

TWO DRAMAS TO BE PRESENTED BY JITNEY PLAYERS

Drama Company Comes Here For Annual Visit Under Auspices of Playmakers.

The Jitney Players who are to appear here Wednesday, November 30 at 4:00 and 8:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre under the auspices of the Carolina Playmakers will present two well-known dramas. For the matinee, Tom Robertson's romantic, mid-victorian comedy, Caste will be given, and for the night performance the Jitney Players will present George Bernard Shaw's romantic satire, Arms and The Man.

The Jitney Players are the result of the desire of two people, Alice Keating Cheney and her husband, Bushnell Cheney, the founders, to carry the drama to the people, and make it live. To do this they had to assemble a company of professionals in order to present to the public their repertoire of plays in the real New York manner. Ten years ago the company was begun and today, with Mrs. Cheney its leading lady and head of the company, the Jitney Players have become a famous professional touring company.

Mrs. Cheney, who has studied in this country and abroad, has played in support of both John and Lionel Barrymore, and was at one time under the management of The Theatre Guild. She has the leads of Esther in Caste, and Raina in Arms and The Man. Playing opposite Mrs. Cheney is Douglas Rowland who played a season in support of Branche Yurka, supreme interpreter of Ibsen, and has appeared for the last three seasons

PLAYMAKERS TO POSTPONE PLANS FOR USUAL TOUR

Financial Conditions Will Not Permit Group to Take November Trip.

Professor F. H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, explained in an interview this week, why the Playmakers found it necessary to give up plans for their annual November tour.

"The present financial conditions of the Carolina Playmakers will not permit them to make tours this year as in former years without sufficient guarantees to meet the cost of touring, travelling expenses, hotels, and advertising.

"We have had many invitations from various cities and towns in North Carolina and in other states—just this morning we had one from the head of a progressive school at Croton-on-Hudson, in New York, and a few days ago, one from the University of Chattanooga, but we cannot resume our touring at the present time, as in former years, because we can not assume the financial risk involved.

"We are hoping, however, to make a number of short week-end trips this year to North Carolina towns not far away from Chapel Hill, and we are hoping to form a small company with simple stage settings and new plays for such touring."

COLLINS SPEAKS BEFORE DURHAM MONARCH CLUB

Coach Collins was the principal speaker at the weekly meeting of the Monarch club at the Washington-Duke hotel yesterday.

Mrs. E. O. Dameron and Mrs. J. S. Babb, representatives of the recently organized Monarch auxiliary, told of the work of the new organization.

The Monarch club is preparing to dispatch its second set of letters to all brother clubs in the east inviting the members to the convention that will be held in Durham sometime in June, 1933.

The first set was mailed November 1 representing the Durham club, and the second set, which will be mailed December 1, will represent Durham's mayor, D. W. Sorrell. Other letters from the chamber of commerce and civic organizations will follow a month apart.

RED CROSS DRIVE NOW AT MIDPOINT

Annual Soliciting for Members of Relief Organization Finds Goal Far Removed.

The goal for this year's Red Cross drive has been set at 750 members, which it is hoped will net the local chapter over $1,000. So far, the membership has passed the 350 mark, netting approximately $400. It is hoped this mark will have passed 750 when the curtain falls on the 1932 drive next Wednesday.

Colonel Pratt wants it clearly understood that the local chapter stands ready and willing to aid the students of the University as well as the people of this community. It is the object of this chapter to make it possible for every man, woman, and child to make a contribution, no matter how small it may be.

The call for clothes, wood, food, and other articles has been issued to those who are unable to make monetary contributions. For those who, heretofore, have been unable to get in touch with a Red Cross worker, a receiving desk has been placed in the post office.

FOOTBALL TALKS FORM ATTRACTION OF JUNIOR EVENT

Wade and Collins Present Different Phases of Athletics in Respect to Colleges.

Short but illuminating talks on football featured the first smoker this year of the class of 1934, conducted Thursday night in Swain hall. Coach Wallace Wade of Duke University and Coach Charles "Chuck" Collins of the University were the featured speakers. Tasty refreshments and the music of Jack Wardlaw's orchestra rounded out the program.

Wade spoke of the connection of athletics to education, defining education and pointing out that football and other lines of athletic endeavor made for the better educated man.

Collins outlined the systems employed by state colleges and universities, pointing out that the team with the best blockers usually was victorious.

Director of athletics, Bob Fetzer, introduced the speakers, and was in turn introduced by "Red" Boyle, president of the junior class.

Dean Paulsen, a rabid University football supporter, made a short extemporaneous talk.

Duke And Carolina Student Bodies Urged To Maintain Friendly Spirit

Presidents of Rival Student Bodies Seek to Cement Friendship And Cooperation Between Two Institutions by Having Expressions of Good-Will Printed in Papers.

The efforts of Carolina and Duke student body leaders to cement a closer feeling of friendliness and cooperation between the two universities are in full evidence this week-end when the grid teams of the two institutions have their annual game in Kenan stadium this afternoon.

The Duke-Carolina friendship trophy, an outgrowth of the first official attempt for friendlier sentiment between the universities, will be awarded to the winning team as a token of goodwill from the losers. The presidents of the student bodies have exchanged messages urging that each student body observe the best sportsmanship and friendliness.

Be Cordial to Guests

In addition, students of the University, as host to the Duke student body, are planning to extend every courtesy to their visitors.

In this issue of THE DAILY TAR HEEL, Wendell Horne, president of the Duke men's association, expresses good-will to the University while in a similar article to appear in the Duke Chronicle Haywood Weeks, president of the student council here, greets Duke students.

Weeks' greeting to Duke Weeks' statement is as follows:

"On behalf of the student body of the University of North Carolina I extend a most cordial welcome to the students, faculty, and administration of your University to visit our campus to see the Duke-Carolina football game Saturday.

"The success of the game itself will mean much to both of us. But the friendly conduct and sportsmanship which will be shown by our student bodies will transcend the football stadium and will add to the names of our two universities, already leaders in education in the south and prominent in the nation as well.

"The game will prove not only to the state but likewise to the entire south that two great universities, closely situated, can come together on the playing field in a spirit of intense friendly rivalry and yet cheer their opponents. It will show that our student bodies know that in the creed of true sportsmanship there is something greater and finer than victory. And most of all it will for all time purge our names from any future accusations that might be made of our conduct toward each other.

"I welcome the occasion for the mutual good that our schools will derive from it. It will permanently cement the closest feeling of friendliness and cooperation between our universities and student bodies."

Friendship Trophy

The friendship trophy is an annual award given the victorious team as a token of goodwill. The idea of this award was conceived in the fall of 1930 by John Lang, University student who was at that time president of the North Carolina Student Federation.

The Student Federation itself was the outgrowth of a good-will meeting of representatives of the two schools in the winter quarter of 1930. At this meeting suggestions for some sort of a trophy were advanced. Lang was supported in this move by Bill Murray, star football player of Duke.

The senior classes of 1931 at Duke and at Carolina gave the trophy, the two groups sharing the expense. The trophy is of silver, mounted on a black base of oval shape. The goal posts and a cross-bar, in the same proportions as the goal post of the playing field, form the silver part. Dates and names of the winning team are engraved on the trophy each year. Duke has had the trophy for the past two years when the team captains tossed the coin for its possession. On both occasions the Blue Devil leader won.

Head Of Duke Student Body Speaks

This afternoon is an important event in the history of the University of North Carolina and Duke University. For two years our institutions have fought hard nothing-to-nothing ties in football. . . .

Every Duke student takes much pride in the friendly rivalry that exists between Carolina and Duke. I believe any school would be glad to have such a spirit of rivalry in its institution as we have. One must want a victory over a team to really get a kick out of winning the game. Our student body is anxious for such a spirited rivalry to continue to be a cherished tradition.

I have observed very closely the friendly relations between Carolina and Duke the last few years. To better explain what I mean, I shall give an example of one of my observations.

Last year when Carolina and Duke went to Atlanta for the Southern Conference basketball tournament, one would have thought they were brother institutions. Both teams went down on the same train, stayed at the same hotel, and pulled for each other in every game. Sometimes around the hotel, a stranger could hardly have known whether Captain Alexander was captain of Carolina or Duke; the same thing was true of Captain Shaw of Duke. Just this sort of relationship is what we are proud to have a share in.

You know that we are coming over to Chapel Hill hoping to win that football game; you are hoping the same thing for yourselves. May the best team win!

Whether we win or lose we are going to be good sports—a good loser, if need be, or a good winner.

WENDELL HORNE,
President Duke Student Body.

New Geology Head

Dr. William F. Prouty, professor of stratigraphical geology at the University, has been appointed head of the geology department succeeding Dr. Collier Cobb, who was head of the division for forty years.

PROFESSORS FACE TWENTY PER CENT SALARY DECREASE

University Is Threatened With $113,000 Deficit; Forced to Take Drastic Action.

University faculty members and other University employees are faced with the prospect of another salary cut which is expected to amount to twenty-two per cent for the year. Since all other expenditures have been pared to the bone, reduced salaries were seen as the only way in which the estimated $113,000 deficit of the University might be met.

From the beginning of last year a ten per cent salary cut was in effect, and during the months of April, May and June an additional twenty per cent reduction was deemed necessary. This year also began with a ten per cent cut, but the second cut has of necessity to go into effect earlier than last year.

Lower Income Responsible

The major reason for subjecting salaries to this additional cut has been the reduced income which the University has realized from other sources than the state appropriation and endowments. Enrollment has dropped off in number by about 200 students and there is a corresponding decrease in tuition and free money. Less revenue is being obtained from the dormitories and from Swain hall since room rent and board have been materially reduced.

No definite decision has been reached in regard to the time that this cut will go into effect. It has been rumored that November 1 would be the date, but President Graham is consulting the faculty members as to the time of application. The impending cut may be spread over

FRESHMEN ELECT FRANK ROGERS AS CLASS PRESIDENT

Webb Is Chosen Vice-President; Bost, Treasurer; Sam Clark, Secretary, Unopposed.

University freshmen received their induction into campus politics when they went to the polls yesterday and chose their officers for the coming year. Frank Rogers of Rome, Ga., was elected president of the class.

Though the vote was not close in any case, the contest was hot around the polls in front of Graham Memorial, with even upperclassmen joining in the enthusiastic campaign talks for the various candidates. Printed slips bearing the names of the candidates were displayed while several huge placards were in evidence at the front of the building.

Rogers received a total of 342 votes to sweep into the class presidency while David McIlhenny, the nearest candidate received 167. Van Webb of Raleigh was elected vice-president, defeating Bill Moore by a large total. In the third contest John Bost of Raleigh received 316 votes, a 130 lead over Mortimer Ellisburg.

The fourth office went to Sam Clark of Tarboro who was declared elected November 10 when his nomination was unopposed. More than 500 ballots were cast in the election.
