

ILLUSTRATOR TO GIVE TALK HERE THURSDAY NIGHT

Oakley to Appear in Hill Music
Hall Through Generosity
Of Mrs. Arrington.

Thornton Oakley, noted illustrator and lecturer, will present an illustrated lecture in the Hill music auditorium Thursday evening, December 1, at 8:30 o'clock. His subject will be "Illustration" and he will demonstrate with personal drawings on an easel various points as he is speaking.

Usually there would be a charge for admission to this lecture, but through the general provision of Mrs. Katherine Pendleton Arrington of Warrenton, N. C., who has been active for several years in the work of the state art society of North Carolina, the American Federation of Arts is sending this lecturer to the University free of charge.

Oakley is in North Carolina on a lecture tour under the auspices of the state art society of North Carolina and the American Federation of Arts. He is to speak at the annual meeting of the society in the Sir Walter hotel in Raleigh tomorrow evening.

Has Received Many Awards

He has received many awards and has held numerous positions in art organizations, and has been special lecturer at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City and at Pennsylvania Museum school of Industrial Art; and has been an instructor at the latter institution.

Professor Nelson O. Kennedy will play several selections on the organ before and after the lecture.

JITNEY PLAYERS WILL GIVE SHAW PLAY TOMORROW

"Arms and the Man," Satiric
Comedy by English Playwright, to Be Given.

Arms and the Man, George Bernard Shaw's satiric comedy about militarism, will be presented by the Jitney Players, famous professional touring company, under the auspices of the Playmakers tomorrow night, at 8:30 o'clock in the Playmakers theatre. This "pleasant play" was one of the first of a series written by Shaw when there was a good deal of talk about the "new drama" that ended in establishing the "new theatre."

Critics say that nowhere in the whole of Shaw is his satire more keen, his humor more piercing or his wit with such an edge as in this play. Shaw, being a law unto himself, ridicules and satirizes human beings, their frailties and foibles but in such a way that the audience really enjoys the evening.

The Jitney Players have assembled a strong company to support Alice Cheney and Douglas Rowland in the leading roles of Rains Petkoff and Captain Bluntschli. John Maroney will play the role of Major Petkoff, Barbara Benedict that of Catherine Petkoff, Ellen Love that of Louka, Charles Kradoska that of Sergius and Harrison Dowd that of Nicola with Lee Crowe as a Russian Officer.

The matinee performance Wednesday will be Tom Robertson's romantic, mid-victorian comedy, Caste.

Wager Will Speak Over Radio Hookup

Dr. Paul W. Wager, assistant professor of rural social economics, will speak over a nationwide hook up through WJZ in New York tonight from 8:00 to 8:30, on "Redistributing Functions of State and Local Government."

Making addresses on this same subject will be Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina and former Governor Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia.

ENGINEERS VOTE TO PUBLISH OWN NEWS MAGAZINE

George Gorham and Noel Zelly
Elected Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager.

At a meeting of the entire student body of the school of engineering, the engineers decided unanimously to assess themselves to assure financial backing for the newly formed magazine of the engineering school. The magazine will be called the Carolina Engineer. It will contain articles and essays submitted by the students themselves as well as other material.

Final plans for the publication of the magazine have not been worked out, Fisher Black, who was chairman of the meeting last week said yesterday. The fee which the student will be assessed, expected to be approximately thirty cents each, has not yet been determined nor has the date of the initial publication been set. There will be two issues for the remainder of this year and probably four issues per year hereafter.

Magazine Heads Elected

George Gorham was elected editor-in-chief while H. Noel Zelly was chosen business manager. Four associate editors will be elected later, one from each engineering society. The business manager will select his assistants from those who volunteer for the positions.

The officials of the magazine hope to be able to join a publications union of college engineering magazines. Such an arrangement would benefit the Carolina Engineer in that it would derive national advertising which it is hoped will make the paper self-supporting.

The Carolina Engineer is not a new magazine on the campus but is a revival of an engineering magazine published here in mimeograph form a number of years ago.

Staff Meetings

Special meetings of the editorial writers, city editors, and reporters have been called for this afternoon in Graham Memorial building. All members of these staffs will be expected to attend unless previously excused.

The editorial board will meet at 2:30, the city editors at 3:00, and the reporters, sports staff included, at 3:30.

Loan Fund Established

The Xi chapter of the Rho Chi honorary pharmaceutical fraternity has established a loan fund to be known as the Rho Chi loan fund.

This fund is open only to graduate and undergraduate students of the pharmacy school, and it is hoped that it will be increased yearly by contributions.

Roosevelt Confronts Gigantic Task In Selection Of Cabinet

With Nearly Six Hundred Eligible Aspirants for Cabinet Offices,
President-Elect Faces Job of Picking Ten Best; Tar Heel
Presents List of Thirty Democrats for Offices.

(By Don Shoemaker)

The all-important task of selecting those ten men best fitted to partake in the executive destiny of the administration will be a gruelling one to president-elect Franklin Delano Roosevelt, when the choice is made a few weeks hence. Top wave on the crest of Democracy's clean sweep of 1932, Roosevelt, as both the leader of his party and the nation, will be hounded on every side by tens of dozens of eligible cabinet officers, yet from all this number he must select but ten. A half-score from a field of nearly six hundred!

For there are actually that many governors, ex-governors, partisan publishers, national committeemen, congress members and local party whips who seem eligible to the leaders in their respective states. Of course this number includes some three hundred and fifty Democrats in the next Congress, all of whom, the political prophets say, are good cabinet material.

In selecting his cabinet a prospective president has an ample range of choice. He may select some of his officers from among the defeated group of nominees at his party convention. He may choose several for his cabinet from the new Congress. He may also put men into his cabinet who have never figured in a previous state or national legislature or who have but little political prominence in their respective territories. In the latter case, men skilled in the affairs of state, legal rights, or bankers and publishers fill the berths in this field. Oftimes national committee chairmen and personal political lieutenants of the new president come in for cabinet honors. In all cases, however, the men must be competent and of sufficient prominence to be approved by the senate. Except in rare instances does this highest branch of the national legislature refuse the president's submission.

The president's most judicious choices must be for the three highest positions of Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, and Attorney-General. These three are largely responsible for the success of his administration. The Secretary of State must be one who is sufficiently versed in international affairs, for it is he who practically designates the foreign policy of the administration. This is perhaps the prize plum. Until recent years, the Secretary of State portfolio was considered as the next step to the presidency. James Madison, James Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Martin VanBuren and James Buchanan relinquished this post to become chief executive. The presidential choice here must be considered.

For Secretary of Treasury the president must select a man whose experience in finance and the affairs of state equips him to administer to the national exchequer in such an efficient manner as to insure the financial stability of the administration.

STUDENTS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY EVENING

Miss Anna Cowles in Duke Hospital
Recovering From Injuries; Four Others Receive Treatment.

Driving over the Greensboro road about 8:00 o'clock Sunday evening to meet a train a group of students saw coming at them a swerving car traveling at a high rate of speed. Instead of turning to the right side of the road the car headed directly for them, smashing into their car at about forty miles an hour. In the one car, driven apparently by drunken negroes, it was rumored that two of the occupants were killed. In the car from Chapel Hill the severest injuries were sustained by Miss Anna Cowles, a freshman co-ed at the University, who is now at the Duke hospital in Durham.

John Cowles, father of Miss Cowles and a graduate student here, was also injured and was treated at the University infirmary shortly after the accident. Miss Porter Cowles, a sister of the above Miss Cowles and a senior co-ed here, Miss Betty Bolton, also a senior co-ed, and Winant Wildey, a junior, who were riding in the back seat when the accident occurred escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Senior Comprehensives

The senior comprehensive examinations for the fall quarter have been scheduled for December 3. All seniors have been requested to arrange conferences with the heads of the departments they are majoring in, if they have not done so already.

Albright Will Attend College Union Meeting

Mayne Albright, manager of Graham Memorial, left yesterday for a week to attend the congress of the American Association of College Unions in Rochester, N. Y. Graham Memorial Union became a member of this association last year when Manager Noah Goodridge attended Union. Todd Union at the University of Rochester is the host to the Union Directors this year.

NEWSPAPER BODY TO HAVE MEETING HERE IN JANUARY

Prominent Speakers Invited to Attend Ninth Annual Newspaper Institute.

The dates for the ninth annual Newspaper Institute, which will be conducted here under the auspices of the North Carolina Press Association and the University of North Carolina, have been set for January 18, 19, and 20, instead of 11, 12, 13, as originally announced.

The change was made to suit the convenience of governor-elect J. C. B. Ehringhaus, who is to address the opening session, Wednesday night, January 18. President Frank Graham of the University will give the address of welcome and John A. Park, President of the North Carolina Press Association, will make the response. At the opening session there will also be a brief program by the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, with Lamar Stringfield conducting.

Program for Thursday

The program for the morning session of the second day, Thursday, will include addresses by Karl Bickell, general manager of the United Press, and Dr. Albert S. Keister, professor applied economics in the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. Bickell is expected to discuss some general phases of the newspaper situation and Dr. Keister will discuss new sources and distribution of revenue. From 2:00 until 4:30 o'clock, Thursday afternoon the weeklies and dailies will conduct separate group meetings for general discussion.

After that the editors will go to Duke University, which is again cooperating in the program. There will be an organ recital and carillon concert Thursday afternoon, a dinner in the Duke Union, and a meeting that night.

President W. P. Few will welcome the visitors to Duke. Louis I. Jaffe, editor of the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot and Dr. Franklin Hickman of the Duke school of religion, have been invited to take part in the program. The Duke orchestra and glee club, will provide entertainment.

Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, is among the speakers invited to address the closing session Friday morning. Lee B. Weathers of the Shelby Star will lead a discussion on "The Audit," and R. E. Price of the Rutherfordton Sun will lead a discussion on "The Advertising Representative."

Feature Board Meets

There will be an important meeting of the feature board this afternoon at 2:00 in the offices of the DAILY TAR HEEL. All men who have been trying out for this board are requested to attend.

GEORGE COFFMAN CHOSEN HEAD OF LANGUAGE GROUP

University Professor Is Elected
President of South Atlantic
Language Association.

Five members of the faculty of the University attended the fifth annual meeting of the South Atlantic modern language association at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel in Atlanta, Georgia, November 25 and 26.

Three University men were elected officers of the association for the coming year. Dr. George R. Coffman, head of the University English department, was elected president of the association; Dr. A. P. Hudson, head of freshman English here, was elected chairman of the English section, and Dr. U. T. Holmes, of the romance language department, was named chairman of the French section.

University Speakers

Dr. Harry K. Russell, of the University English department, spoke on "Elizabethan Dramatic Poetry in the Light of Natural and Moral Philosophy"; Dr. A. P. Hudson discussed "The Bell Witch of Tennessee and Mississippi"; Dr. Holmes spoke of "The Doctrine of Gian-Battista Marini"; and Dr. Meno Spann, of the German department, spoke on "Problems in Teaching German Literature."

Dr. Joseph Quincey Adams, director of research of the new Folger Shakespeare library in Washington, made two addresses, one on the new library, which contains the finest collection of Shakespeariana in the world; and one on "Shorthand in Pirating King Lear."

LODGES HERE ARE RATED SEVENTH IN NATIONAL SURVEY

First Time Carolina Has Fallen
Below Fifth in Fraternity
Scholarship Standings.

The University fraternity scholarship ranking, in comparison with that of the 158 outstanding colleges and universities throughout the country, is seventh from the top, according to Irvin Boyle and Alec Webb, representatives to the national interfraternity conference.

These statistics are compiled by making a comparison of the averages of fraternity men with those of the undergraduate men students of the entire student body. In fifty-seven of the 158 institutions the fraternity average was below that of the other students, but as a whole the averages are better this year than in former reports.

The University has consistently had a high average and this is the first year it has ranked lower than fifth. The highest rating ever achieved was in 1928 when it ranked third.

The six schools which rank higher than the University this year are Cincinnati University, Monmouth College, Oregon State College, University of Texas, University of Mississippi, and Ohio State University.

Buccaneer Meetings

There will be a meeting of the business staff of the Buccaneer tonight at 7:00 o'clock. A meeting of the editorial and art staffs is scheduled for 8:00 o'clock.
