DR. GROVES IS ON GROUP STUDYING MIXED MARRIAGE

Committee Advises Against Inter-marriage of Protestants And Roman Catholics.

Dr. Ernest R. Groves, professor of sociology in the University, was a lay member of the Federal Council of Churches' committee on marriage and the home, which recommended this week to the council that Protestants refrain from intermarriage with Roman Catholics because of the latter's "intolerable" attitude towards such a union. The recommendation was one of the four made by the committee in New York after a study of the subject of "mixed marriages" extending over several months.

Mixed Marriages

Mixed marriages should not be undertaken, the committee affirmed, where "intolerable conditions are imposed by either church in which membership is held." The group referred to the Vatican decree of February 5, requiring that the children of marriages between Roman Catholics and non-Catholics be reared in the Roman Catholic faith.

"For example, if one of the partners to a mixed marriage submits to the dictation of such an authority and promises that his children be brought up in a faith which he does not share, reason and conscience are offended, the seeds of future discord are sowed at the very outset of married life, and the prospect of true marriage becomes remote," continues the committee's report.

Prominent Committee

Serving on the committee with Dr. Groves, were Dr. Howard Chandler Robbins of the General Theological seminary, New York, chairman; George W. Wickersham, Professor Alva W. Taylor of Vanderbilt University, Mrs. Robert E. Speer, president of the national board of Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Professor Jones came to the University of Michigan last year. He will spend the first part of 1933 in England and Ireland studying the life of Thomas Moore.

The purpose of the award to Professor Jones was that he write "a life of Thomas Moore, with a view to representing him as an author of 'Regency' taste in literature, and showing the currents of thought found in his work."

DRAMA FESTIVAL WILL OPEN HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Special Preliminary Contest Is Arranged on Bill of State Tournament Today.

Today's bill of the Carolina Dramatic Association, opening the ninth annual festival, starts with the registration period in the Playmakers theatre at 3:00 o'clock for all contestants.

An informal tea will take place in the Green room of the building at 5:00 o'clock while the final contest in original plays of the community clubs and little theatres is set for 7:00 p. m., and this event will be followed two hours later by the final contest in play production among city high schools.

Special Contest

In addition to the regular program events, three high schools, which were located too far apart to meet for a preliminary trial, will conduct their contest at 3:00 o'clock in the theatre. The winner from this group will compete in the evening performances. Admission to this particular competition is free.

The schools competing and their respective offerings are: Spring Hope high school with Op O' Me Thumb, by Fin and Pryce; Lumberton high school with Storm before Sunset, by Willis Jones; and Beaufort high school with Somebody, by Melville.

An increased interest in dramatics throughout the state is indicated by the fact that the membership list of the association has grown from fifty-two dramatic clubs and individuals of last year to sixty-three at the present time.

Admission to each performance is fifty cents. Season tickets for all twenty-one plays during the festival will be sold for $1.50, and students will get them at the special price of one dollar.

New Indoor Sport Started As University Students Eat Glass

Novel Method of Getting Rid of Discarded Razor Blades and Electric Light Bulbs Is Discovered by Intrepid Students Who Coolly Devour Them.

Broken electric light bulbs and discarded razor blades serve as handy and inexpensive hors d'oeuvres for certain Carolina students who apparently possess cast iron digestive systems. Whether this is a result of the current depression and is found to be more economical to dine on frosted glass bulbs than boarding house steaks is conjectural. Or perhaps eating glass merely serves as a sort of apprenticeship for future sword swallowers, fire-eaters, and the like.

Razor Blades Too

Perhaps the mysterious disappearance of electric light bulbs from the dormitory bathrooms can be attributed to these glass-hungry individuals, or maybe they can be relied upon as possible means of getting rid of old razor blades.

Two University freshmen have demonstrated the art of glass and razor-blade eating to incredulous individuals with the sole proviso that the latter furnish the materials to be consumed.

When asked how it was done, Reeve Hagood stated that thorough chewing of the glass was all that is necessary to avoid harmful effects. "It's all in knowing how," they said.

Phenomenon Explained

Launching into a flood of technical terms, one of the experts explained how the particular type of glass of which electric light bulbs are made has smooth edges, and if properly masticated, will not prove dangerous. The action of acids used in preparing the glass is asserted to cause this phenomenon of smooth breakage. Old-style Gillette razor blades can be eaten in small bits with similar ease.

Demonstrating the art of glass-eating, one of the artists broke an electric light bulb and, taking small bits of glass, chewed them thoroughly and swallowed them. No harmful effects were noticed except a slight irritation of his gums. He explained that such irritations did not occur often. The art has been taught to several students in one of the lower quadrangle buildings and is bidding fair to surpass ping pong as an indoor pastime.

Present Corresponding Secretary of North Carolina Baptist State Convention and Trustee of University Found Time as Self-Help Student to Preach and Teach.

Working his way through the University and serving as the superintendent of the Orange county schools while a junior and senior here, Dr. Charles E. Maddry today is corresponding secretary of the North Carolina Baptist state convention.

Dr. Maddry was born in Chapel Hill and grew up on a farm. He attended high school in Chapel Hill and entered the University in 1898. In his junior year he was elected superintendent of the Orange county schools. He remained two years as a senior, graduating with a Ph.B. degree in 1903.

At the same time he was a student and school superintendent, Maddry served as pastor of the Baptist church at Hillsboro, together with three county churches. He resigned this work in 1904 and entered the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky.

Leaving the seminary in 1905, he became pastor of two mission churches in Greensboro, where he organized the Forest Avenue church. He was pastor of this church until 1909 when he went to the First Baptist church in Statesville. From 1912 to 1916 he was minister of Tabernacle in Raleigh, from where he went to Austin, Texas, as pastor of the University church from 1916 to 1921.

As corresponding secretary of the Baptist state convention since 1921, Dr. Maddry has had charge of the Baptist missions, education, and development work in this state. He led the campaign to raise a fund of a million dollars to lift the debt of Meredith College.

Dr. Maddry is now a trustee of the University and a member of the consolidated board of trustees of the Greater University.

In addition to his self-help work in college he was active in campus activities. In debating he was prominent, winning the Mangum medal in his senior year. He was also president of the Y. M. C. A.

He received the degree of D.D. from Wake Forest in 1917 and from Baylor University, Texas, in 1920.

Dr. Maddry is known throughout the state as a speaker of eloquence and as the possessor of a commanding personality. He has always retained a close contact with the University and is regarded as one of its closest friends.

Genius Is Insanity

Genius is a disease, according to W. Lamage-Eighbaum, German author of The Problem of Genius. In the majority of cases, recognized genius has been coupled with insanity. Modern peoples are prone to worship genius as though it were the indication of the higher evolution of our race but genius is something which may prognosticate the ultimate extinction of our race. Genius is sickness, but in the majority of cases gifted insanity wins out over healthy normal talents in the fields of imaginative writing and music.

SPLIT TEAM WILL DEBATE WESTERN RESERVE TONIGHT

Capitalism Is Unsound Will Be Topic for Discussion in Oregon Style Argument.

"Capitalism Is Unsound" will be the subject for the North Carolina-Western Reserve debate tonight at 7:30 in Gerrard hall. This is a very appropriate subject for discussion with the present depression and is attracting wide attention in intercollegiate debates throughout the United States this year.

Split Team Debate

The debate will be with a split team, Carolina being represented on the affirmative by B. C. Proctor and Forney Rankin, both of whom are liberals and deeply interested in the workings of our system in comparison with other economic orders. On the negative Ed Lanier, who firmly believes in Americanism and the capitalistic system, will represent Carolina.

Western Reserve is widely known for the excellence of its debaters and will be represented on the affirmative by Pedley, who has been a regular member of the team for three years and shared with Western Reserve the national recognition which it won over this period. He is a clear, expressive speaker, reminiscent of the time when debating was the leading intercollegiate sport.

Will Debate Springfield

Tomorrow night Carolina will vie with Springfield on the interesting and important subject of the recognition of Russia, a question which has been brought to the front by the recent Sino-Japanese trouble. Representatives of the University who will support the affirmative in this debate are A. A. Lawrence, who has a particular interest in the Russian problem, and who will present the case of the affirmative, William Eddleman, who will cross examine the Springfield representatives, and John Wilkinson, who needs no introduction, will give the rebuttal.
