Sociology Professor Will Make
First of Series of Y. M.
C. A. Lectures.

Dr. Ernest R. Groves of the department of sociology will deliver a series of three addresses this week at assembly on the subject: "Looking Towards Happy Marriage." The first address will be on, "Sex Ethics." The second one will be on, "Homosexuality or, Personal Problems in Sex." The third, "The Sex Factor in Marriage."

This series of addresses will begin this morning at 10:30 o'clock in Memorial hall, and the remaining two will be at the same hour and place on Thursday and Friday, respectively. For a number of years the Y. M. C. A. has been bringing to the campus annually a series of addresses on the general topic of "The National Sex Life." For these lectures, specialists have been brought in from different parts of the country. The University is fortunate in that one of the best men in the country for this line of work is a faculty member, Dr. Groves, who has consented to give the series this time. In as much as the general public is invited to hear Dr. Groves' lectures, the seating arrangement for freshmen and sophomores will be disregarded for these three days. Records of attendance will not be reported.

There will be no opportunity for students to ask questions of Dr. Groves during these addresses. However, students are privileged to write out any question on the subjects that may not be fully answered by the addresses, and at an early date Dr. Groves will appear in an evening forum to discuss the questions which shall be handled in this manner.

PAUL STEED INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

Paul S. Steed, operator of the West Franklin service station across from the funeral home, was painfully although probably not seriously injured when his car collided with that of Morris Kearney, Chapel Hill negro, yesterday afternoon. Apparently Steed, driving a Pontiac, turned from Malette street into Franklin and into the pathway of the Chrysler of Kearney's.

When the cars collided, the Pontiac was overturned, throwing Steed out of the window and lacerating his lips and scalp. After first aid was rendered by Dr. Abernathy, Steed was taken to Watts hospital in Durham to determine whether there were any internal injuries.

ALUMNI, TRUSTEES WILL HELP LOCAL LOAN FUND DRIVE

Campus and Town Committees
Enter Last Week of Successful
Chapel Hill Canvass.

The Emergency Student Loan Fund appeal is launching forth a state and national drive with this campus and community as a center. Mayne Albright's committee reports that only six dormitories and twelve fraternities have failed to reach a goal of 100 per cent participation. Mayor Zeb Council's committee will complete its canvass by Friday of this week.

The committee of the trustees, with a goal of $30,000 voted by the trustees at their meeting last week, is beginning a mail canvass of the whole board. The faculty committee plans to complete the canvass of the faculty by the end of this week. Officers of the General Alumni association are forming now the committee authorized at their January session. Some alumni who are also alumni of the loan funds, having borrowed during their student days, are forming a special project designed to reach former borrowers with the appeal to "make a gift now equal to your former loan."

President Graham is addressing alumni meetings in Greensboro and Durham this week with the idea of putting the loan fund need before citizens of the state.

The press carried yesterday the statement that the ladies of New Bern in a benefit bridge party raised $50 for the loan fund.

The local committees are striving for a large local total, because the amount of work done locally is expected to go far towards encouraging friends of the University outside Chapel Hill to aid in reaching the $100,000 final goal.

Infirmiry List

Students who were confined to the infirmiry yesterday were: Blanche Hanff, John Wallace, J. S. Newton, J. P. Dunlap, Claude Sims, T. A. Moody, L. E. Bunch, Albert Gaylord, J. S. Young, and J. C. Meekins.

NECESSITY OF VOTE ON AUDIT BOARD

—An Editorial—

Every student on this campus is requested to cast his vote in ballot boxes in Graham Memorial sometime during the day on whether or not an Auditing Board should be established on the campus to be empowered to inspect books of outstanding student organizations and make a yearly public report to the student body. As has been previously pointed out this plan has long been needed at the University, and is one which will place student organizations' finances on a much more business-like basis.

The plan of setting up such a board was recommended by the Student Activities Committee; but before the suggestion can be put into effect it must be passed by a student body vote. It is, therefore, desirable that every student registered at the University cast his vote either for or against this proposal.

Voting is the only means by which student opinion can be officially expressed. And once student opinion has been registered as being in favor of the adoption of this Auditing Board, it will be necessary for a similar student ballot to be taken before it can be abolished. After the board has once been established, it will have absolute authority to audit books of every major student organization on the campus. Since, therefore, practically every student will be directly affected by this board, it is nothing but fair that each student be given a chance of expressing his viewpoint.

No one after thinking the matter over can fail to favor establishing an Auditing Board. But regardless of whether every student is of this same opinion or not, he is expected, and urged, to cast his vote one way or the other.—C.G.R.

Huge Cost Of Enforcing Prohibition Is Factor In Repealing Amendment

Figures Covering Twelve Years of Prohibition Experiment Place
Total Loss of Revenue at $10,984,000,000 and National Drink Bill at $28,411,949,600.

With the reports that Congress is to pass upon the question of submitting the Eighteenth Amendment to a verdict by vote of the people, comes the question of whether a repealing amendment is "necessary" as the constitution provides.

Appraising the element of necessity there is an excellent gauge to be found in an accounting of what the American people have paid for the national prohibition experiment. The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment last week-end released figures covering the nearly twelve years during which the amendment has been in effect. These statistics have been taken from the attorney general's annual reports; statistics relating to intoxicating liquors compiled by the treasury department, reports of the Federal Prohibition Bureau; congressional hearings on treasury bills and the Wickersham report.

It should be borne in mind that the totals are federal only and do not include other than United States government agencies. These figures estimate the cost of enforcement in the period from January 1920 to July 30, 1931 at $370,000,000. To be contrasted with this is the total estimated loss of revenue placed at $10,984,000,000.

Other statistics include 681,657 arrests for prohibition violations; 499,911 estimated convictions; 291,181 stills seized; 266,790,612 gallons of liquor, mash, etc. seized; and 77,707 automobiles and 6,809 vessels and boats captured; a total of $60,003,344 in fines and penalties were collected and $231,009,381 worth of property seized.

For this same period of twelve years the national drink bill has been placed at $28,411,949,600. This bill is figured at the rate of $11 a gallon for spirits, $2.30 for wine, and 50 cents for beer.

Before forming an opinion of whether the people opposing prohibition are justified in their contention that they have paid enough, it should also be borne in mind that the annual totals comprising the items of the bill, continue, year by year, to move upward.

Within the last few weeks New Jersey has been added to the list of ten states officially repudiating national prohibition. These commonwealths, have a population of 36,003,264, or 29.42 per cent of the national total, and they pay 63.69 per cent or $601,185,980 of the aggregate sum received in federal individual income taxes for 1929-1930.

POST OFFICE TO CLOSE SATURDAYS AT 1:00 P. M.

The post office has begun working under the curtailed forty-four hour system adopted last summer by the United States post office department. The system has been in effect as far as the clerks are concerned but the employment of extra help has prevented any inconvenience being experienced on the part of the students and townspeople. Now, however, this extra help has been dispersed with, and the new hours are as follows: 9:00 o'clock to 6:00 o'clock from Monday through Friday, and from 9:00 o'clock to 1:00 o'clock Saturday. This regulation does not affect box mail nor special delivery service.

DAILY TAR HEEL WILL TAKE PART IN PRESS EXHIBIT

"Michigan Daily" Also Will Represent
College Dailies at International Exhibition.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL has been invited to send some of the old and new copies of the paper to the 1932 All Nations Press Exhibition at Tiflis, in the the republic of Georgia, Soviet Russia. Among the other college dailies in America, the Michigan Daily was also invited to participate in the exhibition.

At the exhibition, periodicals will be shown in 181 languages from 249 countries. At the first International Press Exhibition at Cologne in 1928, there were only 100 languages from ninety countries represented. The historical development of the press from its beginning to its present state will be given in full. Statistics, techniques, graphics, machinery, and illustrations will be analyzed completely.

One section of the exhibition's program will be devoted to a study of books. Complete details will be given on the printing, revising, proofing, binding, etc., of all books. Books using the Braille touch system will be displayed and their publishing will be discussed.

Another part of the program will be given to a study of magazines. Every conceivable type of magazine will be represented at the exhibition.

A major part of the exhibition will consist of a study of newspapers printed throughout the world. The gathering and distributing of news throughout the world will be given considerable attention. The methods by which pictures are sent to newspapers all over the world will be analyzed, as well as the more mechanical phrases of newspaper printing.

This exhibition is the first in the world to possess a list of all the languages used in printing, as well as a map, showing the location of presses in the world.

BALLOT WILL BE TAKEN TODAY ON AUDITING BOARD

Students Will Express Opinion
At Polls Held in Graham
Memorial.

The student body will vote by ballot upon the student auditing board today. The polls, located in Graham Memorial, will be open from 9:00 o'clock this morning to 5:00 o'clock this afternoon.

The purpose of the board as conceived by the student leaders is threefold. It will encourage careful bookkeeping, eliminate graft, and allow a readjustment at the beginning of each new administration if such seems desirable by the reports published. By this examination of the accounts of student organizations misproportionate fees may be readily detected and corrected.

The jurisdiction of the board will extend over all accounts collected by the business office which are levied by a vote of the organization. This means that every student will know at the end of each fiscal year for what his fees have been expended. The report will appear in THE DAILY TAR HEEL as soon as it has been prepared by the board. Such organizations as the interfraternity council, German club, the Phi and the Di, and other organizations of a quasi-public nature, not of a compulsory nature, collecting fees from members of the student body will not be forcible come under the jurisdiction of the board, but it is considered desirable.

No salaries will be paid to the members of the board. Where professional services are required the organization concerned will bear the expense.

The president of the University will select two faculty members to serve upon the
