YOUR DONATIONS

VOLUME XL

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 23, 1932

NUMBER 126

FUND GROWS AS PARENTS DONATE DURING HOLIDAYS

Total Reaches $18,720.75 With Contributions Still Coming in Mainly From Homes.

The total received by the Emergency Student Loan Fund to date is $18,720.75. Contributions are still coming in at the rate of about a hundred dollars a day.

The bulk of the contributions received during the holidays were from parents of students. These came in answer to an appeal from the Student Committee on the Emergency Student Loan Fund and were signed by Mayne Albright as chairman. During the week twenty-six contributions have been received from parents totalling $363.00. This added to the $1,145.00 contribution earlier by four parents makes the total contributed by parents so far $1,508.00. Of course this does not include many contributions from parents who have contributed as alumni, faculty members, or residents of Chapel Hill.

The cost of the letter sent out by the Student Committee was borne by the Junior and Senior classes and Seeman Printery of Durham. All contributions received are accordingly completely available for the loan funds. It is expected that a considerable sum will be received. All students are urged to write home in support of this appeal.

DEBATERS MAKE SUCCESSFUL TRIP

Five Out of Six Decision Debates Go to Representatives of University.

University debaters were successful in the north, west, and south over the spring holidays, five out of six decision debates being decided in favor of Carolina. Dan Lacy and William Eddleman represented the University in the west; Don Seawell and John Wilkinson in the south; and McBride Fleming-Jones and Ed Lanier in the north.

On the southern trip the debaters won their two decision contests at the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech. They also met the University of Florida and the University of South Carolina in non-decision debates. The Pi Kappa Delta question was debated along with the subject—Resolved: That capitalism is unsound in principle. At Georgia the query was stated—Resolved: That Franklin D. Roosevelt is not the best candidate for presidency for the Democratic party.

In the western debates Carolina met the University of Tennessee taking the affirmative of the Pi Kappa Delta question stated—Resolved: That congress should pass legislation providing for a centralized control of industry. There was no decision. In the Ashbury debate Lacy and Eddleman met Stranger and Eddie and debating on the same side of the same question won the judges decision. This is one of the four debates at which Asbury entertains visiting teams and was held in the central auditorium of the Kentuckians.

In the Cincinnati debate Carolina upheld the negative of the question—Resolved: That capitalism is unsound in principle.

University Graduate Weds Betty Bronson

Ludwig Lauerhass, '26, an alumnus of Asheville, has just been married to Betty Bronson, young screen star. Following the recently announced engagement, the ceremony took place last week in California. The couple are going abroad on their honeymoon.

Their first meeting was three years ago on a trans-Atlantic liner. They met later in Oxford, England, where Miss Bronson was visiting her brother. Lauerhass at that time was studying at Heidelberg university.

This makes the second Asheville alumnus to marry into the movie world, for Francis A. Gudger, '98, married Marjorie Rambeau, well-known cinema actress a few months ago.

WATER ENGINEER WARNS STATE TO EXPECT DROUGHTS

Charles E. Ray, Jr., Thinks Urbanization Is Bringing About Problems in Supply.

Declaring that variation in stream flow is the natural rather than the unusual, pointing to the rapid urbanization of the state with its call for more water for supply and for waste disposal, and expressing the view that the state may expect far more severe droughts than any yet of record, Charles E. Ray, Jr., of Chapel Hill, sounds a note of warning to North Carolina in an article in the current number of The Journal of the American Water Works Association.

Advocates Stream Study
Mr. Ray, who is assistant engineer of the Water Resources and Engineering Division of the Department of Conservation and Development here recommends that all governmental agencies co-operate in a co-ordinated study of stream flow, rainfall, evaporation, etc. From this date, he says, it would be possible to study the factors and evaluate their effects, with a view to utilizing more efficiently and economically our water resources, and to properly proportioning the capital investment in our water supplies and waste treatment plants to our stream capacities.

The article was given first position in the current number of the Journal. It is considered by experts to be a valuable analysis of "Minimum Flow of North Carolina Streams."

North Carolina has had three great droughts in the forty-two years in which records have been kept, Mr. Ray points out. The west suffered most in 1925-26, the east most in 1930-31, and the whole state in 1894-95.

Arch Turner Allen Desires Taxes For Education Rather Than Roads

State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Member Ex-Officio Of the University Board of Trustees Says Children Should Be State's First Consideration.

"No school is good enough for the North Carolina child except the best school that money can buy and that science can devise," is a characteristic statement by Arch Turner Allen, state superintendent of public instruction and member ex officio of the University board of trustees. Typical of his zeal for educational advance in the state, he declared that North Carolina does not think as much of her children as she does of her roads.

Addressing a gathering in 1926 in a plea for an eight-months' school term, Allen said that until the questions concerning the proposed term were adjusted, generations of boys and girls would pass by neglected. Scoring those who would limit education in the state and cut the school appropriations, he asserted, "Tax schemes can be changed, but the crop of boys and girls passes each year."

Outstanding Undergraduate
Graduating from the University in 1897, Allen won recognition as an outstanding undergraduate, being treasurer of Phi Beta Kappa, president of the Dialectic Literary Society, captain of the senior football team, winner of the Holt medal in mathematics, and winner of a medal for debating.

After receiving his degree at the University he received subsequent degrees from Columbia university in 1910 and 1922.

Active in Education
The same year he graduated from the University, Allen became principal of the public schools in Statesville. He later held the positions of principal of schools in Washington and Dilworth; superintendent of schools at Graham and Salisbury; member of the state board of examiners; state director of teachers' training; and president of the North Carolina teachers' assembly.
Filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. E. C. Brooks, Governor Morrison in 1923 appointed Allen to the office of state superintendent of public instruction. In 1924 he received the nomination for the position by the Democratic party.
Long a member of the executive committee of the board of trustees, Allen's efforts to champion the cause of education in the state have been recognized. Always in favor of bettering the standards of efficiency in the state schools, both rural and urban, he is known as one of North Carolina's foremost constructive educators. Under the competent direction of this student of educational problems, a wise administration of the state's most important single undertaking, the development of its public schools, has been carried out.

Photographs in Union

Thirty-six photographs of student unions at some of the principal institutions of the United States and Canada will be placed on display in Graham Memorial building.

A. I. C. E. Meeting Held

The local branch of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers met last night in Graham Memorial. Dr. H. G. Baity, dean of the school of engineering, addressed the meeting.

Proposed Chorus Requires Tenors

A chorus, formed from a group of local singers who presented a part of Mendelssohn's Elijah this winter, plans to present the entire work during commencement week. Several tenors are needed to make the chorus complete, and George Bason, who is directing the group, has requested that anyone interested arrange for an audition with him.

The group, composed of about fifty-five members, has been rehearsing for some time, and the organization will be complete with several more tenors. Bason has requested that tenors, whether or not they have had previous musical training, arrange for an audition with him before April 4 when final organization of the group will be effected.

GOETHE PRAISED BY DR. SPANN IN ASSEMBLY TALK

Hundredth Anniversary of German Poet's Death Is Observed in Program.

The hundredth anniversary of the death of Goethe, the famous German poet and playwright, was observed in yesterday's assembly program.

Dr. E. C. Metzenthin, professor of German, introduced the speaker, Dr. Meno Spann, and described how the anniversary of the great poet's death will be celebrated in Chapel Hill during the coming weeks. According to Dr. Metzenthin, the library has promised to co-operate and already has on exhibit a number of paintings of Goethe. In addition to other plans for the local observance of a world-wide celebration, Dr. Spann will lecture on Goethe at some date in the middle of April.

Universal Genius

In his talk, Dr. Spann declared that the two most prominent reasons for the greatness of Goethe were that he was the last universal genius and the foremost exponent of harmony. "Like the true artist," he said, "Goethe believed that the order of things proceeds from the unshapen to the well-defined—from chaos to cosmos." Dr. Spann explained that he was always more appreciative of the immensity of world civilizations as a whole, than he was concerned with contending the merits of any one. "He was the first to attempt a reconciliation of the French and German civilizations," said Dr. Spann.

Student Journals Are Well Censored

Undergraduate publications edited in American colleges are in fifty percent of the cases censored either by student or faculty councils. This fact was made known at the recent annual congress of the National Student Federation of America. Of the fifty-six colleges represented at this conference only twenty-one have student journals which are not limited by faculty restrictions.

At Syracuse the student publication is limited by faculty prohibition only in that it must back up its accusations with adequate proof. In some of the other colleges advertising and news matter must undergo thorough cross-examinations. In other cases, advertising of cigarette firms and women's beauty parlors are banned.

Y. M. C. A. NAMES MEN WHO GO ON DEPUTATION TRIP

First Work of This Nature For This Year Gains Momentum.

The first deputations of this year that are to be sent to various towns in the state from the Y. M. C. A. here, are being planned. So far, four definite deputations have been decided upon. The first team will make a trip to Fayetteville the week-end of March 31 to April 3. "Pardner" James, who will lead the group, Jim Kenan, John Miller, Ralph Gardner, and Billy McKee will speak, and Bill Barfield, Billy Uzzell, and John Miller will furnish music. Harry F. Comer will close this first deputation meeting at a union service in one of the larger churches where he will make an address of particular interest to boys and girls in the teen age.

The following week-end, April 7 to 10, a deputation will go to Wilmington. Ed Hamer, who will act as leader, Jack Poole, and Ike Minor will speak, and music will be furnished by the string trio, which consists of Thor Johnson, Carl Plaster, and Furman Betts. Dr. William S. Bernard will close the deputation.

The two remaining deputations will make trips to Rocky Mount and Dunn, and the speakers on these visits will be announced later.

HIBBARD AMAZED AT UNIVERSITY'S SPIRIT IN PLIGHT

Former Dean of Liberal Arts School Says Chapel Hill Is Not Whining.

"I came away from Chapel Hill thinking that everyone there was mighty plucky, and I did not hear a wail all the time I was there," writes Dean Addison Hibbard of Northwestern university, who spent several days here last month visiting former associates on the University faculty.

Dean Hibbard, it will be recalled, left here a year ago to go to Northwestern at a salary three times that he was receiving here. He is dean of the college of liberal arts there, the same position he held here, where for ten years he was regarded as one of the ablest members of the faculty.

Statement in Letter

The statement from Dean Hibbard quoted above was made by him in a letter to a faculty member who said he was sure the Dean had no idea of being quoted but that he was equally sure he would have no objection to the statement being used.

Nobody who knows Dean Hibbard will question his sincerity, for he is not given to exaggeration. Had his visit extended over a period of several months instead of several days he doubtless would have heard a few complaints, for in every community there are a few individuals who are prone to be poor sports. But even the closest observers have marveled at the spirit of the University faculty and students in these trying times. The University has proved conclusively that it can take its depression medicine in good spirit along with the rest of the folks.
