0 win in their first game of the year, and last week Oak Ridge got an easy 21 to 0 victory over Wake Forest's yearling team. Among the players in the starting lineup will be Shore, left end, who was an all-state high school player at Charlotte; Leven, half-back, who made the Florida all-state high school team last year; Smathers, another half-back, named on the class B all-state team; Wagner, tackle, an all-state player in Kentucky and who had a chance to go to any number of Southern Conference colleges; and Shoup, center, whose brother is a star tackle at State college.

The Oak Ridge coaches are also preparing for a hard fight from the Tar Babies. McCachern and Sutton, yearling full-backs and stars on Oak Ridge's team last year, were responsible for two of the freshmen's touchdowns last week. Both of these boys will see plenty of action against their former teammates. Coaches Sapp and Howard have been running the freshmen hard all week, drilling them especially in pass defense in order to break up the Cadets' aerial attack which has been outstanding in their first two games. The yearlings were taught a few plays during the week and may give the spectators some unexpected thrills during the contest when they pull off one or two of the most tricky ones.
