Public Administration School Will Train Students For Office-Holding

Dr. Walter C. Jackson, Former Head of North Carolina College For Women, Appointed by Board of Trustees to Head New Department Installed in University.

The school of public administration, newest of the University schools, is founded on the conviction that governmental officials require a definite scholastic preparation for their responsibilities. As an instrument of the state university, it aims to serve the state by training future office-holders of North Carolina and the nation.

When the board of trustees decided last June to create this graduate school at the University, it appointed Dr. Walter Clinton Jackson, vice-president of North Carolina College for Women, as dean of the then theoretical school of public administration. Dr. Jackson immediately made a survey of the courses offered by the University and formulated a plan of study for his school.

Course of Study

But one new course has been organized for the school, that in public administration, which is offered by Dr. Jackson in the winter quarter. The balance of the courses are to be had elsewhere in the University. Departments which are now contributing subjects to the new school include psychology, com-

GROVES HAS NEW BOOK FOR PRESS

Dr. Ernest R. Groves, Professor Of Sociology, Writes New Book for Collegians.

Ernest R. Groves, research professor in the institute for research in social science and professor of sociology in the University, has just completed the manuscript for his new book, Marriage: A College Text for Men and Women. Copy for this comprehensive new text has gone to press and will be published shortly by Henry Holt and Company as an addition to the American Social Science Series of which Dr. Howard W. Odum, also of the University, is the editor.

For College Students

The new volume is intended primarily for college men and women, and it attempts to answer the many pertinent questions that are so often asked by young people, those questions about marriage and family life. The book is in a large measure an outgrowth of conferences and researches in connection with the course on marriage and the family given especially for seniors here in the University, and is also an outgrowth of Professor Groves' researches in the institute for research in social science.

The opening chapter of the new publication deals with the social changes influencing marriage and the family, and gives some very interesting information in regard to the change of motives, amount of family life, family relationships, and social attitudes. The correlation of science and marriage is discussed in the following chapter

BAGBY ADDRESSES FRESHMEN UPON HABITS OF STUDY

Dr. English Bagby Says Students Must Decide Question of Outside Activities.

Dr. English Bagby of the psychology department, addressing freshman assembly yesterday on "The Methods of Study," declared that the majority of failures were due to lack of study and that the probable reason for not studying was the lack of interest in the work. The student, he said, is not in a position to judge what is doing him good and what is not and for this reason should do his best in what he is taking.

The student can always find a place of quiet to study at the library if his room-mate is a saxophone player, he said, and should never use this as an excuse for not studying.

Dr. Bagby stressed the distribution of time in studying. He said that only one-fourth of the time should be spent in reading the assignment and three-fourths of the time should be spent in recitation. The time just before class should be spent in studying. He said that five minutes studying at this time was worth ten at another time because the thing learned is fresh in the mind.

Math Hardest

The mathematics course, which most freshmen consider the hardest, should be studied excessively at first to get a good foundation. The foundation in math tends to make it easier

University Professors Invited by Cherokee Indians to Attend Annual Tribe Fair.

Professor F. H. Koch, director of the Playmakers, and Ralph S. Boggs, professor of folklore in the department of romance languages, left yesterday afternoon to attend the Cherokee Indian Fair which is being conducted October 4, 5, 6, and 7 at the Cherokee Reservation on the edge of the Great Smoky mountains.

At this fair there will be displayed samples of their arts and handicrafts, and besides these and other exhibitions the Cherokees will play their own native Indian ball game from which the American sport of lacrosse evolved.

Koch Presented Mask

On his visit to this annual harvest festival of the Cherokees, Koch will extend a formal invitation to the Cherokees to bring to Chapel Hill their colorful Green Corn dance. He has visited this reservation before and on his last trip was presented with an ancient wooden mask carved from the trunk of a poplar tree and used for many years in their dramatic dance ceremonies. He has added the Cherokee mask to the dramatic museum in his office.

In 1927 when a group of Hopi Indians came to Chapel Hill on an educational mission to demonstrate their celebrated Snake Dance, Professor Koch was honored by being adopted by them into the Hopi tribe. Since that time Mr. Koch has visited the Hopi reservation in New Mexico several times on his way to California.

High tribute was paid by Dr. Graham to the early teachings of Dr. Charles D. McIver and Dr. Edwin A. Alderman that every young man and woman is entitled to an education provided by the commonwealth.

After the address, Dr. and Mrs. Graham were guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. I. Foust at luncheon.

Teachers Urged To Abstain From Drinking, Smoking, Or Card-Playing

Article Appearing in October Issue of the "High School Journal" By George Howard and J. S. Fleming Says School Superintendents Desire Model Teachers.

Teachers going into certain districts of the state will be wise to abstain from drinking, smoking, dancing and card-playing if they wish to hold their positions. This information is the result of inquiry blanks sent to 195 superintendents of county and special charter school systems by George Howard, professor in the University education school and J. S. Fleming, superintendent of Warsaw schools. Their findings have been compiled and published as an article, "Administrative Practices Applying to the Selection of Teachers in North Carolina Public Schools," appearing in the October issue of The High School Journal.

The facts secured pertained to educational requirements, experience requirements, employment of married as teachers, home talent, age of teachers, church membership, the advisability of employing teachers who dance, smoke or play cards, and the form of application.

Varied Regulations

The article reveals a wide divergence of opinion on these points. However, the majority of the answers showed that a liberal attitude was directed to-

WILLIAMS PAINTS DARK PICTURE IN KIWANIS ADDRESS

Dr. Horace Williams Makes Strong Plea for Safer International Relations.

Pleading for international vision and good-will, Dr. Horace Williams, professor of philosophy of the University, yesterday addressed the Durham Kiwanis club at their morning luncheon.

"There is no place in modern life and civilization for war reparations and the sooner the United States comes to the conclusion that international debts must be forgotten the quicker the nation will recover from present distressing conditions," he said. He told of conditions existing in various countries of the world because of the World War and of staggering debts under which they are laboring. He offered the soft-pedaling of reparation efforts as the panacea for the condition.

The place the United States has held since the war was discussed by Dr. Williams in comparing the change of the nation's status before that great conflict. Whereas prior to the war this country was paying 34,000,000 pounds to England annually in the curtailment of her debts. Great Britain has since the war paid 200,000,000 pounds annually in interest to this country.

The picture presented of England was one of bankruptcy. Her people are taxed anywhere from twenty-five to ninety per cent on their property. The fact that such a great country should go off of the gold standard was offered by Dr. Williams as evidence of the seriousness of the situation.

The condition of America was stated as that of business channels clogged up with no hope of circulation until the trouble is removed. Every nation, he said, ward the teachers. Most of the systems will employ married women as new teachers. Local residents are preferred in a large number of county systems, but are not so favored in the special charter division.

Only a small percentage of schools have any maximum age requirement for new teachers. Church membership of instructors is not considered in many systems, while a slight number forbid dancing. Few maintain rules prohibiting smoking or card-playing.

Replies to the questionnaire furnish ample evidence of the varying limitations placed upon members of the public school faculties. The subject of marriage brought from one superintendent the statement, "Qualifications being equal, probably it would be expedient to select as new teachers those who are unmarried."

In the teacher's contract of one of the leading cities of the state is written: "Your marriage will automatically cancel the provisions of this contract."
