DR. ROBBINS FINDS ARSENIC IN BODY OF PICKETT CHILD

Professor Testifies at Lexington
Trial of Mother Accused of Murdering Daughter.

Dr. J. T. Dobbins, of the University chemistry department, testifying in the trial of Mrs. Lola Pickett, at Lexington, stated that he had found approximately one-fifth of a grain of arsenic in each of two specimens taken from the body of Mrs. Pickett's daughter, Elizabeth, six, who died under very suspicious circumstances recently.

Under the cross examination of the defense, Dr. Dobbins outlined in detail each step in the analysis of specimens sent him October 7. Some rat poison found at the home of the defendant was also analyzed by Dr. Dobbins and was found to contain arsenic. The evidence was admitted in both cases over the strenuous objections of the defense counsel.

This testimony came as one of the high points in the trial of Mrs. Pickett for the murder of her daughter and proved to be a strong point for the state's prosecution.

Stolen Clapper Of Church Bell Located In Frat

Clapper Was Stolen So That Students Might Sleep on Easter Morning.

A rusty bell clapper was found not long ago in the cellar of a fraternity house. That old piece of metal, when its history was reviewed, showed that some students were not affected by the charms of bells—at least not prior to the advent of the Morehead-Patterson chimes with their clear, joyous notes.

It seems that a church in the village was accustomed over four years ago to observe Easter with an early morning service. In addition, the occasion was celebrated by a merry ringing of a bell, early—oh, ever so early—in the morning.

Nearby was a fraternity house, and with the taste of all Carolina students, the members liked to have their Sunday morning repose in full quantity. That was something the observation of Easter by bell would not permit.

With "that bell shall not ring tomorrow" spirit, two members of the group ascended to the top of the tower and took the clapper away. Whether it was a crime or not failed to enter their minds; they wanted Easter morning in "its undiminished purity" and quiet.

And that bell did not ring on the morrow.

PUBLICATION OF NEWS LETTER IS RESUMED

The News Letter, discontinued organ of the extension division of the University, resumed publication March 16, through the cooperation of the state prison department. The superintendent of state prison, George Ross Pou, has offered to do the type-setting and press work free of charge. GROUP OF NEGRO SPIRITUALS GIVEN BY GEORGE BASON

Local Baritone Is Now Engaged in Presentation of Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

Yesterday's assembly exercises featured a musical entertainment of negro spirituals presented by George Bason, local baritone and student of that division of American music.

Bason prefaced each of his selections with an interesting explanation of the negro singer's mood. "The negro," he said, "carries his religion with him through all his emotions."

Accompanied by Mrs. A. S. Wheeler, Bason sang many favorite spirituals. Beginning with "Steal Away," he rendered selections reminiscent of the old slave days of the south, among which were the well known "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." Bason is now engaged in arranging the presentation of Mendelssohn's Elijah which will be given during commencement week.

Expenditures Of Students Shown By New Survey

Co-eds Spend Twice as Much Money for Clothes as Men Students.

Buying habits of college students were revealed in a survey of twenty-one representative American universities and colleges conducted recently by a large advertising agency. Of the 2638 students who answered the questionnaires, 1789 were men.

The results show that the woman student spends annually $294.29 for coats and dresses, while the man spends $110.28 for coats and suits. Only 70.4 per cent of the male students owned overcoats.

Candy bars are bought by 73.6 per cent of the men, and chewing gum by 82.2 per cent. Fifty per cent of the women and 68.2 per cent of the men smoke cigarettes. Both men and women preferred Lucky Strikes, Camels, and Chesterfields, respectively. Twenty-two per cent of the men smoke cigars and 37.4 per cent use pipes.

More Fords are owned by college students than any other make of car. Thirty-three per cent of the men and seventeen per cent of the women have automobiles. The travel plans of the students for the next two years include a trip to Europe for 24.3 per cent of the men and 28.8 per cent of the women.

FACULTY POLICIES WILL BE STUDIED BY STUDENT BODY

Administrative Plans to Be Submitted to Student Committee
Before Action Is Taken.

In answer to a petition presented him a few days ago by the president of the student body, President Frank Graham has agreed that all proposed faculty or administrative plans which affect student class room work be submitted to the Student Activities committee before definite action is taken. This agreement was revealed by Mayne Albright, president of the student body, yesterday.

This movement comes in response to a growing feeling of student interest in class room regulations and in proposed methods of conducting classes, arranging course requirements, and revising grading systems, it has been stated. By President Graham's action a definite group of students composing the Student Activities committee will consider with the faculty such policies and will make any recommendations it thinks necessary.

In the past administrative plans have come from faculty meetings and departmental heads acting with the benefit of the reactions of the student body to their proposed plans. A first step in this movement was taken last year when in a joint meeting students and faculty members discussed class attendance.

The benefits of this arrangement, the president of the student body said, will be to increase student interest in class matters further, to find student reaction before the actual experiment is made, and to have a student group offer constructive criticism of the proposals.
