DR. HICKMAN SAYS MEN NEED NEW IDEA OF RELIGION

Head of Duke School of Religion Speaks to Students on Moses And Burning Bush.

"If there ever was a time for God to reincarnate himself in men's hearts, it is now!" declared Dr. Franklin S. Hickman, dean of the Duke University school of religion, last Sunday in the University Methodist church.

Taking his text from Exodus III, verses one through five, the Methodist preacher told the oft-repeated tale of Moses and the burning bush. Citing the new spiritual conception that Moses received from this highly emotional experience, Dr. Hickman declared that the only way for God to reincarnate himself in human hearts is for men to see the burning bush and derive the same experience that Moses got from it.

Need Spiritual Rebirth

"We need a rebirth of spiritual vision, passion, and power in our education so that we may see things in the burning bush that we may not see under a microscope," Dr. Hickman said. Continuing: "Our boys and girls at the University are bringing home new theological ideas, just as Moses got his new conception of a greater social order from the burning bush."

Giving an explanation as to the origin of confused theological ideas in men, Dr. Hickman told his audience that the reason for many "modern thinkers" going astray is that their conception of the universe has changed much more rapidly than their corresponding idea of God.

LATE FIRE CHIEF EXPIRES AT HOME

J. W. Foister, for Twenty Years Head of Local Fire Department, Dies After Illness.

Chief J. W. Foister, aged 50, of the Chapel Hill fire department, died Sunday night at his residence on Pittsboro street, following three years of impaired health. His condition had become steadily worse after sustaining a broken hip in August.

For the past twenty-nine years Foister had acted as chief of the local fire department—faithful and conscientious in execution of his duty, respected and loved by the firemen under him and by his fellow-citizens. In addition to his service in this community, he was once president of the State fireman's association.

Foister was for three years prior to his death under treatment at the Duke hospital in Durham, and since attending a fireman's convention in August he had been confined to his bed.

Foister is survived by his wife; one son, James Foister; three brothers, Duke, Tom, and R. W. Foister; and two sisters, Mrs. H. D. Lee of Chapel Hill and Mrs. Bill Wiggins of Raleigh.

Funeral services will take place at the Chapel Hill cemetery this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock.

Resolved: That the United States should discard the policy exemplified by the Monroe Doctrine.

Resolved: That the United States cancel the war debts owed her by the European nations.

UNIVERSITY PRESS TO RELEASE BOOK ABOUT DEPRESSION

J. M. Williams' Volume Will Concern Itself With Causes and Cures for Unemployment.

The University of North Carolina Press has made preliminary announcements concerning a timely new volume about the depression and unemployment. This new book, the title of which has not yet been officially chosen, is by J. M. Williams, professor at Hobart College, Geneva, N. Y. It is a comprehensive discussion of the causes, cures, and remedies for unemployment.

The expressed purpose of the book is "to show the immediate need for social insurance, and the conditions necessary for its successful operation." In the discussion of these problems the author makes use of figures obtained by an investigation of the effects of the work of unemployment and welfare organizations in seven cities of upstate New York where conditions are better than anywhere else in the country.

Unaware of Serious Problems

He states that in the majority of communities, the citizens are not aware of the seriousness of their unemployment problems. In one community where the "solid" citizens expressed the opinion that "only po' white trash and 'niggers'" applied for relief, an investigation showed that one family out of ten was eating only now and then.

The author believes that while we are learning how to control our economic world, "we must insure ourselves against the ravages of unemployment and depression." While no civilized state is without laws to take care of the old, infirm, insane or feeble-minded, a large number of people are of the opinion that no public relief is necessary.

This book to be released by the University Press, "written as part of the record of these times," is an attempt to prove that legislation to enforce unemployment insurance is necessary.

Faculty Professors' Book Will Be Published Soon

Dr. J. W. Lasley and Dr. E. T. Browne are busy revising and correcting the proofs for their freshman mathematics book, Introductory Mathematics, which will soon be published by McGraw-Hill, book publishers. The book, which was first used last year by University freshmen, was then in a pamphlet form.

FIRST GREATER UNIVERSITY HEAD

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, yesterday was unanimously selected by the University board of trustees to head the Greater University. President Graham has been prominent in state and national educational circles since his graduation from this institution in 1909. His appointment will necessitate the choosing of another man to head this branch of the Greater University.

NEXT PLAYMAKER BILL CONSISTS OF SELECTED PLAYS

Four Original One-Act Productions Chosen From Saturday's Experimental Performance.

For their second presentation this season, the Carolina Playmakers offer a bill of four original one-act plays to be given December 8, 9, and 10.

These plays were chosen from the ten experimental performances given Saturday afternoon and night in the theatre, and selected by the Playmaker staff as the best productions of the playwriting classes.

Davy Crockett, a drama of the Southwest frontier, by John Philip Milhous; Stumbling in Dreams, a comedy of Tin Pan Alley, by George Brown of New York City; Creek Swamp Nigger, a negro tragedy by Harry W. Coble of Douglas, Georgia; and Four On a Heath, a fantasy by Foster Fitz-Simons of Atlanta are the four plays to be presented, and work on these dramas will start this week.

Try-outs for parts in the plays will take place this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock and tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre. There are about twenty-five parts to be cast and all who are interested are urged to come and try out.

MRS. WILLIS GIVES HUSBAND'S BOOKS TO LAW LIBRARY

Collection Also Contains Volumes Belonging to Late Judge Charles R. Thomas.

The law school announced yesterday that Mrs. George T. Willis of New Bern had presented her husband's library to the school as a memorial. Her husband was the late Judge George T. Willis of New Bern.

"Because my husband believed in the University and would want his books well cared for while they are giving wide service, I am presenting his library to the law school as a memorial to him and to Judge Charles Thomas, who originally owned a large number of these books." In this way Mrs. Willis presented to the University of North Carolina law school on October 31, 1932, the library belonging to her husband, Judge George Thomas Willis, who died early in September.

Contains N. C. Material

The gift of 757 volumes brings to the law library rare North Carolina material, usable United States reports and statutes and a number of legal texts new to the present law collection. The most valuable part of the memorial is the 200-volume set of North Carolina supreme court reports in the original edition, now procurable only in old private collections. The nucleus of the library—the North Carolina items—first belonged to Judge Charles R. Thomas of New Bern, who died in 1931. At his death the books were given to Judge Willis, who used them for a year before his death.

The lives of these two close friends so parallel each other as to be related at one time. Both graduated from the University, Judge Thomas receiving his A.B. degree in 1881, Judge Willis his LL.B. degree in 1912. Both were lawyers; both men were prominent in public affairs in their community and in their state; both became judges—the older man, a superior court judge; the younger, judge of the county recorder's court.

New Song to Be Published

The tune and melody of the new school song, written by Thornton Allen, has been submitted to the committee for consideration, but it probably will not be ready for weeks.

The song is to be called the Tar Heel Battle Song and sheet music will be put on sale immediately after its completion.

Board Denies Intention of Demoting Rank of Any Institution to Junior College.

TATUM BILL IS "RECEIVED"

Group Will Meet Before January To Consider Election of Vice-President for University.

Dr. Frank Porter Graham, head of the University, was yesterday elevated into the position of president of the Greater University of North Carolina by an unanimous vote of the board of trustees in its semi-annual meeting in Raleigh.

Dr. E. C. Brooks, for many years head of State College, and Dr. J. I. Foust, head of Woman's College, were elected vice-presidents of the Greater University. Each will have charge of the schools they head at present.

The selection of a vice-president who will head the division of the Greater University in Chapel Hill and of a comptroller to direct the business end of the consolidated institution was deferred to the executive committee. A committee was appointed to confer with the faculty here in regard to the selection of the third vice-president.

Tatum Petition Received

The board selected a special committee to consider the petition which created a great sensation last September when the document, presented to Governor O. Max Gardner by L. A. Tatum, retired Belmont textile manufacturer, charged the state supported schools with condoning radical teachings. The board adopted a resolution that it "receive" the Tatum petition and then

DR. ADAMS SPEAKS AT RED SPRINGS

Says Scott's Writings Influenced Past and Present Southern Life and Opinions.

Dr. Raymond Adams, of the University English department, delivered the Founder's Day address at Flora MacDonald College, Red Springs, Saturday, November 12. He spoke on the influence of Sir Walter Scott on southern life.

When Scott's work became widely known in the south, "the very plantation life, and the training of the younger generation on the plantations, shifted from the classical villa model to the feudal manor."

To Scott largely is due the fact that the southern woman was put on a pedestal, "thereby making them helpless, and creating the fiction that they must not soil their lily-white hands with work, nor their lily-white minds with thought, but must simper in society."

Scott's romanticism offered an escape from the drab facts of ante-bellum existence in the south, and a romantic pre-war south was created by writers who imitated Scott. The northern idea of the present-day south is no more erroneous than the southern idea of the pre-bellum south, and both can be attributed, almost directly, to Scott's influence.
