

TALK BY WRIGHT FEATURES JOINT Y.M.C.A. MEETING

Chapel Hill Colored Quartet Also
On Program as Cabinets
Meet Together.

Information, appreciation, and consecration are the three cardinal points in a college education, according to Reverend Tom Wright who addressed the three Y. M. C. A. cabinets Monday night in Gerrard hall. It was the initial joint gathering of the current scholastic year for the association groups.

Wright, who is the assistant pastor of the local Episcopal church, spent this summer in Holland at a convention of the World's Christian Student Federation. In describing the group, he emphasized the fact that the potential power of the young men representing the various nations was tremendous. He spoke of the very future of the world as laying in such groups as this.

Gerrard hall was almost packed with the members of the three cabinets who turned out for the occasion. An added feature on the program was the Chapel Hill colored quartet. The four local negroes gave a half dozen excellent renditions, and were very enthusiastically received by their audience.

Interracial Work

Harry F. Comer, general secretary of the campus Young Men's Christian Association, made several important announcements. In giving the features scheduled for the "Y" cabinets during the remainder of

DEBATING SQUAD WILL MEET STATE

Chosen Carolina Men Will Speak
In Favor of Individual
Political Parties.

Representatives of the University to meet the State college team were chosen at the meeting of the debate squad Monday night.

In addition the tentative wording of the subject was phrased: "Which party should be supported at the next election?" The representatives are Bill Eddleman, speaking for Roosevelt; Red Rankin, speaking for Hoover; and John Jenkins, representing Thomas.

Students who competed in the try-outs were Bill Eddleman, Dave Morgan, Ike Minor, C. H. Donovan, T. F. Shuford, A. S. Kaplan, George Fountain, L. T. Fountain, all speaking for the Democratic candidates; Red Rankin, S. M. Pattishall, J. Little, James Baley, Lenoir Wright, all speaking for the Republican candidate; John Jenkins speaking for the Socialist candidate.

The forum debate with State college will take place Thursday, November 3.

Dr. Manning Speaks at Duke

Dr. I. H. Manning, dean of the medical school, attended the annual anniversary banquet of the Beta Nu chapter of the Alpha Kappa Kappa medical fraternity of Duke university Monday night. Dr. Manning was one of the speakers of the occasion. The meeting was also attended by several members of the local chapter of this national medical fraternity.

Socialists To Hear Dr. Ericson Tonight

The Socialist club of the University will meet tonight at 7:30 in Gerrard hall. Dr. E. E. Ericson will talk on the subject of "Norman Thomas in North Carolina," after which there will be a short discussion meeting for the purpose of procuring suggestions as to how to wage an efficient "Thomas for president" campaign in the state between now and election. A special effort will be made to secure new members.

Socialists, those who wish to become Socialists, and all supporters of Thomas are particularly urged to be present.

AXEL BOETHIUS TO SPEAK ON STUDY OF ARCHAEOLOGY

Swedish Scientist Will Give Illustrated
Lecture on Student
Entertainment Program.

The next in the series of student entertainments for the fall quarter will be an illustrated lecture by Axel Boethius, world famed archaeologist, next Tuesday night.

Boethius is a graduate of the famous Uppsala university in Sweden. He spent three years in Greece as a member of the British School of Archaeology. While in Greece he devoted a short time excavating with the American School of Archaeology expedition of which Dr. J. P. Harland of the University was a member.

Boethius' work deals mainly with the ancient architecture of Greece and Rome, but his special field is that of the architecture of the small Roman town. He is in America on the invitation of the Archaeological Institute of America to deliver a series of lectures on Roman Domestic Architecture and the problems of the small town of Rome in the ancient times.

For the last five years Boethius has been director of the Swedish School of Archaeology in Rome.

Dr. W. E. Caldwell To Address Scouts

The University Eagle Scout club will be addressed by Dr. W. E. Caldwell, chairman of the local Court of Honor board, tonight at 7:30 o'clock at its meeting in room 209, Graham Memorial.

The club was organized this fall exclusively for University men of Eagle Scout rank, with a view toward carrying on advanced scouting and forming a fellowship among men of this rank.

Recently elected officers of the group are: Billy Greet, president; Alvin Zinc, vice-president; and Wendell Dunbar, secretary-treasurer. The charter members are H. L. Hinson, Kirby Smith, Henry Allison, Alvin Zinc, Donald Seawell, Lee Greer, Billy Greet, James Montgomery, Wendell Dunbar, Craig McIntosh, Nat Walker, and Parks Austin. Visitors are invited to attend the organization.

Geometry Deficiencies

Students wishing to make up deficiencies in plane geometry are advised to report to Dean A. W. Hobbs, in South building, at once. He will inaugurate a class under an efficient tutor if enough students desire to enter.

'Bull's Head' Originally Founded For Informal Literary Discussion

Howard Mumford Jones, Former University Instructor, Started
Meeting Place as Recreation for Intellectuals; Change in Name Proved Unsuccessful From Many Aspects.

"It is only fitting that a University which is known as the seat of liberality and culture of the south should have some place where men may get together, irrespective of their social standing, to discuss the literature and morals of his fellow man." It was this sentiment that prompted Howard Mumford Jones, formerly of the University English department, to found the original "Bull's Head" bookshop. Since the establishment of the shop four years ago, Jones, shaper of its purposes and ideals, has gone to the University of Michigan.

The old idea of a club where men might talk and exchange ideas, such as the Elizabethan taverns and Queen Anne coffee shops, has all but disappeared. Campus literary societies now belie their names by having become practice grounds for debating teams. It was in the mind of Howard Jones to furnish a place which would perform the original service of the Dialectic and Philanthropic societies.

It was when he was toying with this idea that the name which the present bookshop in the "Y" bears caught his fancy. "The Bull's Head!" Well grounded in campus vernacular, he conceived it as a gathering spot where students might find the proper atmosphere for their "bull sessions." To his mind it seemed a romantic name; one well suited to arouse the imagination and interest of the more intellectual students.

The initial "Bull's Head," which was not intended for profit, was located in Murphey hall. There was at that time no other book shop on the campus where students might ramble and browse, and perhaps occasionally buy a volume of prose or poetry. Receiving warm faculty and student support, the project prospered financially, and in the spring of 1931 was moved to the "Y."

Imposter Perpetrates Big Hoax On Unsuspecting Carolina Men

By Claiborn Carr

A group of University football idolaters and gridiron gloriolers, feel injured. Their vanity has been touched, their knowledge of their favorite sport has been minimized. They were the victims of one of the most successful hoaxes ever perpetrated on the Carolina campus. An unidentified person, masquerading as Bert Metzger the all-American guard at Notre Dame three years ago, completely hoodwinked a number of Carolina sportsmen and threw a bombshell into University athletic circles during the past week-end.

Stephen Douglas, University sophomore and inmate of 106 Ruffin, was the center of all the commotion. Steve was accosted Saturday by a fellow bearing a letter of introduction to him from his father's law office in Greensboro and signed by Steve's sister. The fellow refused to enter Douglas' room and waited outside until the latter had dressed. The two started to walk off together and then the mystery began.

Gives Famous Name

After swearing to keep his identity a secret Steve learned that the man was none other than Bert Metzger, the all-American guard of a few years ago who weighed only 157 pounds and stood five feet ten inches. Douglas could not believe it all, but he had the letter from his sister which read, "Here is a man you have heard a lot about and always wanted to meet. Show Chapel Hill to him, and I know you will want to show him to Chapel Hill."

The letter had no name of the bearer included but this was done to assure secrecy so the imposter declared. Steve was overjoyed at his good fortune and afforded an interesting listener and interviewer but found it hard to keep from disclosing the identity of his famous friend. First it was his roommate, Leo

Manley, who was brought into the deal. Manley, like Douglas, was convinced and the two made wonderful prey for the fake. Before long several others were in on the secret and Metzger was taken to the Grail dance where "Red" Hamlet was told and the eminent treasurer of the Order bowed and scraped; and in walked Metzger, free of charge.

Secret Creeps Out

Douglas was very popular Saturday night as he pictured an all-American as a particular friend of his and that he was sitting out the dances, not wanting to attract any possible attention. "Of course," he told Steve, "There are some here who would recognize me and then swamp me for autographs." Douglas brought his girl friends over to meet the phenomenon, and was even so kind as to arrange for a late date for the gentleman—no telling what appeal an all-American football star has on poor innocent Tar Heel girls.

Sunday morning the tales of old deeds were continued and a few others were told by Steve's boy friend. The same morning, Cabell Philpot, told the writer about something mysterious that had occurred Saturday night and that he was afraid he could not let the DAILY TAR HEEL in on the know.

Steve went to Philpot Sunday night to round up the guards and take them to a lecture in his room on the finer points of guard play from an all-American. Cabell was a little skeptical as to the veracity of Douglas and refused to take advantage of the wonderful opportunity. However, your correspondent, ever on alert, pictured the possibility of an interview with an all-American and rushed off to the wilds of Ruffin.

On the second floor of Ruffin in 206, a small gathering of football enthusiasts was eating

Delta Sigma Pi Will Be Host At Smoker

The Alpha Lambda Chapter of the Delta Sigma Pi international fraternity will conduct its first smoker of the year Friday night, October 28, at 121 W. Rosemary street. The principal speaker will be President Frank P. Graham.

The smoker, which will be held for a large number of the undergraduates of the Commerce school of the University, will begin at 8:00 p. m. Each year Delta Sigma Pi holds a series of smokers for the purpose of facilitating a closer relationship between the faculty and students.

REPRESENTATIVES OF STATE PRESS GROUPS TO MEET

Plans Will Be Made for Mid-
Winter Meeting of Newspaper Institute.

Plans for the next annual mid-winter Newspaper Institute will be made and dates set at a meeting here Saturday morning.

Members of the executive committee of the North Carolina Press Association and the University Committee on the Institute will be present.

Representatives from the press association will include John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh Times, who is president; R. E. Price, publisher of the Rutherfordton Sun, vice-president; Miss Beatrice Cobb, publisher of the Morganton News-Herald, secretary; Josh L. Horne, publisher of the Rocky Mount Telegram, past president; Roy Parker, publisher of the Hertford County Herald; W. C. Dowd, publisher of the Charlotte News.

University Representatives

Representatives from the University will include Russell M. Grumman, director of the University extension division; Robert W. Madry, director of the University news bureau; and O. J. Coffin, head of the department of journalism.

Seven Experimental Plays Will Be Given

Try-outs for casts in the experimental production of original plays written in the playwriting class have been arranged for tomorrow afternoon at 4:00 o'clock in the Playmaker theatre. There are seven one-act plays all offering opportunities for a number of actors. Those who failed to get a part in Uncle Tom's Cabin should try out for the new plays. They will be produced soon after the production of the play just mentioned. The plays are:

The Shadow For Davy, a frontier drama by Philip Milhouse; Old Ninety-Seven, a railroad tragedy by Wilbur Dorsett; Hell Bent For Honolulu, a college play by William Bonyun; Chauncy's Dress, a mystery play by Mary Hoffman Shepard; And They Lived Happily, a domestic comedy by Marion Tatum; Nothing Ever Happens, a tragic-comedy by Elmer Oettinger; and Four On A Heath, a fantasy by Foster Fitzsimmons.

Regular Co-ed Tea

Another of the series of weekly teas given by the co-eds of the University will take place this afternoon in the reception rooms of Spencer hall from 4:30 to 6:00 o'clock.

WEEK-END DANCES TO BE CONDUCTED BY GERMAN CLUB

Date for Annual Festivities Is Shifted to November 19 for Carolina-Duke Game.

Announcement was made yesterday of the plans of the forthcoming German club dance November 19 by the executive committee of that organization. The festivities will start with a tea dance Friday from 4:30 o'clock until 6:15, the series continuing Saturday morning from 10:00 a. m. until 1:00 p. m.

Following the Duke-Carolina football game there will be a dance from 9:30 until midnight. The selection of an orchestra has not been definitely made, nor has the arrangement of decoration of the Tin Can, in which all the dances will take place, been decided upon.

Dances Shifted

The dance was shifted back to the week-end of the 19th this year because of the fact that on Thanksgiving week-end many students will be in Charlottesville attending the Virginia-Carolina football game. As a result the earlier date is expected to attract the larger crowd, combined with a large delegation of alumni who will return to Chapel Hill for the Duke game.

A new innovation in connection with the German club dances this year will be the opportunity for a few freshmen to become members of the club. Fifty of the first freshmen to apply for membership will be considered and if the experiment proves successful the change will become permanent.

'Y' MEN TO GO TO RALEIGH TONIGHT

Deputation to Present Program
To Freshman Friendship
Council at State.

A dozen members of the various Y. M. C. A. cabinets will journey to Raleigh tonight to appear before the North Carolina State College Freshman Friendship Council at 8:00 o'clock P. M. This is the second deputation trip of the current scholastic year.

Those making the trip will be as follows: Jesse Parker, Mark Lynch, Russell Mickel, George Fountain, Jack Poole, Ed Martin, Locke Sloope, J. D. Winslow, L. L. Hutchinson, Bill Spradlin, Don Shoemaker, and Bill McKeel.

After presenting their program they will be the guests of the cabinets of the technical school at other gatherings.

Ed King, general secretary of the State college association, invited the team from the University to present their program at these meetings.

An important feature of the trip will be to attempt to work up a little good feeling between the State boys and the Carolina boys for the State-U. N. C. football game Saturday in Kenan stadium and the freshman game between the two institutions Friday.

Co-eds to Be Entertained

Mrs. M. H. Stacy, adviser to women, will be at home to all women students of the University tomorrow afternoon from 4:30 until 6:00 o'clock at 612A North street.
