

SCHOOLS' GROUP CLOSES SESSIONS

Important North Carolina Educators Present at New Orleans Meeting.

The meeting of the annual convention of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools ended this week in New Orleans. Dr. Joseph Roemer of Peabody College was president of the association this year.

North Carolina commissioners for the association are: for secondary schools, Dean N. W. Walker of the University school of education; Dr. J. Henry Highsmith, state director of public school supervision; Dean Holland Holton of the school of education, Duke University; L. R. Johnston, principal of the High Point high school; and Headmaster Wright of the Oak Ridge military institute; for colleges, President W. P. Few, Duke University; T. J. Wilson, Jr., registrar of the University; and K. R. Curtis, superintendent of the Wilson schools.

Have Annual Duties

The purpose of the association is to set standards for colleges and secondary schools and to check accredited institutions annually. North Carolina has approximately ninety secondary schools on the accredited list.

Several years ago the association adopted a resolution requiring all secondary schools on the accredited list to provide a full-time librarian in each school. The librarian is required to meet certain certificate requirements. This regulation goes into effect next year.

MORNING SESSION ENDS SCOUT SEMINAR MEETING

North Carolina Boy Scout executive seminar will close its three-day session here, with a luncheon today. Last night executives, who had not been previously made members of the Alpha Phi Omega national scouting fraternity, were initiated into the organization as honorary members.

The social feature of the seminar was a banquet last evening at which members of the local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega were guests of the executives.

The speakers on the today's program will be Dr. English Bagby and R. B. Vance.

HOLDER OF CHARLOTTE FACES ODD SITUATION

It won't be with a dry eye that Mac Holder, Charlotte high school halfback, takes the field today against the Durham high gridsters in the class "A" title encounter.

Mac was the Durham high school field general last year who wrought havoc in the eastern class "A" conference; and when the Bulldog signal barker met Charlotte in the contest of last year for state laurels, he broke away in the final quarter on his 40-yard stripe and stepped away for a touchdown. Holder's marker made the final score 13-6, thus beating his teammates this year.

His alleged unpopularity with his former subjects must be very largely a myth, as the government in Madrid has kindly relieved Alfonso of all his stocks and bonds.—Detroit News.

Co-eds Postpone Second Battle Between Floors

Injuries Cause Postponement of Fray Which Will Be Played This Morning.

The second of the famed "battles between the floors," Spencer hall basketball contests, was postponed yesterday when the hard-hitting co-ed contingent from the third floor had failed to recover sufficiently after its victory over the second floor Thursday.

The third floor girls were scheduled to play the fourth floor team yesterday but the squad had suffered minor injuries in the game Thursday which would handicap their speedy game.

According to advices received late last night, the two teams will line up on the co-ed athletic court at 10:30 this morning for the contest.

The fourth floor contingent is in prime shape and are all ready for the fray, which will determine the championship of Spencer hall. Their sisters below, confident of their power as shown in swamping the second-floor crew, expect to experience no difficulty in the game today.

Percy Grainger Says Individual Activity Is Increasing in Music

(Continued from first page) sicians. My compositions are written so they can be played by music lovers, whether they are amateurs or professionals. I have tried to make them as inclusive and not as exclusive as possible. We want to know what both the inner world and outer world are doing. If either is ignored, music in life becomes lop-sided."

Praises Local Work

Grainger was delighted to see Lamar Stringfield's work in the Chapel Hill program. He expressed the opinion that all concert programs should contain works which are the results of local genius. Stringfield's compositions, he stated, had not been written on the spot, but were actually the outcome of local feelings and traditions. He believes that these two things should always be kept in mind: local feeling and inspiration balanced against cosmopolitan culture and experience.

Himself closely connected with the academic progress of music by his association with the music department of New York University, he had warm praise for the advances that the schools are making. "The high schools, and colleges are definitely contributing in the south to the manifest awakening of popular interest in music. "He also commented on the increased activity of professional and semi-professional groups as an important contribution to the movement.

Composer, conductor, and artist, he expressed his philosophy of his work when he said "It is to catch the freedom of spirit of the rhythm of nature that we are working." To this end, he has set himself in determining opposition to the constricting features of the classic style and heartily favors the experiments of the moderns.

Local Drive For Sale Of Christmas Seals Will Get Underway Monday

Intensive Campaign, Endorsed by Local Persons, Will Be Launched To Aid American Tuberculosis Society in Stamping Out Disease Locally and Nationally.

Students of the University and townspeople will again have the opportunity of contributing to the work of the American Tuberculosis Association this year through an intensive local drive for the sale of Christmas seals which will begin next Monday.

The work of the national organization is recognized as one of the most helpful and has materially aided in decreasing deaths from tuberculosis.

Proceeds Used Locally

The proceeds collected in the local campaign will for the most part go toward stamping out tuberculosis in Chapel Hill. Of all the money secured from the sale of these stamps, seventy-five per cent remains in the locality. This, together with donations from other sources, helps to serve the needs of local sufferers, though even these funds are short of the necessary amount.

The largest lump sum collected locally goes toward the salary of a nurse who examines school children, inspects homes, makes suggestions to mothers for the care of their families, supervises the care of home patients, all the way lessening the toll of the disease.

Another large portion goes to the keeping of one or more patients in sanatoriums and providing medical attention and nourishing foods for numerous others who remain at home.

Receives Local Endorsements

The campaign has received high endorsement from a large number of local persons. Mayor Zeb P. Council of Chapel Hill states: "As mayor of Chapel Hill I wish to urge the people of my community to invest as much as possible in these Christmas Seals. I say invest—for what better use can we find for our money in these times when it is so scarce, than in the improvement and protection of the health of our families."

"As health officer of Chapel Hill," said Dr. S. A. Nathan, giving his endorsement, "I wish to call attention of the people to the value to the community of the health program as carried out by Nurse Compton in her work. Any increase of funds for her use in this task means just so much more benefit for our locality."

Origin of Seal Idea

This idea of using an extra stamp on Christmas mail, the proceeds from its sale to be used for the aid of those suffering from tuberculosis, came from Einar Holboell, a Danish mail clerk.

After talking the idea over with friends, he finally succeeded in gaining the attention of the king and queen who agreed to back his plans. The first year of campaign was rewarded with the securing of enough money to build a children's hospital.

A stamp on a letter from Denmark to Jacob Ries aroused American interest. Miss Emily Bissell of Wilmington, Delaware, is credited with taking the initiative in this country in 1906. The first year of the work was rewarded by the collection of $3,000.00 which equipped a small hospital.

For several years the seal sale was conducted by the American Red Cross and then jointly by the Red Cross and the Tuberculosis Association. When the Red Cross adopted the roll call as its methods of raising funds to be used for general relief work, the task of collecting money to be used for the prevention of tuberculosis was left to the tuberculosis association.

CHILEAN PATRIOT CHOSEN VISITING PEACE LECTURER

(Continued from first page) pecially remembered as a strong advocate of economic co-operation of the United States and Chile, and as such appears to have no fear of the so-called economic imperialism of this country.

Modern Journalist

Upon returning to Chile after the downfall of the Ibanez regime, Dr. Davila resumed the direction and publication of Hoy (Today), an example of up-to-date journalism. In investigations he found his country suffering acutely from the depression. He decided that certain drastic changes were necessary to enable Chile to meet the desperate circumstances of the unemployment and economic crisis. At the request of many friends and with their aid, he effected a sudden coup d'etat and was brought to power as Provisional President on June 4, 1932. He served as such for three months. Upon relinquishing his power as president, Dr. Davila took up a residence in the United States.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH TO GIVE BAZAAR TUESDAY

The Presbyterian church is conducting a Christmas bazaar Tuesday, December 6, at 3:00 o'clock. Christmas articles, made by members of the auxiliary of the church will be on sale, in addition to food. A member of the local chapter of the Red Cross will be on hand to sell tuberculosis Christmas seals. A story hour will be conducted during the afternoon for the small children so that the mothers will be able to shop.

Development Of Folk Drama Spreading Fast

The Little Theatre movement, based primarily on the development of folk drama, is spreading rapidly in the south, according to Professor Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers and southern director of the National Theatre Conference, who is back from a lecture tour which included several large centers in the south.

Using as his general theme, "The Making of an American Folk Drama," he spoke at Memphis before the annual convention of the National Council of Teachers of English; at the University of Chattanooga, where he was the guest of President Alexander Guerry, and in Nashville, Tenn. He found flourishing Little Theatre groups in all these centers. His tour took him as far as the University of Cincinnati. While there he was the guest of the mayor and city manager at a dinner given in his honor.

For the twenty-seventh consecutive year Professor Koch is to give his annual reading of Dickens' Christmas Carol in Memorial hall here Sunday night, December 11, at 8:30 o'clock.

GRANVILLE WILL GIVE RECITATIONS HERE WEDNESDAY

(Continued from first page) Dickens; Asana, a stage director, and Uda, Prince of Sakamoto from The Fluttering Hands by Kawataki Mokuami; Ivan Ivanovitch Tolkachov, the father of a family, from A Tragedian in Spite of Himself by Anton Chekhov; Nero, the Roman Emperor from Quo Vadis? by Henryk Sienkiewicz; the Lord Chancellor, from Iolanthe by Gilbert and Sullivan; and Andre, from the Final Call of De Lorde.

This event is a part of the work of the Student Entertainment Committee, and it will be the final presentation of the year on the Student Entertainment card.

"American Madness" Shows At Carolina

A hotel, bank, railroad station, and trains provide the units for the background of the Columbia picture, "American Madness," featuring today at the Carolina theatre.

Walter Huston has one of the leading roles, that of a modern financier, who is both courageous and careful in making his bank symbolize leadership and assurance. He believes that banks hold the solution to economic depression, and he acts boldly on the this belief. Kay Johnson, native of New York, and of English and Scotch ancestry, has another of the prominent parts. Constance Cummings, seen Wednesday in "Washington Merry-Go-Round," Pat O'Brien, and Gavin Gordon are included in the cast.

LOST

Last Dance This Term Will Be Given Tonight

To-night the order of the Grail will give a dance, the final one of the term, in Bynum gymnasium from 9:00 o'clock until midnight with Jack Wardlaw and his orchestra providing the music. The dance is open to upperclassmen only.

The decorations to be placed in the gymnasium will be confined to white and orange drapings, and is under the supervision of Percy C. Idol and Milton Barber. Bynum gymnasium is being used for the function to-night instead of the Tin Can because a smaller attendance is expected than at previous dances, C. C. Hamlet, treasurer of the Grail, said yesterday.

The University dance committee will be in charge of the dance to-night.

Comprehensive Exams Will Take Place Today

The fall quarter's comprehensive examinations for seniors will be conducted by the different departments of the University at 9:00 o'clock this morning.

The passing of one of these examinations, which are given each quarter, is a requisite for graduation.

The English department's examination will be conducted in 201 Murphey while the commerce and economics examinations will be given in 113 Bingham.
