

'CINDERELLA' TO BE GIVEN TODAY BY PLAYMAKERS

Local Children Featured in Elaborate Production Dramatized By Harry Davis.

Cinderella, a children's play, acted by children ranging in ages from nine to fifteen, will be presented at the Carolina Playmakers theatre tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock with a special matinee for children at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon included.

The play was dramatized by Harry Davis, associate director of the Playmakers, from Hans Christian Anderson's version of the original story, which is told universally to children of all countries. Cinderella was presented, under Davis's direction, at the Little theatre of Columbia, South Carolina, a year ago, and it met with great success.

Elaborate Settings

This production is expected to prove of special interest to education majors and others interested in dramatic work. Elaborate scenery has been provided for the performance.

This is the first play to be given by the Carolina Junior Playmakers, an organization composed entirely of children. The continuance of this group is largely dependent on the way Cinderella is received.

Cinderella is a special production, and is not included on the regular book of Playmaker tickets.

DR. CARL SPEIDEL TELLS ACTIVITIES OF NERVE FIBRES

Virginia Professor of Anatomy Lectures Before Sigma Xi Society Here.

Lecturing here last night before the society of Sigma Xi, University scientific research society, Dr. Carl C. Speidel, professor of anatomy in the school of medicine at the University of Virginia, revealed how he had found it possible for the first time "to watch directly in the living organism two fundamental activities of nerve fibres."

"These are the behavior of the actively moving tip of a single fibre as it grows toward the skin, and the process of formation of the myelin sheath which later encases the fibre," he explained.

Dr. Speidel's important discovery, announced at the annual meeting in January of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, won for him a $1000 prize awarded annually by the Association for the outstanding scientific contribution of the year.

Dr. Speidel is the first to learn all the secrets of nerve growth by studying nerves inside animal organisms, thus settling a scientific controversy lasting for seventy years.

The Virginia scientist is said to have proved once and for all that the nerves do not grow as a result of cells forming a chain, but that each nerve grows out of a single cell in a central nervous system. This establishes the "outgrowth theory" of nerves as opposed to the "chain theory." No one had been able to check the outgrowth theory on a living animal before.

Dr. Murphy Is Only Representative Of Physicians On Board Of Trustees

Prominent Wilmington Doctor Has Served as President of State Board of Medical Examiners and President of State Medical Society; Permanent Secretary of Class Since 1916.

Although the University has no alumni more loyal than its medical graduates, there was but one physician elected a member of the board of trustees of the "Greater" University. That member is Dr. J. G. Murphy, graduate of the University class of 1901, and prominent Wilmington physician.

A member of the present board of trustees of the University, Dr. Murphy was chosen by the last legislature to become a member of the consolidated board of 100 trustees. In a sense, therefore, Dr. Murphy represents on the University board of trustees the point of view of the medical alumni.

Dr. Murphy has practiced medicine in Wilmington since 1907, moving there from Kenansville where he had practiced four years following the completion of his medical course.

University Career

Entering the University in fall of 1894, Dr. Murphy attended three years until June, 1897, when he dropped out to teach school for two years. At the end of that time he came back to Chapel Hill as a medical student. By taking some academic courses along with his medicine, he was able to complete his two-year medical course and at the same time receive a B.S. degree with the class of 1901.

He continued his medical training at the medical college of the University of Louisville, and was graduated there with an M.D. degree in 1903. In 1907 he did post-graduate work at Presbyterian Eye, Ear, Nose, and Throat Hospital in Baltimore, from which he received a certificate. One of the most refreshing things about his professional training is that for ten years after his course at Baltimore, he spent a portion of each year at some medical center in further study.

In 1912-13 he was vice-president of the State Medical Association, in 1920 was elected to fellowship in the American College of Surgeons, and in the same year was also elected by the state medical society to membership on the state board of medical examiners for a six-year period. In 1921-22 he was president of that board.

Ideals for Profession

At the meeting of the state medical society at Pinehurst in April, 1930, Dr. Murphy was chosen president of that body. He presided over the meeting of the state society in Durham, 1931, and in his presidential address, stressed the summons to the medical profession for development from within. "My appeal is," he said, "that we bring to our patients and their anxious families our best medical knowledge, the truest manhood, the warm friendship which is the outward evidence of a life whose fires burn steadily on the altar of unselfishness and love for others."

The ideal that Dr. Murphy has for the medical profession is indeed descriptive of his own qualities. As a practitioner he has been guided by those attributes that inspire great confidence.

STUDENTS STRIKE FOR REED HARRIS

Near Riot at Columbia as Students Try for Reinstatement of Editor.

Numerous injuries were sustained Wednesday by students at Columbia University as they went about their efforts to obtain or oppose the reinstatement of Reed Harris, expelled editor of the Columbia Spectator, student publication.

Several women students were injured slightly in a battle between striking and non-striking students, directly beneath the window of President Nicholas Murray Butler's office.

Harris, whose editorials had charged professionalism on football teams and had criticized the University dining service, was absent from the campus during the day. Partisans of Harris who attempted to "gag" the statue of alma mater in front of the library caused a near riot as they flaunted a strip of black crepe before the group they dubbed "the athletic crowd."

RANKIN TALKS TO ASSEMBLY GROUP

Students Urged to Find Accommodations for Visitors From State High Schools.

Yesterday in assembly, E. R. Rankin, director of bureau of high school debating and athletics, informed freshmen that the large number of high school contestants in tennis, track, and debating, which will be in Chapel Hill as the guests of the University, April 14-15, must be lodged and entertained while here. Rankin urged all freshmen to make a concentrated effort to find accommodations for these contestants, saying that the freshman class had always undertaken the job of making the visiting contingent feel at home on the campus. "Every courtesy should be shown the group," said Rankin, "It is the duty and privilege of the freshman class."

H. F. Comer, who introduced Rankin, announced that reports on the freshman reading ballot would be made next Tuesday.

New Group Formed

An agreement was reached whereas a group composed of three members of the German club, two from the Grail, one from the graduate club, one from each of the three upper classes, and one member to be held over from the committee of the previous year will be in charge of the dances on the campus and will be called the University Dance Committee.
