

GRIDDERS POLISH ATTACK FOR TILT NEXT SATURDAY

Commodores Bring 195 Pound Line and 175 Pound Backfield.

The Carolina coaches began concentrating attention on offensive line-play yesterday, and indications are that the Tar Heel forwards are in for a siege of work before Coach Collins sends them out to block Vandy's massive front wall here Saturday.

Carolina's first and second lines both looked fine defensively in holding Wake Forest without a single first down last Saturday, but June Underwood, center, and Frank Smith, tackle, were about the only boys whose all-round work drew any praise from Head Coach Collins.

Underwood, a former tackle himself, played the whole game and looked genuinely good in every phase of play. Smith, who has just broken in as a regular, was a power on defense; his blocking was good on the whole; and it was he and Underwood who blocked Wall's punt and gave Carolina the last big scoring chance it squandered in the fourth quarter.

Coach Collins let slip a sarcastic comment and suggestion to the linemen yesterday which shows pretty well how he feels about the Wake Forest tie.

"On practically all the running plays the offensive men for Carolina formed their contact on the defensive man," he said, "and the interferers were able to get through very nicely."

"The only trouble was the blockers did not hold the defensive men out long enough to allow that all-important person, the ball carrier, to get through the hole."

"Our hope is that during the coming week we will be able to impress upon the offensive linemen that they should also, out of sheer politeness at any rate, allow the ball carrier occasionally to get beyond the line of scrimmage."

Heavy blocking practice has been ordered for every day this week, and with the players feeling about as badly about the Wake Forest tie as Coach Collins, all indications are that the Tar Heels will be a much stronger club Saturday.

They will need to be. Vanderbilt is packing a 195-pound line and a 175-pound backfield, with some nine regulars back from last year, and McGugin's Commodores are rated as one of the most powerful teams in the country and one of the biggest favorites for the Conference title.

Vandy will bring to Kenan stadium one of the greatest stars in the South, Dixie Roberts, who ran wild against Mercer last Saturday.

FROSH BOXERS REPORT

First tryouts of freshmen interested in boxing will take place today in the Tin Can at 4:00 p. m., according to an announcement by Head Coach Arch T. Allen.

Coach Allen, himself former captain and southern welter-weight champion, in his second year as freshman boxing coach last year turned out one of the best freshman mitt teams ever to represent Carolina.

After Saturday's game, the majority of the spectators were ready to relegate the Tar Heels to the scrap heap for the year. The University team did not live up to expectations, but the grid-ders certainly aren't as bad as they looked. Although they failed to score, the Tar Heels were four touchdowns better than the Deacons, and with a little more work this week, Coach Collins will demonstrate that fact to Vanderbilt's crack outfit. Against the Deacons, Carolina used nothing but fundamental plays, but against the Commodores, the boys will "shoot the works."

E. K. Hall and his Rules Committee came in for plenty of criticism Saturday. Everyone the writer spoke to concerning the changes agreed on one thing—that the game was perceptibly slowed up. If Saturday's game was any criterion, football is not going to be the glamorous spectacle it was in former years. The change that came in for most criticism was the one which automatically made the ball dead when any part of the player's body except his feet touched the ground. And the way some of the Wake Forest players were pushing or bowling over the Tar Heel backs, many fans thought that there was a rule against tackling.

Tomorrow, weather permitting, about 75,000 persons will jam the Yankee Stadium to see the opening game of the World Series, with the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs providing the entertainment. Columns have been written about the stars of the Yankees, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, while just as much space has been devoted to Kiki Cuyler, Lonnie Warnecke, and Gabby Hartnett of the Bruins. But the writer still thinks that most of the thrills will be provided by some of the lesser known players, who have that most annoying habit of "robbing the show" from the "star attractions." Personally the writer thinks that the players like Joey Sewell, Bill Dickey and Earl Combs of the American League champions, and Elwood English, "Hoss" Stephenson and Charley Grimm of the Cubs will be leading the runs batted in column.

Here and There

One reason why Chick Meehan was unpopular at New York university is that the players were bucking against his slave driving tactics. . . . If the 1932 World Series goes the seven scheduled games, a new gate receipt record will be made, the figure hovering around the $1,500,000 mark. Not bad for a year of the depression. . . . Although Vanderbilt and Tulane are pre-season picks for the Southern Conference Crown, Coach Al Howard thinks that the winner of the Tennessee-Alabama game will be the titleholder. Carolina plays Vandy, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, and Tech, all of whom are "pre-season champions."

DUKE LEADS RACE FOR STATE GRID HONORS TO DATE

State College With Crushing Win Over Appalachian Looks Good.

Duke university, as a result of their 13 to 0 win over Davidson college, took the lead in the race for Big Five honors in the state. The University of North Carolina and Wake Forest were in second position after their battle which ended in a 0 to 0 tie. State has not yet met a Big Five opponent.

North Carolina State had a long lead in all scoring departments, as a result of their 38 to 0 victory over Appalachian college. Duke's thirteen was the nearest to State in total points, as none of the other Big Five teams crossed the goal line. Ray Rex, State's sensational sophomore fullback, was first in individual point scoring. The middle-west boy had a total of twelve, while two more State backs, McQuage and Komlos, were second with a touchdown and an extra point each.

Long's Shorts On Sports

By Morrie Long

Fresh from an unimpressive victory over Mercer, Coach Dan McGugin's Vanderbilt charges are favored to capture the clash this Saturday with Carolina. Led by Pete Gracie, all southern center and one of the finest in the nation, the Black and Gold squad includes seven veterans: Leyendecker, Talley, Beasley in the line, with Roberts, "Good" Fortune, and Henderson in the backfield. "Mighty" Close, quarter, is lost for the season on scholastic difficulties. Last year's setto at Nashville was expected to be a walk-away for the Commodores, but until the fourth quarter the battle was anyone's game, the final score ending 13 to 0.

Schmeling vs. Walker

Ireland's pride, Mickey Walker, is expected to lose the decision to Max Schmeling in their heavyweight bout, the younger and stronger German going into the fracas with betting odds of 3 to 1 favoring him. Johnny Risko who was knocked out by the Teuton and who holds a decision over Walker, picks the Irishman to win because of his damaging body punches. Schmeling looks too tough.

Ruth's Pitching Record

The most picturesque figure in baseball, Babe Ruth not only has accomplished things with his bludgeon, in previous world series, but he has a pitching record for the "freshman" twirlers to shoot at. He holds the record for hurling the most consecutive innings with no runs. The Bambino has made over a million since 1919, and his income for the rest of his life is set at $1,000 per month.

North Carolina State has a "Holdum" lad in her football squad while Columbia's roster includes a "Ketchum." Carolina fans may or may not be calling players' names before the season is over.

Blue Devils Good

Duke's Blue Devils looked good against Davidson last Saturday, the plunging of Laney, Mason and a new sophomore named Cox, and the line play of Nick Porreca, another newcomer, featuring the play. The Blue Devils will have to look plenty good to take the measure of Auburn next week, however, as the Chet Wynn coached team has

BASEBALL CALL BRINGS FEW MEN

Due to threatening weather the call for fall baseball enthusiasts was answered by only some twenty-odd men. Among this squad there were several letter-men, the most notable of which were Jim Griffith, Willie Powell, and Paul Dunlap. Others to report were Fred Crouch, pitcher, Red Mathewson and Bandy Parker, catchers, all of last year's reserves and several of last year's freshman team: as Zaiser, outfielder and Patterson, infielder.

Coach Bunn Hearn expects a squad of about thirty-five to report when the weather improves and then he intends to start the regular inter-squad games between the rookies and the veterans.

Yesterday was spent in hitting and fielding practice in preparation for the coming games.
