

Duke And Carolina Meet In Kenan Stadium With Big Five Title At Stake

Both Teams Anxious to End Deadlock Caused by Ties Of Last Two Years.

INJURIES HAMPER TEAMS

Nick Porreca Definitely Out for Duke; Tom White Lost to Carolina Squad.

PROBABLE LINEUPS

Duke	Carolina
Rossiter	Walker
Crawford	Hodges
Andrews	Barclay
Dunlap	Underwood
Schock	Kahn
Phipps	Smith
James	Brandt
Mason (C)	Burnett
Laney	Phipps
Ershler	Daniel

Carolina-Duke

A more perfect setting for this classic could not be found. The Tar Heels have been hitting on all-eight since the midway point in the schedule, while the Blue Devils will be all the more dangerous since last week's defeat by State. A champion will arise from today's game. Local pride compels us. One vote for Carolina. In case of rain, a scoreless tie.

Auburn-Georgia

This is where the Plainsmen meet their Waterloo. Auburn hasn't a championship schedule nor a championship team, and with all their stars on the hospital list, it seems improbable that they will get by Georgia today. We suspect that the Bulldog will be the lone survivor on the Plains this evening.

Florida-Georgia Tech

How the 'Gators have stood up under continued beatings is a miracle. They're practically punch drunk and the Engineers were never known to pull their punches.

Maryland-W. & L.

The Generals are in the doldrums. Nuff said. One vote for Maryland.

Tulane-Sewanee

This concludes the southern selections and also concludes Sewanee's hopes for winning a conference game this season. Tulane by a landslide.

Yale-Harvard

This classic needs the good old days to again center the spotlight upon the Yale Bowl, but there's still plenty of color and thrill left for the fans. Neither team has made an impressive record, so take your pick. We'll string along with Johnny Harvard.

Columbia-Syracuse

The Orange used to mop up the Yankee Stadium with the Lions. Today, Columbia should do a little housecleaning on their own account.

Michigan-Minnesota

The Gophers are the only ones who have a chance to stop Michigan's bid for the Big Ten title, but I think that the Maize has just a bit too much power and deception for Coach Bierman's squad. Manders or no Manders, one big vote for Michigan.

CAROLINA TO GREET PROMINENT VISITORS

Several distinguished visitors will be in the stands at Kenan stadium today when the annual Duke-Carolina football classic takes place.

President and Mrs. W. P. Few of Duke University with Vice-President and Mrs. R. L. Flowers, and several other Duke officials will occupy seats in the guest box.

Cornelius McGillicuddy, better known as Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Mrs. Mack will accompany their son, a student at Duke, to the game. In this party, there will also be Ira Thomas, former Athletic catcher and now Connie's chief scout, with Mrs. Thomas and Coach Jack Coombs, noted Athletic pitcher who directs the destinies of Duke baseball teams and who was Thomas' battery-mate in many an important game a score of years ago.

Leads Devils Against Carolina Today

Lowell Mason captains the Duke team which invades Kenan stadium this afternoon in an effort to crush the Tar Heels and end the two-year deadlock. Mason has been the sparkplug of the Blue Devils all season and will bear watching today.

BOXING MATERIAL FOR THIS SEASON SHOWS PROMISE

Old Mittmen and Good Frosh Aspirants Turn Out Fast Practice Bouts.

In this week's boxing activities at the Tin Can, matters took on a cheerful aspect for a good season as several veterans threw gloves with their old ability and many newcomers gave two-fisted notice of future recognition.

Sophomores led the way with Norm Quarles, Lee Berke, Sam Gidinansky, Frank McIntosh, and Pete Ivey bidding for varsity places. All these boys had impressive records last year and are indicating by their work this early in the season that they will be equally formidable this winter.

Many in Good Shape

Quarles, the flashy blonde scrapper who was undefeated as a freshman, is in perfect condition and was punching accurately and hard in his exhibitions this week. Norm figured in what was perhaps the boxing highlight of the week when he fought one hurricane round against Marty Levinson. It was interesting to see people come running from all directions in the Tin Can and crowd ten deep at the ringside. The two minutes were over all too quickly for the spectators, and at the end there was little to choose between the two.

Cliff Glover, who fought but once last year and put Dave Stoop, 115-pound intercollegiate champion on the floor, only to have Stoop get up and win, looked good. So did Pete Ivey, who did some defensive work against Marty Levinson Tuesday afternoon.

Frosh Shows Promise

A boy named Flaherty appears to have plenty of class in the frosh lightweight division. Keeping an educated left hand in his partners' faces most of the time, he was pretty hard to hit. Max Frucht, another freshman, looks rugged and should improve with work.

Possibly, as the European press asserts, America is slipping. But it isn't slipping any more to Europe.

SEVEN COLLEGES POST ENTRIES IN CONFERENCE MEET

Ninth Annual Contest Will Be Started From Stadium This Morning.

Dixie's choice cross-country runners clash this morning at 11:15 o'clock on Emerson field in the ninth annual Southern Conference cross-country run. Entries have been received from Carolina, Duke, Tennessee, Florida, Washington and Lee, Ole Miss, and V. M. I.

Duke, V. M. I., and Tennessee are the reigning favorites to cop the contest at present, but a rejuvenated Carolina club is going to be mighty hard to beat. Duke holds straight victories over Davidson, St. Johns, and Carolina, and consequently Bob Tuttle's Devils are given a slight edge even over the Vol and Cadet harriers.

History of Event

Carolina runners are perhaps the heirs to the greatest cross-country tradition in the nation. In the past six years Carolina has won a half score championships in the cross-country department.

In 1925 the Heels were state champs. Repeating in 1926, they added the Southern Conference crown to their state laurels. 1927 saw another powerful Tar Heel club clinch both championships once more. The next year witnessed the first defeat in a dual meet suffered by a Carolina team up to that time. Duke's potent Devils of that year wrecked havoc in Tar Heel

DUKE RUNNERS TO MEET FRESHMEN

Return Engagement With Blue Imps Will Furnish Second Event for Tar Babies.

Carolina freshmen cross-country clash with Duke University Blue Imp harriers this morning in Emerson field at 11:00 o'clock. This is the second meeting of the year for the two teams.

Although Bob Tuttle's Blue Imps sustained a decisive 23-34 whipping from the local yearlings last Saturday, the Durham club is reported to be in a better condition than ever for the clash.

Among Carolina men who have shown up well are Carraway, McPhail, Conte, Umstead, Keeney, Garrison, Sullivan, Neal, Lynch, and Mark. The first eight named, however, appear to be the most likely starters judging by their creditable showing against Duke last Saturday.

This year's freshman club has almost entirely been built around lads who finished well up toward the front in the Cake Race. The run will be over a three-mile course.

Tennis Team Has Hard Work-Out For Virginia

The varsity tennis squad is going through stiff practices daily in preparation for the Thanksgiving match with the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. Several challenge matches are being played daily.

The rankings of the leaders at the present are: number one, Wilmer Hines; number two, Lenoir Wright; number three, Harvey Harris; and number four, Dave Morgan. Others showing promise are Willis, Minor, Dillard, and Levitan.

In two of the better challenge matches yesterday Ricky Willis defeated Harris 6-2, 3-6, 7-5; and Dillard beat Levitan 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. These were real thrillers, as the scores indicate.

WITH the stage all set for a terrific battle, the Duke and Carolina elevens will square off in Kenan stadium this afternoon at 2:00 o'clock in a fight to the end.

Both teams are determined to break the scoreless deadlocks of the past two years and the game today will be full of excitement with plenty of flashy football being shown by both clubs. Carolina seems to have found itself and will be trying to win its fourth straight victory; Duke, stunned momentarily by its upset loss to State last week, will be fighting harder than ever to redeem itself. Both teams will be striving to annex the Big Five crown which hinges on this setto.

Both Teams Crippled

Both squads are suffering from injuries and may have their stars on the sidelines today. Nick Porreca, giant sophomore tackle, and Carl Schock, varsity guard, are the Duke ailments. Both these men were hurt in the State fray and Porreca seems out of today's battle definitely. His place will be filled by Roy Phipps, another sophomore. Schock will be ready to go at the starting whistle.

The Tar Heels are crippled this year as they were last when McIver, star guard, was unable to play, and Underwood, Slusser, and Ferebee were forced out of the game in the early minutes. This year Tom White will hardly get a chance to play. His leg still troubles him and Coach Collins is not sure White will go in. Barclay and McIver are reported in shape but the Carolina coach is not sure how long these men can play, though Barclay will start at guard.

The teams have worked behind closed doors all this week and the fireworks are set for today's tussle. The combatants ended work with light workouts yesterday and rested for the game this morning.

CAMERAMEN WILL MAKE MOVIE OF TODAY'S GAME

Anticipating a gridiron thriller when the Tar Heels battle the Blue Devils from Duke this afternoon, a moving picture corporation will have cameramen on hand to record any thrilling caperings that might take place at Kenan stadium in order that the public may see the bits of choice action on the silver sheet.

Arrangements have been completed for the use of several hundred feet of film to perpetuate the efforts of the Duke and Carolina football warriors.
