the sixteenth century, which resulted in the formation of the Lutheran and other Protestant churches. Frank P. Cauble, student pastor, will discuss the life of Martin Luther and his teachings.

Co-ed Paves Way For Fair Sex To Use Pool Tables

Ruth Newby Is First Female
Student to Play Pool in Game Room.

Ruth Newby, dignified senior student of the University, has figuratively broken the ice upon the pool tables of Graham Memorial for members of her sex. She is the Columbus of the co-eds or, if you like, the pioneer of the pool tables. For Ruth was the first co-ed to brave the masculinity of Graham Memorial's basement in order to enjoy that friendly little game played with fifteen balls and a felt-tipped stick, called, for some unaccountable reason, "pool."

Now that she has pioneered, countless co-eds, fearing to take the first step, hesitant to tread upon unexplored territory, will make a quick dash for the green-surfaced tables, and male students may find it hard to engage reservations for their daily games.

Co-eds Like Pool
In fact, according to Noah Goodridge, friend of co-eds, many have already availed themselves of the privileges of the game room. "Pool and ping-pong seem most popular with the co-eds," the manager said. "We hope that more of them will make use of the facilities offered."

There is a special lounging room in the northern end of the building reserved exclusively for women students.

FLORIST ASSOCIATION TO GIVE EXHIBIT IN DURHAM

All students, faculty members, and townspeople interested in flowers are invited to attend the flower exhibit to be staged at the Washington Duke Hotel in Durham next Wednesday and Thursday, in connection with the annual meeting of the North Carolina Florists Association. Florists from Washington, D. C., Richmond, and other cities outside the state, as well as North Carolina men will exhibit. The flowers are expected to be at their best from the middle of the afternoon on Wednesday through that evening, but will be on display throughout the day Thursday and probably Thursday evening.

Whitton Works on "Tech"

Beaumont H. Whitton, a former member of the class of '33 of this University, a member of the local chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, who last year transferred to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, holds the position of feature editor on The Tech, official daily publication of that institution. While in this University, Whitton served as a reporter for The Daily Tar Heel.

CONSTRUCTION OF DAM UNDER WAY

The construction of the University's big dam west of the village on Morgan's creek, is being carried forward apace. When the work is completed the watershed formed by the dam will drain an area approximately twenty-seven square miles. It includes Pickard's Mountain, McCauley's Pond, Bethel church, Grampain Hills, Mount Collier, Damascus church, and Pickard's Mill.

All the top soil will be removed by a clamshell excavator, and when sheer volcanic bed rock is reached a hole will be dynamited in order to dovetail the dam.

Ever since the work has been going on, crowds of curious folks have been attracted to the scene of the excavations.

DASHIELL STATES THAT MOVIES ARE MADE BY MORONS

Morons control the movie industry, it would seem from the statement of J. F. Dashiell, head of the psychology department at the University. Statements by the well known psychologist on the much mooted question, "Is the average movie made for morons?" show that he not only believes that true but also that many movies are made by morons.

"Evidence on the question comes to me from a fairly direct source," states Dr. Dashiell. "One of my colleagues at the University of Southern California, who has been doing psychology work with various movie studios quotes one director as stating: 'It is our deliberate aim to make every scenario thoroughly understandable by the average twelve year old'."

"Psychologists have long classified adults who are only twelve

"APOSTLES' CUP" IS RARE PIECE IN ART COLLECTION

Two pieces of sixteenth century pottery, highly valued, have been added to the Museum of European Culture at the University of Illinois this year. The exhibits were secured in Paris this summer.

The more interesting of the two pieces is an old German beer mug, known as a "twelve apostle mug." Pictures of the twelve apostles are burned into it in low relief, and painted with especially brilliant colors. From the 16th to the 18th century, these mugs were made in Kreussen, Germany, but now they have practically disappeared. They are valuable, not only for their historical significance, but because they also represent the oldest pottery works in Europe.

The other piece is one of the Hispano-Moresque wares. It is a tin-enameled plate with a metallic luster. Plates like these were made in Spain, and although they came after Moorish control waned in Spain, they were influenced greatly by the Moorish art.

Graham To Return From Extended Trip

President Frank Porter Graham is expected back in Chapel Hill sometime today or Sunday. Dr. Graham has been in New York for an extended time. One of his missions there was the accomplishment of the task of writing his inaugural address which will be delivered on November 11.

GRADUATE MADE HEAD OF SCHOOL

Frederick Archer, who was graduated here in 1906, and formerly superintendent of the Greensboro city schools, has just been elected superintendent of the Louisville, Kentucky, school system, and will assume his new duties on December 1.

The new Louisville school head has served as assistant superintendent of schools there since 1928. From 1916 to 1927 he was in charge of the Greensboro schools. In 1927-28 he undertook courses at Columbia university for his doctor's degree, having won the M. A. degree there in 1925. Prior to his association in Greensboro, Archer had been connected with educational work in Windsor, Winston, Wilson, and Selma.

COMMISSION ON ILLITERACY WILL MEET AT N.C.C.W.

The University will be represented at the meeting of the state commission on adult illiteracy scheduled for November 5 at the North Carolina College for Women by Dr. Howard W. Odum, head of the sociology department; I. C. Griffin, of the school of education, and R. M. Grumman, director of the extension division of the University. Grumman is also secretary of this association.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Charles G. Maphis, former chairman of the Virginia state commission, who will be a delegate from the national advisory committee. Dr. Maphis, the present dean of the summer quarter at the University of Virginia is to address the meeting on the subject of "Adult Illiteracy in the South." He has also been invited to speak at this University at the assembly period on Friday, November 6.

WOODCOCK'S PLEA OPPOSED BY ANN ARBOR STUDENTS

The union forum of the University of Michigan showed itself decidedly in opposition to the opinions of Amos W. Woodcock, federal director of prohibition enforcement. According to the Michigan Daily, his plea of systemized liquor control was met by an entirely wet student body which proved itself heartily in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Woodcock stated that "too much criticism has been leveled at the law" for lack of enforcement.

Representative Robert H. Clancy, in his debate with the Rev. R. N. Holsaple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, said, "There is more crime because of prohibition and the jails have been fuller than ever before in the history of the world. Prohibition costs $100,000,000 per year, directly and indirectly." His opponent was greeted with boos and hisses from the forum.

Mayor H. Wirt Newkirk, of Ann Arbor, was roundly booed by the assembly when he said, "Near beer is just as good as real beer." The mayor also stated that whiskey today is better than it was fifty-seven years ago. The students showed little enthusiasm in favor of either of these two opinions.

STATE INSPECTOR HERE

State health inspector, E. P. Carruthers, was in Chapel Hill yesterday, assisting the local health officer in the inspection and grading of the local cafes.

HEADMASTER COMMENTS RECENT YACKETY YACK

As a relief from the current stream of criticism against the 1931 Yackety Yack, now prevalent on the campus, Edward Scheidt, director of the department of student survey has received an excellent tribute to the publication from Dr. Howard Bement, headmaster of the Asheville school, Asheville, N. C. In a personal note Dr. Bement emphatically states that this copy of the Yackety Yack is in his opinion the finest college annual he has ever seen.

Campus Fashions Rule That Cords Are In For 1931

Corduroy Pantaloon, Relics of the Good Old Days, Rise in Popularity.

By Don Shoemaker

Reminiscent of the days of the "rattle trap" Ford, the gayly striped blazer, and the slouch hat, corduroys are again invading the University campus. Twelve pairs of smartly tailored cords in approved shades were noted on the campus yesterday, indicating that perhaps the economically inclined are reverting to the distinctly masculine article of dress that was emblematic of what the well dressed college man should wear, eight years back.

Cords sprang into note as a distinct article of collegiate wearing apparel in 1922 and held sway in this section of the country until about 1925. The natty garment continued in use in the middle-west and west and today is still enjoying a generous measure of popularity. Students at Stanford cannot wear cords until their junior year.

Red Gilbreath has a pair of dark brown cords. John Holbrook wears a pair of the cream colored variety while Joe Adams favors a pair of the same shade. We haven't seen Tel Newland's, but we understand that his see constant service.

Designed to relieve the wearer from the wear and tear on street clothes and provide a pantaloons that would stand the usual amount of roughing that goes hand in hand with college life, cords embody the qualities of durability and smartness, so they tell us. They require little or no pressing and only an occasional dry-cleaning. Listing the attributes of the trousers, one undergraduate told us "I like 'em because they don't wear out so easily when you're squirming around in your seat on a dull lecture."

LINGLE TO OCCUPY LOCAL PULPIT SUNDAY WEEK

Dr. W. L. Lingle, president of Davidson college, will be in the village Sunday week to deliver an address Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church.

Miss Beal Visits Library

Miss Marjorie Beal, director of the North Carolina Library Commission, visited the library and the school of library science of the University yesterday to confer with Miss Cornelia S. Love, secretary of the North Carolina Library Association and head of the order department of the University library, and with Donald Coney, of the school of library science, and other members of the faculty for suggestions for the program of the Library Association convention.

DEDICATION PLANS FOR BELL TOWER ARE COMPLETED

Program to Last Half an Hour
Beginning at Noon on Thanksgiving.

The Morehead-Patterson bell tower will be officially dedicated at noon on Thanksgiving day. Exercises will continue for half an hour, and will include a presentation speech by Frank Patterson on behalf of the donors, and Governor Gardner's acceptance for the University. Following these brief talks, two selections, "Sweet Genevieve" and "How Tedious and Tasteless the Hours," will be played on the chimes.

John Motley Morehead and Harold S. Dyer, perfected the arrangements for the dedication when the former was here a few days ago.

Noon hour has been chosen for the dedication, since people who are here for the game may hear the speeches and the tunes, without feeling the necessity for rushing to eat dinner in order to get to the game in time for its start. When Kenan stadium was given to the University a few years ago, the speeches were made just before the start of the football classic, and every one was interested in having the game begin and not in hearing the dedication.

There are two students in the University who have had training as bell ringers in northern schools. These men will practice for the Thanksgiving day program, but the clappers of the bells will be muted so that no sound will disturb the quiet of the campus. Chester McNeely, who is a member of the concern which made the bells will be here for a week before the dedication to instruct the students in the use of the levers at the console.

LIBRARY RECEIVES NEW COLLECTION

Gift Made by Loyalty Fund Is Considered Valuable by Dr. L. R. Wilson.

The University library has received a gift, made possible by the Alumni Loyalty Fund, of four boxes of bound pamphlets and legislative documents relating to South Carolina and the south in general. The collection was purchased from The News and Courier, of Charleston, South Carolina.

The gift contains material concerning the Confederacy and public education in the South from 1865 through 1900 and supplements the materials which are being assembled by Dr. Hamilton in the Southern Historical Collection.

The collection numbers between one hundred to a hundred and fifty bound pamphlets and documents. Dr. L. R. Wilson, librarian of the University, regards it as particularly valuable for the historical, social, and economic information it contains.

Counter Put in Game Room

A new counter has just been completed in the playroom of Graham Memorial this week by the buildings department. This is quite an improvement over the small table that was used prior to this time. The counter also has a new cue rack that provides a place for the cues to remain when not in use.
