

WINNER OF DUKE GAME WILL TAKE FOOTBALL AWARD

Silver Trophy Will Again Be Fought for by Rival Teams Saturday.

The Carolina-Duke friendship trophy will be awarded Saturday to the institution winning the annual football classic between the two schools. Duke university holds it this year through winning the toss for it, the score having been a tie.

The senior classes of the respective schools donated this cup last year. It was prompted by efforts of the literary societies of the institutions and the state federation, which was organized to promote more admirable relationships among the colleges of the state.

The award will be presented immediately after the athletic contest Saturday, the captains of the respective teams meeting in mid-field. No institution may acquire it permanently by winning a number of consecutive times.

The trophy is a pair of goalposts mounted on a wooden base. The goalposts are the significant feature of the award. Formerly the student bodies fought for the possession of the uprights. But today, through this medium the winners may carry them off without having to resort to strife.

Mayne Albright is chairman of the committee from Carolina in charge of the ceremony. Charlie Rose, Hamilton Hobgood, and E. C. Daniels, are the other University representatives. Martin Green, president of the Duke student body, heads their committee. He will be assisted by three students from Duke.

UPPERCLASSMEN ARE NEEDED FOR TAR HEEL WORK

Editorial, Feature Writing and Desk Duty Assignments Are To Be Filled.

A special tryout for upperclassmen interested in doing editorial writing, feature writing, and desk work on the Daily Tar Heel will be conducted Monday afternoon at 5:00 in the publication office on the second floor of Graham Memorial. This tryout will be especially limited to men above freshman rank.

It is the present plan to compose the city editor's staff, the editorial board, and the feature board entirely of upperclassmen and graduate students who care to tryout. Men who have taken a large number of English courses are especially desired on these staffs, but this is not entirely an essential. Men who do consistently good work over the period of one year will be awarded Daily Tar Heel charms.

There are now several vacancies on the staff for upperclassmen, and these will be filled at the Monday meeting.

SIX STUDENTS WILL ATTEND CONVENTION

F. M. James, president of the Y. M. C. A., will lead the delegation of students from the University to the annual student volunteer convention in Buffalo Christmas. Although only six members have taken steps to attend, more are expected to go.

Dr. Bernard Explains Motto Of University

Dr. W. S. Bernard head of the Greek department made a short talk to the assembly yesterday morning on the significance of the Lux Libertas, motto of the University. "The only instrument for perpetuating democracy is light and education," he said, and estimated that the cost to the state for each student in the University is $500. "The state needs preachers, but those who recognize scientific discoveries as the voice of God; . . . and she needs lawyers and politicians, but not those who will accept bribes for crooked legislation. The University is the life-blood of North Carolina."

ALUMNUS FINDS SMALL TRIASSIC DEPOSIT IN N. C.

Carl B. Brown's Discovery Shows Need for More Geological Survey in State.

The theory published by Dr. W. F. Prouty, of the geology department, in regard to the structure and distribution of triassic basins in eastern United States was borne out by the discovery of a deposit of triassic sediments in the northwestern part of Davie county, by Carl B. Brown, a graduate of the University department of geology.

This comparative small basin of triassic rock was apparently overlooked in earlier geological surveys made many years ago more in the nature of preliminary examinations. In recent years North Carolina, unlike most states of the Union, has thought itself too poor to spend money on geological mapping. For this reason these deposits have been overlooked.

Only One Reference

In geological literature, the only reference made to the triassic character of the area referred to is that by R. C. Journey and S. R. Bacon in their soil survey report of Davie county made in 1927. In this report, the Granville fine sandy loam found in the area was said to be from the triassic sandstone and shale.

The discovery of this new triassic deposit in Davie county by Brown, is interesting from a number of standpoints. It is considered unusual that this area could have gone so long undiscovered, and this fact indicates need for geological mapping in North Carolina. That there are unquestionably a great number of valuable metallic and non-metallic mineral deposits awaiting discovery in various parts of the state has been the contention of all the more recent state geologists from Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt to Herman J. Bryson.

Pep Meeting

A worthy climax to the enthusiasm and excitement prevalent among the students prior to the Carolina-Duke game, in the form of a gigantic pep rally, will take place at Memorial hall at 9:00 tonight.

There will be three main speakers, Mr. House, "Scrubby" Rives, and Norman Boren. In addition, the eighty-piece Carolina band will play. After the meeting there will be a snake dance through town and campus.

EIGHT NEW PLAYS TO BE TRIED OUT

The Carolina Playmakers are planning to give experimental productions of eight original plays written by students of the playwriting class. These will be presented sometime late this quarter and three will be selected for regular performance during the winter quarter.

The plays are: Old Aus Ramsey, by Charles Elledge, Whispering Shadows, by Vernon Crook, Spice Cake by Malcolm Seawell, Those Children, by Osmond Molarsky, The Common Gift, by Elwyn deGraffenreid, The Mandarin Coat, by Olive Newell and The Loyal Ventures, by Wilkeson O'Connell.

In selecting the cast for these plays there will be no try-outs. Persons who would like to take a part are asked to meet with the authors of the plays this afternoon at 4:30 in the Playmakers theatre. There are more than fifty parts in all eight plays.

Latest Story By Wilbur Daniel Steele Has Chapel Hill Setting

"The Man Without a God" Appearing in the Ladies Home Journal Tells Much of the Beginning of Carolina Traditions.

Wilbur Daniel Steele has drawn a picture of the early days of the University in his latest story, "The Man Without a God," which is now running in the Ladies Home Journal. Although the Chapel Hill setting is only incidental to the story, he has given an intimate glimpse of the life of the University in the dark ages after the civil war.

The story is that of a country boy who came to the University to learn how to preach the word of God. He came from people whose faith was blind and devoid of reasons, and some of the teachings of his professors sacrilegious. Finally he gave up and went home to the narrow ideas of his fore-fathers. But he could not put the teaching of his professors from his mind, and began to turn them over and over. He became dissatisfied with narrow and blind faith of the country-folk. He was fifty years ahead of his people in thought, and they resented his liberty in thought and made him an outcast.

This story is of especial interest through life. Gradually under the strain of public opinion and the loss of his childhood sweet-

Weasel Escapes

The weasel which several University students caught last week and gave to the Zoology department, has escaped by gnawing through the wood and wire of its cage. The department intended to keep it confined for study, and then kill and mount it, but "slick as a weasel" it got away.

LANDSCAPING OF TOWER FINISHED

The work on the landscape decoration of the ground surrounding the bell tower has now been completed under the direction of Dr. W. C. Coker. Except for the placing of six large box wood trees on either side of the entrances, everything is in readiness for the presentation, which will take place Thanksgiving. The grass is far enough advanced to give a solid green tint to the area between the paths, which are bordered by eight hundred box woods.

The box wood is a most appropriate plant to be chosen for the decoration of such a stately building as the Patterson-Moorehead Memorial. They were formerly used as hedges in the old formal gardens of Europe, and were often trimmed into fantastic shapes. Though the shrub is of rather slow growth, it is an evergreen, and thrives in almost any well drained soil, so it should prove practical as well as a beautiful ornament.

Collins Eulogizes Rockne In Speech

Recalling the contacts he made with the immortal Knute Rockne in his days at Notre Dame, Coach Chuck Collins addressed the meeting of the Convert's league of the Catholic Daughters of America, at 8:00 o'clock last night. Collins discussed the life and the high ideals of the great football mentor and the influence he had on his men.

Collins was one of the seven "mules" of the great Notre Dame team of '24, the year the "four horsemen" starred.

PRIZES OFFERED FOR ESSAYS ON LIFE OF GOETHE

National Contest Is Sponsored in Effort to Create Better International Understanding.

In commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the death of Goethe, the Carl Schurz memorial foundation of Philadelphia announces a national essay contest which is open to all undergraduates at colleges and universities throughout the United States. Liberal cash prizes, amounting to almost $1,000, will be awarded to the writers of the nine best essays. The first prize for an English essay is $200, and a similar first prize will be offered for the best essay written in German. The other seven awards range from $100 down to $50.

The subjects of the essay are limited to the following: Goethe's Conception of Personality, The Art of Youthful Goethe (to 1776), and Goethe as a Lyric Poet. These should not exceed five thousand words.

Any undergraduate student of the University of North Carolina should be the candidate in the contest. The essay submitted must be the product of the thought and research of the candidate himself, and must be typewritten. Essays must reach the Carl Schurz memorial foundation not later than September 15, 1932. In no case should the name of the candidate appear on the essay. A nom de plume should be used instead. The nom de plume, the address, institution of the candidate, and a certified statement to the effect that the candidate was an undergraduate on November 15, 1931, should be enclosed in a sealed envelope attached to the essay.

The prizes will be awarded by a number of prominent professors of German at some of the leading American colleges and universities.

The Carl Schurz memorial foundation is a society for the development of the cultural relations between the United States and Germany, and by offering this essay contest to the youth of the United States it hopes to bring about a greater understanding and respect between the younger generations of these two nations.

Staff Meetings

The Daily Tar Heel editorial staffs will meet at the regular times this Sunday. The city editor conference will take place at 5:00 o'clock, while the editorial board will convene at 5:30. The reporter staff will assemble at 7:00 o'clock for special announcements concerning duty and beats for next week.

FORMAL TRIBUTE TO BE RENDERED ALDERMAN TODAY

Dr. M. C. S. Noble Will Give Memorial Address in Assembly.

Formal tribute to the honor of Dr. Edwin Anderson Alderman, president of the University from 1896-1900, will be rendered in a memorial service at assembly this morning. The regular memorial address will be delivered by Dr. M. C. S. Noble, dean of the school of education and a life-long friend of Dr. Alderman, colleague on the faculty, and a fellow crusader for education.

The former president of this University died April 29, 1931, while serving his twenty-seventh year as head of the University of Virginia. During his term of office at that institution remarkable strides were taken in its development. The incoming president was a progressive as well as a conservative educator. The situation confronting him at his inauguration in order to be successfully met demanded an unusual degree of wisdom and tact and patience as well as courage and resolution.

Statistics of the growth at Virginia's predominating institution of higher learning from 1904 until his death indicate to what extent the affluence of that university is attributable to this alumnus of the University. When he was inaugurated, the student body numbered seven hundred, today it is twenty-five hundred. Its faculty now consists of a staff of three hundred well-trained educators, replacing the personnel of fifty in 1904. Their endowment has

OIL PORTRAIT OF LATE DEAN GIVEN BY 1910 ALUMNUS

Painting to Be Placed in Howell Pharmacy Hall Executed by William Wirtz.

The school of pharmacy has received an oil painting of the late Dean Edward Vernon Howell which was presented by J. Edward Murry, vice-president of Emerson Drug Company. Murry is a graduate of the school of pharmacy in the class of 1910.

The painting will be unveiled at a simple ceremony in the Howell hall of pharmacy which will be announced later.

Painted by Wirtz

The portrait was executed by William Wirtz, prominent portrait painter of Baltimore. Wirtz knew Dean Howell intimately, and this knowledge, coupled with many photographs, he combined to make the likeness.

Dean Howell established the school of pharmacy at the university in 1897 and was continuously its leader until his death in Chapel Hill last February.
