

RUSHING SEASON TO LAST TWELVE DAYS THIS YEAR

Shorter Period Deemed More Advisable Than Usual Season by Interfraternity Council.

Rushing rules for 1932 went into effect last Monday, September 19, with the beginning of the first period of silence, which will continue through Saturday, September 24. The thirteen days following this latter date will constitute the 1932 rushing season.

Invitations accorded by the various fraternities to those members of the freshman class whom they wish to visit their houses were filed in the registrar's office yesterday. These await delivery during the next two days.

The rushing activities of Sunday, September 25, will be confined to the fraternities entertaining the freshmen at their houses for that day. At this time the new men are extended bids to visit the houses of those fraternities from whom they have received bids. The rushing season properly begins the following—

NEW UNIVERSITY SCHOOL HEADED BY W. C. JACKSON

Cherished Plan of State Leaders Finally Realized in School of Public Administration.

A long-cherished project of men who have the interest of North Carolina and its advancement at heart has at last been realized with the establishment of a school of public administration at the University. Cooperation between this new school and the state-wide institute of governmental officers recently organized under the leadership of Professor Albert M. Coates will mean much in the improvement of public welfare and government in North Carolina in the immediate future.

The establishment of such a school here on the campus is expected to bring the students to a fuller realization of their obligations as citizens and leaders in the commonwealth which has provided their educational resources.

Dr. Jackson Heads School

Dr. W. C. Jackson, formerly vice-president of N. C. C. W., accepted the headship of the new school and will begin his work this fall. The organization of this school will cause no other addition to the faculty other than that of Dr. Jackson.

The University, throughout its long history, has always had strong social interests, great faith in the ultimate soundness of democratic government, and a responsibility for serving the state as a laboratory in governmental research and a training ground for future governmental leaders.

A leader in the above point of view was former President Edward Kidder Graham, who said when he brought Dr. E. C. Branson here and established the department of rural social economics: "Its business is to teach North Carolina to North Carolinians; not the North Carolina of day before yesterday but the North Carolina of day after tomorrow."

Dialectic Senate Will Meet Tuesday Night

The initial meeting of the Dialectic Senate is planned for Tuesday at 7:00 o'clock. At this time, the president for the fall quarter, Charles G. Rose, Jr., will make the regular inaugural speech. There will be no bills discussed at the meeting.

Those freshmen who indicated their interest in debating and forensic work in the questionnaire sent out by the dean of students were sent invitations. These freshmen are especially urged to attend, and any other students who are interested are asked to be present.

MEMBERS OF '32 CONTRIBUTE $247 TO LOYALTY FUND

J. G. deR. Hamilton Receives $400 to Further Work of Historical Collection.

The Alumni Loyalty Fund office announced yesterday that the class of 1932 had pledged the total sum of $247 to the "Hope Pledge Fund" founded a year ago. The pledges were made under the supervision of Felix A. Grisette, director of the Alumni Loyalty Fund.

The class also contributed $400 to the Southern Historical Collection. This gift has been turned over to Professor J. G. De Roulhac Hamilton, Kenan professor of American history and director of the University's activity in southern historical research.

Pledges to the fund ranged from one to ten dollars and included a representative number of the baby members of the alumni body. Fulfillment of the promises was left to the convenience of the donors, none of whom pledged to pay later than January 1, 1936. One member bound himself to meet his obligation with "the first money received as wages."

A private donation of twenty dollars will be lumped with the

FIFTY FRESHMEN ATTEND Y MEET

Outstanding Boys From Leading Schools Invited by Y. M. C. A. to Attend Pre-College Retreat.

The University Y. M. C. A. this year sponsored a pre-college retreat for fifty-seven outstanding freshmen from Saturday, September 17, through Monday, September 19.

From one to three boys out of each leading high school and prep school who had the best record for interest and participation in the religious, social, and activity life of their communities, were invited to come to the campus two days before the remaining number of new men convened. The purpose of the retreat was to bring to the campus, in advance of the rest of the class, a specially selected group of freshmen and give them a three-day program that will acquaint them with the customs and traditions of the University, its leaders, and methods.

The idea of a pre-college retreat has been growing rapidly among the leading universities of the country for the past decade, having become a part of the program at the University of Pennsylvania, University of Georgia, Cornell University, Vanderbilt University, and University of Texas.

PLAN FOR YEAR'S WORK AT GRAHAM MEMORIAL BEGUN

Mayne Albright, Newly Chosen Manager, Expects Busy Season At Student Union.

Mayne Albright, '32, newly appointed manager of the Graham Memorial building, announced yesterday his tentative plans for the running of the building this year. Albright, last year's student body president, succeeds Noah Goodridge who resigned to take a position with International Cash Registers company of Philadelphia.

Albright announced the addition of several new games to the game room. He has put in two shuffle boards which have proved very popular and also added two skill-ball games and one called play-bow. He stated that on the opening night of the building approximately eighty boys were using the facilities of the game room.

The dormitories will meet at the Memorial building at specified times for the purpose of electing dormitory presidents and their representative for the University forum which meets regularly at the Memorial building. After the meeting the game room will be turned over for the use of men in the various dormitories. Albright plans to have informal dances weekly. These dances will be sponsored by various campus organizations and will be free of charge.

MUSICAL TALENT FOR COMING YEAR SHOWS PROMISE

Harold S. Dyer Plans Extensive Programs for University Band and Orchestra.

The outlook of the musical university for the coming year is the best in several years, according to Harold S. Dyer, head of the department of music. Advance reports collected by the music department indicate that both the band and orchestra, with the exception of the trombone sections, will be stronger this year than last. This year's freshman class is expected to bring with it a great wealth of talent from all over the south, most of which will come from North Carolina.

Doctor Dyer has outlined a rather extensive plan of work and entertainment for the year. The band under the direction of T. Smith McCorkle gets under way tonight and is scheduled to be on hand tomorrow for the opening game. In addition to its work on the football field during the fall the band plans to present several concerts. Two trips have so far been arranged for the band.

Symphony Orchestra Work

The University symphony orchestra begins its work next week under Dyer's direction. Four major concerts during the ensuing year have been planned by the department, and in addition to these there will be a series of matinee programs especially for public school children. The orchestra is also planning to cooperate with the Chapel Hill Oratorical society in the presentation of a Christmas concert in the same manner in which they gave Elijah.

Although the glee club has made no definite arrangements for tours yet, a series of campus concerts have already been

STUDENTS TO GET SPECIAL SECTION IN KENAN STANDS

To Avoid Federal Tax, Students Will Use Only Designated Seats At Football Games.

If Carolina football adherents wish to witness gridiron battles this fall without paying an extra charge for that privilege, they must sit in a designated section set aside by the University Athletic association. Sections 17, 18, 19, and 20, rows A through Z have been given the student body. These seats are on the south side of the field in the center sections and are the most desirable in the stadium.

In the last session of Congress when a tax on admissions to athletic contests was drawn up, it was first decided that student admissions to games would be taxed. Only after a hectic battle by various athletic associations in the country was this tax removed, the Internal Revenue department eliminating it on one condition: that certain sections of seats be set aside for each game for students only. Therefore students cannot sit in seats outside these sections without paying full admission price plus the ten per cent Federal tax.

Coupon books must be presented at gate 5 for admission. Any fraudulent use of the student athletic book will result in its forfeiture.

FLORIDA RAILWAY BEGINS SUIT FOR UNIVERSITY FUND

Three People, Including President Graham, Are Named Defendants in Fight.

As a beneficiary of the will of the late Henry Flagler's widow, the University has become involved in a lawsuit which threatens to deprive it of the Kenan foundation. Scott M. Loftin, receiver for the Florida East Coast railway, filed official papers in the supreme court of New York in mid-July. President Frank P. Graham was named as a defendant in the case as were William R. Kenan, Jr., and Lawrence Haines, trustees of the estate of Mrs. Mary Lily Flagler Bingham.

Mrs. Flagler, to whom Flagler is reported to have left $1,000,000 at his death in 1913, established a trust fund for the University which gives the institution $75,000 annually. The money has been used to augment salaries of certain professors, known as "Kenan professors" and for a wide variety of scholarly research activity.

Neglect Alleged

The trustees were accused in the formal complaint of having neglected to apply the proceeds of the trust fund to the maintenance of the Florida railway, a stipulation which appeared in Mrs. Flagler's will.

The supreme court has been requested to interpret the will to the effect that the trust fund was established for the benefit of the railway, to issue an order directing the trustees so to apply the income, and to grant an injunction restraining the trustees from disbursing any funds without a court order. If granted, this action would render only the railway a beneficiary of the will and thus deprive the University of the Kenan grant.

Big Pep Meeting Is Scheduled Tonight

A special pep meeting has been called tonight in Memorial hall at 9:15 o'clock. All freshmen are expected to attend and bring their Handbooks.

The chief cheerleader has requested that all new men familiarize themselves with the yells before attending the meeting. A special program has been arranged with several pep talks and the cheerleaders are looking for a large crowd. Coach Bob Fetzer will speak.

This will be the only pep meeting before the Carolina-Wake Forest football game tomorrow.

STRINGFIELD TO RECEIVE TRIBUTE BY MUSIC WORLD

Composition of Native Composer To Be Presented Over Radio In General Electric Hour.

The musical world will again pay tribute to North Carolina's foremost native composer Monday night when the General Electric symphony orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee presents as the feature of the evening Lamar Stringfield's Cripple Creek.

It is North Carolina's turn in the "Parade of the States." Monday night's program will consist in the main of things of and about the Old North State. Bruce Barton, well known lecturer and writer, will deliver a short address on North Carolina. It is not yet definitely known what phase of the state he will discuss, but it is expected that he will speak on North Carolina as a place in which to live.

Although Lamar Stringfield's composition is to be the highlight of the evening, other North Carolina musical numbers will also be rendered. A melody of the college songs of the state will be included on the program, concluding with a symphonic arrangement.

DAILY TAR HEEL STAFF TRYOUTS THIS AFTERNOON

Editorial Writers to Meet With Editor in Offices of Paper at 3:00 P. M.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL, which today begins its thirty-ninth year of service at the University, will offer all members of the student body interested in collegiate journalism the opportunity to try out for the different divisions of the staff this afternoon in the offices of the publication, 204 Graham Memorial.

Both new and old men interested in reporting and sports writing will gather at 1:30 o'clock for the try-outs, while at 2:30 o'clock city editors of last year will meet in the offices of the paper. Editorial writers will confer with the editor at 3:00 p. m.

Upperclassmen Invited

The try-outs set for this afternoon are primarily designed to introduce freshmen to the operation of the paper and to allow them an opportunity to display their ability on the different divisions of the staff. Previous experience is not necessary. An invitation is also extended to upperclassmen to work with the publication and their try-outs are set for this time.

A large number of men try out for positions on the staff at the beginning of each year. This work affords experience in journalism as well as recognition in a leading campus activity. In addition, the publication awards charms for excellent work.

Today the paper enters its thirty-ninth year of existence on the University campus and its fourth year as a daily. Beginning in 1893 as the weekly publication of the athletic association, the paper has had a notable history and a number of prominent men throughout the state were connected with the publication in their college days.

In 1908 THE TAR HEEL became a bi-weekly and in 1922 was taken over by the Publications Union board, when it became
